Neighborhood matters. It's part of who we are and helps us understand who we might become. I care about our schools. I care about our parks. I care about our public safety and I care about our streets. I wonder how to make them better. I think about the chances we have to work together to make changes. I live here with my wife and two young children and we love being a part of this community. I am the Producing Artistic Director of La Mirada Theatre for the Performing Arts and a member of the Directing faculty at U.C.L.A.'s School of Theater, Film and Television. Before that, I was a small business owner. I am a hard worker and dedicated to community, wherever it exists. Neighborhood Councils are important and deserve our support. I'll struggle to make sure neighborhood matters. Please consider making me a part of the effort.
