RE: Motion and Analysis regarding Street Vending Program, #13-1493

Honorable City Council,

On behalf of the Coalition for Humane Immigrant Rights of Los Angeles (CHIRLA), I am writing to express enthusiastic support for the City of Los Angeles' consideration of a citywide program that would legalize and regulate street vending in Los Angeles

CHIRLA has been at the forefront of immigrant integration since 1986, ensuring that local, state and federal policies are fully inclusive of all immigrant communities. We have worked with street vendors in Los Angeles over the last 15 years, ensuring that they are treated with dignity and respect as they attempt to make a simple living to feed their children through an honest day's work. Unfortunately, making street vending illegal on city sidewalks has led to deportations for many street vendors who otherwise have never been arrested. It also takes away valuable resources from law enforcement, focusing on the working poor instead of violent crimes in our city.

CHIRLA is also a member of the Los Angeles Street Vendor Campaign, a citywide coalition of more than 40 community-based organizations advocating on behalf of more than 10,000 street vendors in Los Angeles. Street vendors currently operate outside of the formal economy because the City lacks a process that both recognizes and supports these micro-entrepreneurs. We believe that by developing a permit process with competent enforcement strategies, the City could give these small business owners an opportunity to make an honest living, encourage healthy eating, and create safer more vibrant streets.

Specifically, we support the following components of a vending ordinance:

- A Citywide permit process for food and non-food vending. This process should consider the cost of enforcement, revenue opportunities for the City, and the financial capacity of low-income vendors. In order for vendors across the City to have a real incentive to participate, any policy that is put forth must apply to all areas of the city.
- Incentives for different types of healthy food vending, including but not limited to, cut fruit, produce, and water.
- Responsible and humane enforcement, reducing punishment of illegal vending from a misdemeanor to an infraction, avoiding arrests and exorbitant fines. The campaign has outlined a tiered system of enforcement that maximizes the potential of participation by vendors all over the City.

A detailed summary of these points has been submitted to the lead Legislative Analyst, Felipe Valladolid Chavez in the form of a policy memo.

On behalf of the thousands of vendors we work with and represent, we are committed to forging a strong partnership with the City of Los Angeles that brings this important economic sector out of the shadows. Please feel free to contact me should you have any questions.

Re: Council File 13-1493; Permitting and Regulation of Sidewalk Food Vending

Dear Councilmembers,

Community Health Councils wishes to provide in this letter preliminary findings and policy recommendations from a Health Impact Assessment (HIA) on potential sidewalk food vending legislation. Our organization has worked successfully to address health disparities in marginalized communities since 1992. Utilizing stakeholder engagement and policy analysis, we promote environmental equity and social justice for underserved populations.

In 2012, the Centers for Disease Control & Prevention (CDC) awarded a REACH demonstration project grant[1] to CHC to lead a multi-organizational effort to develop and implement policy and environmental changes that address the obesity and hypertension epidemics in South Los Angeles. A key focus of the project is the nutrition resource environments adjacent to schools. CHC convened a steering committee in Fall 2013 that was comprised of street vendor advocates, school nutrition advocates, public sector regulators, and health and social researchers, who provided input on the design of an HIA methodology. Primary and secondary data collection for the HIA commenced in March 2014 and is ongoing.

While sidewalk vending is prohibited throughout Los Angeles[2], a separate law also prohibits mobile vending within 500 feet of school campuses during normal school hours[3]. It is widely acknowledged, however, that these regulations are largely ineffectual in deterring street food vending, especially near schools, even though vendors do incur consequences for enforcement actions that occur at inconsistent and arbitrary times and places. Although citywide regulations on street vendors are a separate consideration from school-proximal regulations, the HIA considers whether changes in the former may influence the presence of vendors that locate near campuses at the end of the school day.

Data from recently concluded field observations indicates that the absence of a citywide prohibition against sidewalk vending in the control environment (Compton) does not appear to produce a higher presence of food vendors in proximity to schools in that city, which some might speculate would occur in parts of Los Angeles. This suggests that a new regulatory structure for street vendors can consider the legitimation of micro-enterprise for street vendors while also valuing the preservation of healthier school nutrition environments, especially if these important concerns are balanced geographically and enforced consistently.

The HIA builds on research performed by UCLA graduate students[4] in 2007, which concluded that energy-dense, low-nutrient snacks and sugar-sweetened beverages are the predominant items sold to students by street vendors, and that students who combine daily snack/drink purchases with infrequent exercise are exceeding recommended caloric intake levels by as much 27%. Widespread overconsumption of this nature undoubtedly contributes to the prevalence of obesity-related diseases in South Los Angeles.

Street vendors are just one component of a multi-faceted nutrition environment around schools; environments that are set-up to undermine student health in South Los Angeles and other urban "food swamps". As yet, academic research has not considered whether regulatory structures produce quantitative or qualitative differences in the presence of street vendors nears schools, or in altered student consumption behaviors within the wider food ecology. This HIA employs a comparison between campus-adjacent environments in South Los Angeles and a control environment (Compton) with similar socioeconomic conditions but a more permissive regulatory structure for street vendors (both jurisdictions have prohibitions on street vending in proximity to schools, but Compton does not prohibit it completely within its incorporated boundaries).

METHODOLOGY

The comparison between campus-adjacent environments considers a range of factors- food retail environment, bicycle and pedestrian safety, cultural characteristics[5], income characteristics- that may contribute to the presence of sidewalk food vendors. A school from the experiment environment (South Los Angeles) was coupled with a school from the control environment (Compton) that had similar conditions for one of these environmental factors (figure 1). Because schools represent relative market sizes to suppliers (i.e. street vendors), results were adjusted based on an average enrollment for the schools in the study. Elementary schools were only compared with other elementary schools, and likewise for middle schools and high schools, as consumer mobility varies considerably based on the age of students. Comparing results between the coupled schools provides a perspective on how various environmental factors may drive differences in vendor presence and student consumption behavior. If differences between the experiment and control environments are consistent across these factors, however, it would indicate the influence of differing regulatory structures.

Field observations presented the most feasible method for gathering primary data on the quantity and quality of sidewalk food vendors near schools. Bilingual assessors observed the immediate streets surrounding each school environment during the minutes before and after the closing school bell[6], noting how many vendors were present, general categories of snacks and beverages available for purchase (unhealthy snack food, fruits and vegetables, hot/prepared foods, sugar-sweetened beverages, healthy beverages), location of each vendor relative to school gates, vendor travel method, and any impact on pedestrian circulation within sidewalks. The scope of the HIA was limited to food vendors who operated within the pedestrian realm and utilized non-motorized carts or hand-held containers to transport their inventory, coinciding with the anticipated scope of the current legislation on sidewalk vendor regulations. The presence of motorized food trucks and ice cream trucks in proximity to schools were noted by assessors as a factor that might correlate to the presence of sidewalk vendors. In some areas, vendors utilizing pedaled carts were a common presence, and were included within the definition of sidewalk vendors due to their ability to vend from the pedestrian realm in a similar fashion.

Steering committee input revealed that a number of potentially positive impacts from permitted sidewalk food vending would be worth assessing, including "eyes on the street"[7], enhanced economic mobility for low-income people, improved preparation and storage enforcement of street food, improved healthy food access in nutritionally underserved communities, and enhanced retail sales activity in economically depressed communities. Analysis of variables leading to these potential outcomes would likely require multiple HIA and robust collaboration with public agencies to cover adequately. However, this HIA did consider whether the presence of sidewalk vendors correlated to pedestrian and bicycle activity at the end of the school day. Concurrently with vendor observations, field assessors were positioned at key pre-determined locations along primary routes leading away from school campuses to count the number of pedestrians and bicyclists that were active. A suggestion for future analysis of street vendors would be a simulation of nutrition behaviors and vendor activity when healthy food vendors are introduced into a school-adjacent environment, as was conducted on a limited basis in Oakland in 2008[8]- a study that observed a fruit vendor gaining modest increments of market share from non-nutritious vendors over a 19-day period.

Considering the practical complications of tracking individual purchases from street vendors in the field, in-school surveys completed by students are a comparatively more feasible method for assessing the nutritional content of the snacks and beverages students purchase. CHC is currently coordinating with school district staff to administer surveys in classes and after-school programs, with data from these surveys included in the HIA report findings. Students will provide survey answers that give the frequency of purchases of general snack and beverage categories (the same categories used in the vendor observations), reasons for patronizing street vendors, and the safety perceptions of those walking or bicycling from school. Students will also provide the frequency of purchases from a variety of snack and beverage outlets (sidewalk vendor, vending machine, school store, food truck, corner store, fast food restaurant, home, someone else), which will be used to quantify the market share of street vendors within the wider nutrition environment and to forecast whether student demand will diminish or shift to other outlets based on a potentially constrained presence of street vendors.

PRELIMINARY FINDINGS

Of the 26 total vendors observed in the HIA, only two vendors were observed at middle schools and none were observed at high schools. Considering the means and choices available to older students, this may point to a market niche for street vendors that diminishes as students become less dependent on parents for purchases and transportation. Because vendor presence seems primarily relevant to the nutrition of younger students (grades K-5), the below analysis of environmental factors was limited to the eight elementary schools included in this HIA.

The schools with the highest presence of street vendors were located in South Los Angeles, the more stringent regulatory environment. Interestingly, the only elementary schools with no street vendor presence were also located in South Los Angeles. It is notable that of the aforementioned schools in South Los Angeles, the two with a high street vendor presence were the only elementary schools surveyed in the HIA where the local poverty rate was above 30% (figure 2), while the two with no street vendor presence were the only elementary schools surveyed with less than 50% Spanish-speaking people in proximity to the campus[9] (figure 3). However, the relationship of poverty and language to vendor presence was not consistent enough across the study to qualify as actual trends- Compton schools with lower poverty in their surroundings still had moderate vendor presence, while Compton schools with many Spanish speakers did not necessarily have high vendor presence.

Modified Retail Food Environment Index (mREFI)[10], which measures the proportion of healthy (e.g. supermarkets) to unhealthy (e.g. fast food restaurants, convenience stores) food retailers within census tracts, and ½-mile bicycle and pedestrian collision rates[11] were two other environmental factors that were considered in relationship to vendor presence nears schools. While mREFI was markedly lower and collision rates markedly higher (both undesirable states) in South Los Angeles, results within either jurisdiction were not consistent enough to indicate a correlation to higher or lower vendor presence. Nor did the presence of other mobile food vendors (i.e. food trucks and ice cream trucks) correlate in any way with sidewalk vendor presence nears schools. There was also no consistent trend between pedestrian and bicycle activity to vendor presence, although somewhat counterintuitively, a number of schools with higher vendor presence had lower percentages of students walking home from school (figure 4).

Of the eight schools where sidewalk food vendors were present, seven schools had vendors selling exclusively unhealthy snacks (e.g. chips, cookies, candy, ice cream, elote) and sugar-sweetened beverages (e.g. soda, fruit punch, sports drink, energy drink, aguas frescas). Only at one school (Normandie Avenue Elementary) were vendors selling hot/prepared foods (e.g. tamales) and healthy beverages (e.g. 100% fruit juice, water) present. Of 26 total vendors observed, 23 were located next to or across the street from school gates. Field assessors noted that half of the total street vendors influenced sidewalk congestion where they were located, but in no instances did pedestrians walk into the street to avoid this congestion.

LIMITATIONS

The partial correlations revealed in this HIA might become clearer with future studies that provide a larger sample size and more exhaustive data collection. Multi-day observations of individual school-adjacent environments (rather than a single day) may help reduce data outliers. An expanded scope that includes all schools within a jurisdiction, or schools in many jurisdictions, would create more viable and complex opportunities for comparison. Collaborative partnerships with street vendors[12] can enable detailed point-of-sale tracking of snack and beverage purchases, costs and revenues, enforcement actions and location choices. Utilization of secondary data from public agencies can help correlate health, safety and economic activity to vendor activity.

ENVIRONMENTAL IMPLICATIONS

The health impacts of widespread resource-poor food environments in Los Angeles are compounded by large and small food retailers (from multi-national chain restaurants to small businesses to micro-entrepreneurs) who geographically and temporally oriented their services to school-age youth. It is counterproductive policy to improve nutrition environments within school campuses without addressing the dearth of healthy food choices available off-campus. As the City Council considers new regulations for sidewalk food vendors, research suggests that a balance between important concerns is sought, with the following considerations in mind:

- Complimentary efforts to improve school nutrition. Regulations that prohibit mobile and sidewalk vending within 500' (or more) of public school campuses can be maintained, unless to allow for healthy food vendors to operate within this proximity. Consider how land near school campuses can be preserved from the proliferation of fast food restaurants and convenience stores that do not sell fresh fruits and vegetables.

- Empowerment of healthy food vendors. Leveraging street vendors to improve healthy food access can be an important opportunity for Los Angeles. It requires more than regulatory changes, but also a funding and administrative commitment to maintain and expand their market niche.

- Consistent enforcement of vendor regulations near schools. Like with the existing regulations, a new system of permitted sidewalk vending will likely fail to protect students and mislead vendors if it is not consistently enforced. School-adjacent environments can be given enforcement priority and inter-agency inefficiencies can be streamlined.

- Legitimized micro-enterprise for low-income people. Many street vendors may also be parents of school children. Based on evidence from other jurisdictions in this HIA, more permissive regulations will not likely create more street vendors, but can create a legal pathway of income-generation that will benefit the health and development of families.

CHC appreciates the opportunity to provide input on this important policy decision. We look forward to a decision that creates more progressive regulation in Los Angeles for the sake of health and prosperity.

Economic Roundtable

Economic Impact of Los Angeles Street Vendors

Los Angeles has an estimated 10,000 street vendors, who generate over $100 million in annual sales of food and merchandise. Almost half of the street vendors, 43 percent, prepare and serve food-related products, sales of which total to $42 million a year. The Economic Roundtable analyzed economic impacts that sales of food by street vendors had on the local economy.

Findings

Our initial findings are that street carts selling food in Los Angeles stimulate $67 million in local economic activity (see figure on page 2). This breaks down into:

- $42.5 million in direct sales
- $10.5 million in indirect sales
- $14 million in induced sales

For every dollar earned by LA street vendors, $1.60 of economic impacts is realized in the local economy.

The biggest beneficiaries of the economic impacts generated by street vendors include food wholesalers, property owners, and advertising companies, as well as doctors' offices, hospitals, restaurants and banks. Real estate and rent benefit from indirect and induced effects of street vendor sales because the supplies that vendors purchase come from traditional brick and mortar stores that pay rent (ex. supermarkets).

How Economic Impacts Work

As street vendors in the Los Angeles sell food and drinks to passersby, the multiplier effects from their sales accumulate and reverberate through the local economy, adding to the demand for goods and services from local suppliers. This translates into added sales and jobs for local grocery stores, as well as other suppliers who help street vendors keep their carts in operation. These small sales add to the spending power of employees' households, supporting still more sales and jobs where those households spend their money, as well as more tax revenue for local, state and federal government.

Briefing Memo

To: Los Angeles City Departments

From: The Los Angeles Street Vendor Campaign

Date: February 2014

Re: A Proposal to Legalize Street Vending & The Priorities of Advocates

This memorandum outlines a proposal to legalize street vending in Los Angeles in terms of the priorities of the over 40 organizations who are part of the coalition to legalize street vending. The proposal focuses on sidewalk vending, and includes an incentive program for healthy food sales. Most of the recommendations discussed apply to both food and non-food merchandise vending, but some apply specifically to food vending.

Background

The LA Street Vendor Campaign is a coalition of public sector, non-profit, and private stakeholders who are passionate about supporting entrepreneurs, cultivating good food, and supporting the vibrancy of the City's sidewalks and streets. This coalition includes:

- East LA Community Corporation
- Leadership for Urban Renewal Network
- Coalition for Humane Immigrant Rights of Los Angeles
- LA Food Policy Council
- UFCW
- Loncheros Association
- SEE-LA
- Public Counsel
- Urban & Environmental Policy Institute

Established in 2012, this coalition has recognized that many of the city's poorest communities have limited access to affordable, healthy food. This is due to the absence of mainstream grocery stores and the prominence of small convenience stores that often sell poor quality food at high costs. In addition, jobs are scarce in many neighborhoods and many current vendors entered into the vending business in order to support their families and community.

Community Organization & Council Motion

To support the extensive research conducted by the coalition, participating organizations mounted a campaign in 2013 to engage community members in support of a policy that can permit sidewalk vendors. Through 5 town halls, numerous meetings with constituent groups that included business associations and restaurant groups and on-the-ground outreach to local businesses and residents, the Los Angeles Street Vendor Campaign was able to secure support from Councilmember Huizar and Councilman Price to introduce a motion in City Council.

The purpose of the motion was to ask departments how the City could create a permit system for sidewalk vendors. In addition, the program will include incentives for vendors who commit to selling healthy food.

The Coalition Proposal & Priorities

The LA Street Vendor Campaign believes that the absence of a permit system for street vendors is a missed opportunity. Legal sidewalk vending can not only create jobs, but also recruit these entrepreneurs to sell healthy food in the city's food deserts and enliven streets by increasing security, walkability and social activity. Scholars estimate that there are upwards of 10,000 mobile vendors in the City. These vendors are not permitted, not being taxed, and not contributing directly to the City's formal economy.

The coalition is seeking the introduction of an ordinance that would:

- Create a Citywide Permit System for Food Vendors on Sidewalks – Vendors could get a permit to sell food on city sidewalks. They would also need to secure Los Angeles County Public Health Department permits that are already required to sell food from mobile facilities. The coalition has engaged the Los Angeles County Public Health Department who is supportive of a City permit that allows food vendors to vend on sidewalks. Naturally, a fee would be imposed for a City of Los Angeles permit based on projected costs of enforcing vending rules, surveys of vendors, and research on typical fees in other cities. This fee would help pay the cost of the system so as to not burden the City's budget.

- Incentivize Healthy Food – The Coalition is proposing that the permit system incentivize the sale of healthy food in low-income neighborhoods. Entrepreneurs who are committed to selling healthy food will be given incentives such as a expedited and lower-cost permit, priority to sell near high-pedestrian areas like transit stops, and access to educational resources and resource opportunities through community partners.

- Encourage Safe, Vibrant Streets and Prosperous Neighborhoods - A permit system should be designed in a manner that respects existing small businesses and forges positive relationships with community stakeholders and the Police Department. Vendors and businesses thus far have expressed interest in working together in business improvement districts and local business associations.

During policy development, the Coalition prioritizes the following:

- Basic Structure of Permit System – Past efforts to create small, pilot sidewalk vending sites in the City have failed due to excessive restrictions on vendors and competition from adjacent unlicensed vendors. To succeed, a permit system for vendors should be citywide in scope and allow vendors to choose where and what to sell, subject to common sense rules and California Health & Safety Code:

    - Permits should be available to all applicants by right. Cities that have placed a cap on the number of permits have experienced illegal vending outside of the permitting system.
    - Vendors should be able to decide where to locate their carts (as long as they do not block pedestrian right of way, driveways etc., see below).
    - Vendors should be able to decide what food items they sell, subject to Health & Safety Code requirements and with incentives to encourage sale of healthy items.

- Responsible and Humane Enforcement – The campaign understands the importance of an effective enforcement strategy to protect vendors who commit to a new permit system. Enforcement, however, should be reduced from a misdemeanor to an infraction avoiding arrests and exorbitant fines. The campaign proposes a tiered system to regulate vendors who are not permitted:

    - First offense: A "warning" system that encourages vendors to comply with the new law within a certain time frame.
    - Second offense: A "fix it" ticket that requires vendors to submit proof of the correction of the offense within 6 months. Extension provisions can be available.
    - Third offense: A fine. The fine should not exceed more than $150.

- Additional offenses: A fine not to exceed $300.[1]
- After the establishment of a permit system, a moratorium should be in place for up to a year to help vendors get in compliance with the new law.

To mitigate the cost of enforcement, the coalition is in favor of a "shared enforcement" strategy between departments. In addition, agencies should collaborate on a consistent approach to enforcement; especially in the first year where education should be a priority.

- Healthy Vending Incentive Program – Street food vendors can be a part of expanding access to healthy food in under-served neighborhoods. The Coalition believes it is important to establish a meaningful incentive program for street vendors who commit to selling healthy food.

  To insure the success of this aspect of the permit system, the Coalition suggests defining the parameters of a "healthy food cart" that can be enforced by city agencies visually. Healthy Food Carts will be distinguished with a sticker decal.

  Through consultation with public health experts and street vendors alike the Coalition proposes the following definition for a healthy food cart:

  1. A cart that sells ONLY fresh fruits, vegetables, and water; and

  2. A cart where 50% of visible food products are made up of the following:

     a. Whole or processed fruits or vegetables with no sugar added
     b. Drinking water
     c. Low-fat/non-fat dairy or non-dairy milk options
     d. "Healthy Snacks" as defined by USDA[2]

  Additional criteria: healthy food carts must be free of commercially packaged sugar-sweetened beverages such as soda, punch and other "juices".

  In our research, we found the following factors to be important in defining a healthy food cart: visibility and proportionality of healthy food, flexibility for the vendor in creating a healthy food cart menu, and ease of enforcement for City and County departments. The above definition allows for a diversity of product and menu offerings that support public health concerns, while also being achievable for vendors and simple for the City to enforce.

  To encourage vendors to become Healthy Food Carts, the City should provide incentives that are

[1] Research shows that lower fines are more likely to be paid off. More likely to be enforced and act as a deterrent.

[2] The most applicable criteria to determine "healthy snacks" is borrowed from the USDA's Smart Snacks In School guidelines. To be considered a healthy snack in the context of street food vending, the product must hit one of the following criteria: (1) Be a "whole grain-rich" grain product; (2) Have as the first ingredient a fruit, a vegetable, a dairy product, or a protein food; or (3) Be a combination food that contains at least 1 cup of fruit and/or vegetable.

In addition to these three criteria, the USDA Smart Snacks In School guidelines also require products to "contain 10%

[2] The most applicable criteria to determine "healthy snacks" is borrowed from the USDA's Smart Snacks In School guidelines. In addition to these three criteria, the USDA Smart Snacks In School guidelines also require products to "contain 10% of the Daily Value (DV) of one of the nutrients of public health concern in the 2010 Dietary Guidelines for Americans (calcium, potassium, vitamin D, or dietary fiber)" and meet several other nutrient guidelines. However, for the sake of feasible enforcement, we recommend the City's definition of "healthy snacks" focus on the first three criteria. attractive to operators and simple to implement and enforce:

- Lower cost permit (at least 50% lower cost).
- Expedited permit processing.
- Only type 1 healthy carts (fruit, vegetables, water) can locate within 500 feet of K-12 schools.
- Only healthy carts (type 1 or 2) can locate on sidewalks adjacent to city-owned facilities such as parks, libraries, police and fire stations.
- The City can help inform vendors that sellers of whole fruits and vegetables are subject to much less stringent Health Code requirements.

- Cost – The Coalition understands that a permit system for street vendors must be cost neutral for the City. To accomplish this, a common method of generating revenue is through permit fees. To explore this issue, the Coalition has conducted a tremendous amount of community outreach and has confirmed that street vendors are indeed willing to pay for a permit. Most vendors are comfortable paying an annual fee up to $250.

  Other major cities offer permits at varying costs:
  - New York - $75 for two year license, $50 for two year permit, $50 annual renewal fee for each
  - Houston - $535 for medallion, $220 annual permit
  - Philadelphia - $300 annual permit
  - Portland - $60 permit application fee, $75 annual permit, $25 annual propane permit

  Attached is a matrix with permit information from other cities.

- Small businesses – The LA Street Vendor Campaign supports street vendors as well as brick-and-mortar businesses. To create a fair and competitive environment, the coalition believes the following should be incorporated in a street vendor policy:

  - A reasonable perimeter should be established around brick-and-mortar food businesses, especially where street vendors are selling similar goods to a brick-and-mortar establishment. This perimeter should be no more than 20 feet.[3]
  - A vending perimeter could be waived with a written agreement from the nearby brick-and-mortar business.
  - Restrictions on the amount of space a vendor can occupy on a public right of way to allow for pedestrians to freely pass by a vendor on a sidewalk.
  - Requirements for sidewalk vendors to have trash receptacle to keep sidewalks and streets clean.

- Los Angeles County Public Health Department – Environmental Health Division - The Coalition believes that the City of Los Angeles can leverage existing regulations and resources from the LA County Public Health Department to ensure a workable solution for street vendors. Functions currently under the auspices of the Public Health Department should not be taken on by the City of Los Angeles. Currently, the Health Department is responsible for:

[3] We note that similar perimeters have been successfully challenged through litigation for anti-competition reasons. We believe it is important to respect the different needs and interests of mobile vendors as well as small bricks-and-mortar businesses. Even without a perimeter, small businesses and vendors will have many incentives to cooperate. For example, stationary sidewalk vendors will need to identify a brick-and-mortar business for bathroom access as per California Food Retail Code. For their part, small businesses such as restaurants and markets may see a business opportunity in operating as a certified commissary for mobile food vendors.

- Sanitary Conditions – The County Health Department ensure that all mobile food facilities are abiding by the California Retail Food Code, which dictates operational procedures and cart specifications that protect the public from food-borne illness and contamination.
- Bathroom Compliance - The County Public Health Department monitors whether mobile food vendors are operating within 200 feet from a bathroom. Mobile vendors operating for more than an hour in one location are required to identify a publically accessible bathroom and establish a verbal agreement with the location owner for use. Many vendors secure a written agreement with a nearby business.
- Certified equipment – County Public Health officials ensure that legal food vendors are using ANSI or NSF certified equipment
- Commissary System Compliance – All mobile food vendors are required to source and prepare products and store carts in a certified commissary. This way, food products are source verified and prepared in sanitary conditions. A certified commercial kitchen is another option for food vendors to prepare food.

Vendors with Los Angeles street vending permits should also be licensed by the County Public Health Department.

Next Steps

Moving forward, the LA Street Vendor Campaign and the over 40 organizations who make up its coalition are passionately committed to creating a permit system for street vendors in Los Angeles in partnership with City departments and elected leaders. If the recommendations in this document are incorporated into policy, the Coalition believes Los Angeles can have one of the most effective street vending initiatives in the Nation; creating jobs, bringing healthy food into low-income communities, and cultivating safer streets.

RE: Motion and Analysis regarding Street Vending Program, #13-1493

Honorable City Council,

I am writing to express enthusiastic support for the City of Los Angeles' consideration of a citywide program that would legalize and regulate street vending in Los Angeles. The Los Angeles River Revitalization Corporation is a non-profit venture dedicated to placemaking and sustainable development along the Los Angeles River. We apply an entrepreneurial approach to the implementation of the LA River Revitalization Master Plan, our blueprint to transform the river into a great civic amenity for the city of Los Angeles.

The LA River Corp is also a member of the Los Angeles Street Vendor Campaign, a citywide coalition of more than 40 community-based organizations advocating on behalf of more than 10,000 street vendors in Los Angeles. These street vendors currently operate outside of the formal economy because the City lacks a process that both recognizes and supports these micro-entrepreneurs. We believe that by developing a permit process with competent enforcement strategies, the City could give these small business owners an opportunity to make an honest living, encourage healthy eating, and create safer more vibrant streets. This is especially true along the LA River, where formal street vending districts can be a strong economic development tool for low-income communities and a great amenity for the LA River.

Specifically, we support the following components of a vending ordinance:

- A Citywide permit process for food and non-food vending. This process should consider the cost of enforcement, revenue opportunities for the City, and the financial capacity of low-income vendors. In order for vendors across the City to have a real incentive to participate, any policy that is put forth must apply to all areas of the city.
- Incentives for different types of healthy food vending, including but not limited to, cut fruit, produce, and water.
- Responsible and humane enforcement, reducing punishment of illegal vending from a misdemeanor to an infraction, avoiding arrests and exorbitant fines. The campaign has outlined a tiered system of enforcement that maximizes the potential of participation by vendors all over the City.

We are committed to forging a strong partnership with the City of Los Angeles that brings this important economic sector out of the shadows. Please feel free to contact me should you have any questions.

Sincerely,

RE: Motion and Analysis regarding Street Vending Program, #13-1493

Honorable City Council,

I am writing to express support for the City of Los Angeles' consideration of a citywide program that would legalize and regulate street vending in Los Angeles. I am the President and CEO of Strategic Concepts in Organizing and Policy Education (SCOPE), which builds grassroots power to create social and economic justice for low-income families in Los Angeles. SCOPE organizes communities, develops leaders, collaborates through strategic alliances, builds capacity through training programs, and educates South LA's residents to have an active role in shaping policies that affect the quality of life in our region.

SCOPE is also a member of the Los Angeles Street Vendor Campaign, a citywide coalition of more than 40 community-based organizations advocating on behalf of more than 10,000 street vendors in Los Angeles. These street vendors currently operate outside of the formal economy because the City lacks a process that both recognizes and supports these micro-entrepreneurs. We believe that by developing a permit process with competent enforcement strategies, the City could give these small business owners an opportunity to make an honest living, encourage healthy eating, and create safer more vibrant streets.

Specifically, we support the following components of a vending ordinance:

- A Citywide permit process for food and non-food vending. This process should consider the cost of enforcement, revenue opportunities for the City, and the financial capacity of low-income vendors. In order for vendors across the City to have a real incentive to participate, any policy that is put forth must apply to all areas of the city.
- Incentives for different types of healthy food vending, including but not limited to, cut fruit, produce, and water.
- Responsible and humane enforcement, reducing punishment of illegal vending from a misdemeanor to an infraction, avoiding arrests and exorbitant fines. The campaign has outlined a tiered system of enforcement that maximizes the potential of participation by vendors all over the City.

A detailed summary of these points has been submitted to the lead Legislative Analyst, Felipe Valladolid Chavez in the form of a policy memo.

On behalf of the thousands of vendors we work with and represent, we are committed to forging a strong partnership with the City of Los Angeles that brings this important economic sector out of the shadows. Please feel free to contact me should you have any questions.

Honorable City Council,

I am writing to express enthusiastic support for the City of Los Angeles' consideration of a citywide program that would legalize and regulate street vending in Los Angeles. My organization, Leadership for Urban Renewal Network (LURN), is committed to bringing people together to responsibly revitalize low-income areas. We are passionate about building a better Los Angeles, and supporting the assets that already exist in our communities. Some of LA's strongest assets are the micro-entrepreneurs commonly referred to as street vendors.

LURN is also a member of the Los Angeles Street Vendor Campaign, a citywide coalition of more than 40 community-based organizations advocating on behalf of more than 10,000 street vendors in Los Angeles. Honorable City Council,

I am writing to express enthusiastic support for the City of Los Angeles' consideration of a citywide program that would legalize and regulate street vending in Los Angeles. The Bus Riders Union is a city-wide civil rights, environmental justice grassroots organization with a 20-year history of working for first class public transit and addressing the totality of urban life for LA's multi-racial working class. Our membership base spans across South LA, East LA, Pico Union, Koreatown, and the eastern San Fernando Valley, including street vendors, domestic and homecare workers, security officers, janitors, hotel workers, and many unemployed people. We understand the economic and social conditions that lead or force people to choose to make a livelihood outside of the formal economy.

RE: Motion and Analysis regarding Street Vending Program, #13-1493

Honorable City Council,

I am writing to express enthusiastic support for the City of Los Angeles' consideration of a citywide program that would legalize and regulate street vending in Los Angeles. My organization, From Lot to Spot is committed to working with disadvantaged communities to transform vacant lots into public green spaces and provide engagement and educational opportunities.

From Lot to Spot is also a member of the Los Angeles Street Vendor Campaign, a citywide coalition of more than 40 community-based organizations advocating on behalf of more than 10,000 street vendors in Los Angeles. These street vendors currently operate outside of the formal economy because the City lacks a process that both recognizes and supports these micro-entrepreneurs. We believe that by developing a permit process with competent enforcement strategies, the City could give these small business owners an opportunity to make an honest living, encourage healthy eating, and create safer more vibrant streets.

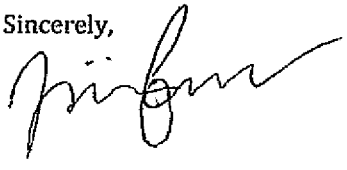

Specifically, we support the following components of a vending ordinance:

- A Citywide permit process for food and non-food vending. This process should consider the cost of enforcement, revenue opportunities for the City, and the financial capacity of low-income vendors. In order for vendors across the City to have a real incentive to participate, any policy that is put forth must apply to all areas of the city.
- Incentives for different types of healthy food vending, including but not limited to, cut fruit, produce, and water.
- Responsible and humane enforcement, reducing punishment of illegal vending from a misdemeanor to an infraction, avoiding arrests and exorbitant fines. The campaign has outlined a tiered system of enforcement that maximizes the potential of participation by vendors all over the City.

A detailed summary of these points has been submitted to the lead Legislative Analyst, Felipe Valladolid Chavez in the form of a policy memo.

On behalf of the thousands of vendors we work with and represent, we are committed to forging a strong partnership with the City of Los Angeles that brings this important economic sector out of the shadows. Please feel free to contact me should you have any questions.

Sincerely,

RE: Motion and Analysis regarding Street Vending Program, #13-1493

Honorable members of the Los Angeles City Council,

I am writing to express enthusiastic support for a City of Los Angeles program that would legalize and regulate street vending in Los Angeles. The mission of KIWA (Koreatown Immigrant Workers Alliance) is to build the power of immigrant workers and residents and to organize a progressive grassroots leadership to transform our workplaces and communities, in Koreatown and beyond.

KIWA is a member of the Los Angeles Street Vendor Campaign, a citywide coalition of more than 40 community-based organizations advocating on behalf of more than 10,000 street vendors in Los Angeles. These street vendors currently operate outside of the formal economy because the City lacks a process that recognizes and supports them, despite the many contributions they make to our city's vitality, culture, and economy. We believe that by developing a permit process, the City could give these small-business owners an opportunity to make an honest living, encourage healthy eating, and create safer and more vibrant streets.

Specifically, we support the following components of a vending ordinance:

- Responsible and humane enforcement, reducing punishment of illegal vending from a misdemeanor to an infraction, avoiding arrests and exorbitant fines. The campaign has outlined a tiered system of enforcement that maximizes the potential of participation by vendors all over the City.

A detailed summary of these points has been submitted to the lead Legislative Analyst, Felipe Valladolid Chavez in the form of a policy memo.

On behalf of the thousands of vendors we work with and represent, we are committed to forging a strong partnership with the City of Los Angeles that brings this important economic sector out of the shadows. Please feel free to contact me should you have any questions.

RE: Motion and Analysis regarding Street Vending Program, #13-1493

Honorable City Council,

I am writing to express enthusiastic support for the City of Los Angeles' consideration of a citywide program that would legalize and regulate street vending in Los Angeles.

I'm a community supporter of the Los Angeles Street Vendor Campaign, a citywide coalition of more than 40 community-based organizations advocating on behalf of more than 10,000 street vendors in Los Angeles. These street vendors currently operate outside of the formal economy because the City lacks a process that both recognizes and supports these micro-entrepreneurs. I believe that by developing a permit process with competent enforcement strategies, the City could give these small business owners an opportunity to make an honest living, encourage healthy eating, and create safer more vibrant streets.

Specifically, I support the following components of a vending ordinance:

- A Citywide permit process for food and non-food vending. This process should consider the cost of enforcement, revenue opportunities for the City, and the financial capacity of low-income vendors. In order for vendors across the City to have a real incentive to participate, any policy that is put forth must apply to all areas of the city.
- Incentives for different types of healthy food vending, including but not limited to, cut fruit, produce, and water.
- Responsible and humane enforcement, reducing punishment of illegal vending from a misdemeanor to an infraction, avoiding arrests and exorbitant fines. The campaign has outlined a tiered system of enforcement that maximizes the potential of participation by vendors all over the City.

A detailed summary of these points has been submitted to the lead Legislative Analyst, Felipe Valladolid Chavez in the form of a policy memo.

On behalf of the thousands of vendors the coalition works with and represents, we are committed to forging a strong partnership with the City of Los Angeles that brings this important economic sector out of the shadows. Please feel free to contact me should you have any questions.

RE: Motion and Analysis regarding Street Vending Program, #13-1493

Honorable City Council,

On behalf of the Coalition for Humane Immigrant Rights of Los Angeles (CHIRLA), I am writing to express enthusiastic support for the City of Los Angeles' consideration of a citywide program that would legalize and regulate street vending in Los Angeles

CHIRLA has been at the forefront of immigrant integration since 1986, ensuring that local, state and federal policies are fully inclusive of all immigrant communities. We have worked with street vendors in Los Angeles over the last 15 years, ensuring that they are treated with dignity and respect as they attempt to make a simple living to feed their children through an honest day's work. Unfortunately, making street vending illegal on city sidewalks has led to deportations for many street vendors who otherwise have never been arrested. It also takes away valuable resources from law enforcement, focusing on the working poor instead of violent crimes in our city.

CHIRLA is also a member of the Los Angeles Street Vendor Campaign, a citywide coalition of more than 40 community-based organizations advocating on behalf of more than 10,000 street vendors in Los Angeles. Street vendors currently operate outside of the formal economy because the City lacks a process that both recognizes and supports these micro-entrepreneurs. Street vending in Los Angeles is part of the history, culture, and economy of our city. Estimates show that there are over 10,000 street vendors in our communities. Food vending offers employment and opportunities for business ownership for thousands of entrepreneurs. These entrepreneurs have been struggling for decades as they experience discrimination, attacks on their livelihood, excessive fines, and even arrests. Our city currently criminalizes sidewalk vendors. We believe that these laws are negatively impacting vendors, community members, and the overall L.A. economy.

Legalizing the vending of food for Los Angeles entrepreneurs will advance small business growth, will help create vibrant and safer neighborhoods, and will expand access to fresh, healthier, and affordable foods.

☐ As a resident, I support the legalization of street vending in the city of Los Angeles, because it will improve the quality of life of vendors and community members. .

☒ As a business owner, I support the legalization of street vending, as I feel it will help the local economy and will help level the playing field between vendors and established businesses.

La venta ambulante en Los Angeles es parte de la historia, cultura y economía de la ciudad. Se estima que hay más de 10,000 vendedores ambulantes en nuestras comunidades. La venta ambulante de comida ofrece empleos y oportunidad de negocio para miles de empresarios. Estos empresarios luchadores por muchos años han sufrido discriminación, ataques contra sus negocios, multas excesivas y hasta encarcelamiento. Las leyes de nuestra ciudad avecés no ayudan al más necesitado si no que obstruyen el crecimiento de la economía local.

La legalización de la venta ambulante de comida para los empresarios de Los Ángeles avanzara el crecimiento de pequeños negocios, va a crear vecindarios más bellos y seguros y ampliara el acceso a comidas frescas, más saludables y económicas.

☐ Como residente, yo apoyo la Legalización de la venta ambulante de comida en la ciudad de Los Ángeles, porque va a mejorar la calidad de vida de vendedores y miembros de la comunidad.

La venta ambulante en Los Angeles es parte de la historia, cultura y economía de la ciudad. Se estima que hay más de 10,000 vendedores ambulantes en nuestras comunidades. La venta ambulante de comida ofrece empleos y oportunidad de negocio para miles de empresarios. Estos empresarios luchadores por muchos años han sufrido discriminación, ataques contra sus negocios, multas excesivas y hasta encarcelamiento. Las leyes de nuestra ciudad avecés no ayudan al más necesitado si no que obstruyen el crecimiento de la economía local.

La legalización de la venta ambulante de comida para los empresarios de Los Ángeles avanzara el crecimiento de pequeños negocios, va a crear vecindarios más bellos y seguros y ampliara el acceso a comidas frescas, más saludables y económicas.

Street Vending in Los Angeles is part of the history, culture, and economy of our city. Estimates show that there are over 10,000 street vendors in our communities. Food vending offers employment and opportunities for business ownership for thousands of entrepreneurs. These entrepreneurs have been struggling for decades as they experience discrimination, attacks on their livelihood, excessive fines, and even arrests. Our city currently criminalizes sidewalk vendors. We believe that these laws are negatively impacting vendors, community members, and the overall L.A. economy.

Legalizing the vending of food for Los Angeles entrepreneurs will advance small business growth, will help create vibrant and safer neighborhoods, and will expand access to fresh, healthier, and affordable foods.

☐ As a resident, I support the legalization of street vending in the city of Los Angeles, because it will improve the quality of life of vendors and community members. .

Food Vending in Los Angeles is part of the history, culture, and economy of our city. Estimates show that there are over 10,000 street vendors in our communities. Food vending offers employment and opportunities for business ownership for thousands of entrepreneurs. These entrepreneurs have been struggling for decades as they experience discrimination, attacks on their livelihood, excessive fines, and even arrests. Our city currently criminalizes sidewalk vendors. We believe that these laws are negatively impacting vendors, community members, and the overall L.A. economy.

Legalizing the vending of food for Los Angeles entrepreneurs will advance small business growth, will help create vibrant and safer neighborhoods, and will expand access to fresh, healthier, and affordable foods.

☐ As a resident, I support the legalization of street vending in the city of Los Angeles, because it will improve the quality of life of vendors and community members. .

☒ As a business owner, I support the legalization of street vending, as I feel it will help the local economy and will help level the playing field between vendors and established businesses.

Street Vending in Los Angeles es parte de la historia, cultura y economía de la ciudad. Se estima que hay más de 10,000 vendedores ambulantes en nuestras comunidades. La venta ambulante de comida ofrece empleos y oportunidad de negocio para miles de empresarios. Estos empresarios luchadores por muchos años han sufrido discriminación, ataques contra sus negocios, multas excesivas y hasta encarcelamiento. Las leyes de nuestra ciudad avecés no ayudan al más necesitado si no que obstruyen el crecimiento de la economía local.

La legalización de la venta ambulante de comida para los empresarios de Los Ángeles avanzara el crecimiento de pequeños negocios, va a crear vecindarios más bellos y seguros y ampliara el acceso a comidas frescas, más saludables y económicas.

☐ Como dueño de un negocio pequeño, apoyo la legalización de la venta ambulante, ya que la regulación de la venta ayudara la economía local y ayudara a nivelar el campo de juego entre vendedores y negocios ya establecidos.

☑ I would like to be informed on the legalize street vending campaign's progress.

☐ I would like to participate in meetings and help move the campaign forward.

Street vending in Los Angeles is part of the history, culture, and economy of our city. Estimates show that there are over 10,000 street vendors in our communities. Food vending offers employment and opportunities for business ownership for thousands of entrepreneurs. These entrepreneurs have been struggling for decades as they experience discrimination, attacks on their livelihood, excessive fines, and even arrests. Our city currently criminalizes sidewalk vendors. We believe that these laws are negatively impacting vendors, community members, and the overall L.A. economy.

Legalizing the vending of food for Los Angeles entrepreneurs will advance small business growth, will help create vibrant and safer neighborhoods, and will expand access to fresh, healthier, and affordable foods.

☐ As a resident, I support the legalization of street vending in the city of Los Angeles, because it will improve the quality of life of vendors and community members. .

☑ As a business owner, I support the legalization of street vending, as I feel it will help the local economy and will help level the playing field between vendors and established businesses.

La venta ambulante en Los Ángeles es parte de la historia, cultura y economía de la ciudad. Se estima que hay más de 10,000 vendedores ambulantes en nuestras comunidades. La venta ambulante de comida ofrece empleos y oportunidad de negocio para miles de empresarios. Estos empresarios luchadores por muchos años han sufrido discriminación, ataques contra sus negocios, multas excesivas y hasta encarcelamiento. Las leyes de nuestra ciudad avecés no ayudan al más necesitado si no que obstruyen el crecimiento de la economía local.

La legalización de la venta ambulante de comida para los empresarios de Los Ángeles avanzara el crecimiento de pequeños negocios, va a crear vecindarios más bellos y seguros y ampliara el acceso a comidas frescas, más saludables y económicas.

☒ Como dueño de un negocio pequeño, apoyo la legalización de la venta ambulante, ya que la regulación de la venta ayudara la economía local y ayudara a nivelar el campo de juego entre vendedores y negocios ya establecidos.

Street vending in Los Angeles is part of the history, culture, and economy of our city. Estimates show that there are over 10,000 street vendors in our communities. Food vending offers employment and opportunities for business ownership for thousands of entrepreneurs. These entrepreneurs have been struggling for decades as they experience discrimination, attacks on their livelihood, excessive fines, and even arrests. Our city currently criminalizes sidewalk vendors. We believe that these laws are negatively impacting vendors, community members, and the overall L.A. economy.

Legalizing the vending of food for Los Angeles entrepreneurs will advance small business growth, will help create vibrant and safer neighborhoods, and will expand access to fresh, healthier, and affordable foods.

☐ As a resident, I support the legalization of street vending in the city of Los Angeles, because it will improve the quality of life of vendors and community members. .

Street vending in Los Angeles is part of the history, culture, and economy of our city. Estimates show that there are over 10,000 street vendors in our communities. Food vending offers employment and opportunities for business ownership for thousands of entrepreneurs. These entrepreneurs have been struggling for decades as they experience discrimination, attacks on their livelihood, excessive fines, and even arrests. Our city currently criminalizes sidewalk vendors. We believe that these laws are negatively impacting vendors, community members, and the overall L.A. economy.

Legalizing the vending of food for Los Angeles entrepreneurs will advance small business growth, will help create vibrant and safer neighborhoods, and will expand access to fresh, healthier, and affordable foods.

☐ As a resident, I support the legalization of street vending in the city of Los Angeles, because it will improve the quality of life of vendors and community members. .

☑ As a business owner, I support the legalization of street vending, as I feel it will help the local economy and will help level the playing field between vendors and established businesses.

Food vending offers employment and opportunities for business ownership for thousands of entrepreneurs. These entrepreneurs have been struggling for decades as they experience discrimination, attacks on their livelihood, excessive fines, and even arrests. Our city currently criminalizes sidewalk vendors. We believe that these laws are negatively impacting vendors, community members, and the overall L.A. economy.

Legalizing the vending of food for Los Angeles entrepreneurs will advance small business growth, will help create vibrant and safer neighborhoods, and will expand access to fresh, healthier, and affordable foods.

La legalización de la venta ambulante de comida para los empresarios de Los Ángeles avanzara el crecimiento de pequeños negocios, va a crear vecindarios más bellos y seguros y ampliara el acceso a comidas frescas, más saludables y económicas.

☐ Como residente, yo apoyo la Legalización de la venta ambulante de comida en la ciudad de Los Ángeles, porque va a mejorar la calidad de vida de vendedores y miembros de la comunidad.

☒ Como dueño de un negocio pequeño, apoyo la legalización de la venta ambulante, ya que la regulación de la venta ayudara la economía local y ayudara a nivelar el campo de juego entre vendedores y negocios ya establecidos.

☒ Me gustaría que me mantengan informada/o sobre la campaña para legalizar la venta ambulante

☒ Me gustaría participar en juntas y ayudar avanzar la campaña.

La venta ambulante en Los Ángeles es parte de la historia, cultura y economía de la ciudad. Se estima que hay más de 10,000 vendedores ambulantes en nuestras comunidades. La venta ambulante de comida ofrece empleos y oportunidad de negocio para miles de empresarios. Estos empresarios luchadores por muchos años han sufrido discriminación, ataques contra sus negocios, multas excesivas y hasta encarcelamiento. Las leyes de nuestra ciudad avecés no ayudan al más necesitado si no que obstruyen el crecimiento de la economía local.

La legalización de la venta ambulante de comida para los empresarios de Los Ángeles avanzara el crecimiento de pequeños negocios, va a crear vecindarios más bellos y seguros y ampliara el acceso a comidas frescas, más saludables y económicas.

Street vending in Los Angeles is part of the history, culture, and economy of our city. Estimates show that there are over 10,000 street vendors in our communities. Food vending offers employment and opportunities for business ownership for thousands of entrepreneurs. These entrepreneurs have been struggling for decades as they experience discrimination, attacks on their livelihood, excessive fines, and even arrests. Our city currently criminalizes sidewalk vendors. We believe that these laws are negatively impacting vendors, community members, and the overall L.A. economy.

Legalizing the vending of food for Los Angeles entrepreneurs will advance small business growth, will help create vibrant and safer neighborhoods, and will expand access to fresh, healthier, and affordable foods.

☐ As a resident, I support the legalization of street vending in the city of Los Angeles, because it will improve the quality of life of vendors and community members. .

☐ As a business owner, I support the legalization of street vending, as I feel it will help the local economy and will help level the playing field between vendors and established businesses.

☒ I would like to be informed on the legalize street vending campaign's progress.

☐ I would like to participate in meetings and help move the campaign forward.

Street vending in Los Angeles is part of the history, culture, and economy of our city. Estimates show that there are over 10,000 street vendors in our communities. Food vending offers employment and opportunities for business ownership for thousands of entrepreneurs. These entrepreneurs have been struggling for decades as they experience discrimination, attacks on their livelihood, excessive fines, and even arrests. Our city currently criminalizes sidewalk vendors. We believe that these laws are negatively impacting vendors, community members, and the overall L.A. economy.

Legalizing the vending of food for Los Angeles entrepreneurs will advance small business growth, will help create vibrant and safer neighborhoods, and will expand access to fresh, healthier, and affordable foods.

☐ As a resident, I support the legalization of street vending in the city of Los Angeles, because it will improve the quality of life of vendors and community members. .

☒ As a business owner, I support the legalization of street vending, as I feel it will help the local economy and will help level the playing field between vendors and established businesses.

La venta ambulante en Los Ángeles es parte de la historia, cultura y economía de la ciudad. Se estima que hay más de 10,000 vendedores ambulantes en nuestras comunidades. La venta ambulante de comida ofrece empleos y oportunidad de negocio para miles de empresarios. Estos empresarios luchadores por muchos años han sufrido discriminación, ataques contra sus negocios, multas excesivas y hasta encarcelamiento. Las leyes de nuestra ciudad avecés no ayudan al más necesitado si no que obstruyen el crecimiento de la economía local.

La legalización de la venta ambulante de comida para los empresarios de Los Ángeles avanzara el crecimiento de pequeños negocios, va a crear vecindarios más bellos y seguros y ampliara el acceso a comidas frescas, más saludables y económicas.

☑ Como dueño de un negocio pequeño, apoyo la legalización de la venta ambulante, ya que la regulación de la venta ayudara la economía local y ayudara a nivelar el campo de juego entre vendedores y negocios ya establecidos.

Street vending in Los Angeles is part of the history, culture, and economy of our city. Estimates show that there are over 10,000 street vendors in our communities. Food vending offers employment and opportunities for business ownership for thousands of entrepreneurs. These entrepreneurs have been struggling for decades as they experience discrimination, attacks on their livelihood, excessive fines, and even arrests. Our city currently criminalizes sidewalk vendors. We believe that these laws are negatively impacting vendors, community members, and the overall L.A. economy.

Legalizing the vending of food for Los Angeles entrepreneurs will advance small business growth, will help create vibrant and safer neighborhoods, and will expand access to fresh, healthier, and affordable foods.

☐ As a resident, I support the legalization of street vending in the city of Los Angeles, because it will improve the quality of life of vendors and community members. .

☒ As a business owner, I support the legalization of street vending, as I feel it will help the local economy and will help level the playing field between vendors and established businesses.

La venta ambulante en Los Ángeles es parte de la historia, cultura y economía de la ciudad. Se estima que hay más de 10,000 vendedores ambulantes en nuestras comunidades. La venta ambulante de comida ofrece empleos y oportunidad de negocio para miles de empresarios. Estos empresarios luchadores por muchos años han sufrido discriminación, ataques contra sus negocios, multas excesivas y hasta encarcelamiento. Las leyes de nuestra ciudad avecés no ayudan al más necesitado si no que obstruyen el crecimiento de la economía local,

La legalización de la venta ambulante de comida para los empresarios de Los Ángeles avanzara el crecimiento de pequeños negocios, va a crear vecindarios más bellos y seguros y ampliara el acceso a comidas frescas, más saludables y económicas.

☑ Como dueño de un negocio pequeño, apoyo la legalización de la venta ambulante, ya que la regulación de la venta ayudara la economía local y ayudara a nivelar el campo de juego entre vendedores y negocios ya establecidos.

Street vending in Los Angeles is part of the history, culture, and economy of our city. Estimates show that there are over 10,000 street vendors in our communities. Food vending offers employment and opportunities for business ownership for thousands of entrepreneurs. These entrepreneurs have been struggling for decades as they experience discrimination, attacks on their livelihood, excessive fines, and even arrests. Our city currently criminalizes sidewalk vendors. We believe that these laws are negatively impacting vendors, community members, and the overall L.A. economy.

Legalizing the vending of food for Los Angeles entrepreneurs will advance small business growth, will help create vibrant and safer neighborhoods, and will expand access to fresh, healthier, and affordable foods.

[illegible] is part of the history, culture, and economy of our city. Estimates show that there are over 10,000 street vendors in our communities. Food vending offers employment and opportunities for business ownership for thousands of entrepreneurs. These entrepreneurs have been struggling for decades as they experience discrimination, attacks on their livelihood, excessive fines, and even arrests. Our city currently criminalizes sidewalk vendors. We believe that these laws are negatively impacting vendors, community members, and the overall L.A. economy.

Legalizing the vending of food for Los Angeles entrepreneurs will advance small business growth, will help create vibrant and safer neighborhoods, and will expand access to fresh, healthier, and affordable foods.

☐ As a resident, I support the legalization of street vending in the city of Los Angeles, because it will improve the quality of life of vendors and community members. .

☑ As a business owner, I support the legalization of street vending, as I feel it will help the local economy and will help level the playing field between vendors and established businesses.

[illegible] es parte de la historia, cultura y economía de la ciudad. Se estima que hay más de 10,000 vendedores ambulantes en nuestras comunidades. La venta ambulante de comida ofrece empleos y oportunidad de negocio para miles de empresarios. Estos empresarios luchadores por muchos años han sufrido discriminación, ataques contra sus negocios, multas excesivas y hasta encarcelamiento. Las leyes de nuestra ciudad avecés no ayudan al más necesitado si no que obstruyen el crecimiento de la economía local.

La legalización de la venta ambulante de comida para los empresarios de Los Ángeles avanzara el crecimiento de pequeños negocios, va a crear vecindarios más bellos y seguros y ampliara el acceso a comidas frescas, más saludables y económicas.

La venta ambulante en Los Ángeles es parte de la historia, cultura y economía de la ciudad. Se estima que hay más de 10,000 vendedores ambulantes en nuestras comunidades. La venta ambulante de comida ofrece empleos y oportunidad de negocio para miles de empresarios. Estos empresarios luchadores por muchos años han sufrido discriminación, ataques contra sus negocios, multas excesivas y hasta encarcelamiento. Las leyes de nuestra ciudad avecés no ayudan al más necesitado si no que obstruyen el crecimiento de la economía local.

La legalización de la venta ambulante de comida para los empresarios de Los Ángeles avanzara el crecimiento de pequeños negocios, va a crear vecindarios más bellos y seguros y ampliara el acceso a comidas frescas, más saludables y económicas.

☐ Como dueño de un negocio pequeño, apoyo la legalización de la venta ambulante, ya que la regulación de la venta ayudara la economía local y ayudara a nivelar el campo de juego entre vendedores y negocios ya establecidos.

Street vending in Los Angeles is part of the history, culture, and economy of our city. Estimates show that there are over 10,000 street vendors in our communities. Food vending offers employment and opportunities for business ownership for thousands of entrepreneurs. These entrepreneurs have been struggling for decades as they experience discrimination, attacks on their livelihood, excessive fines, and even arrests. Our city currently criminalizes sidewalk vendors. We believe that these laws are negatively impacting vendors, community members, and the overall L.A. economy.

Legalizing the vending of food for Los Angeles entrepreneurs will advance small business growth, will help create vibrant and safer neighborhoods, and will expand access to fresh, healthier, and affordable foods.

☐ As a resident, I support the legalization of street vending in the city of Los Angeles, because it will improve the quality of life of vendors and community members. .

☑ As a business owner, I support the legalization of street vending, as I feel it will help the local economy and will help level the playing field between vendors and established businesses.

Street vending in Los Angeles is part of the history, culture, and economy of our city. Estimates show that there are over 10,000 street vendors in our communities. Food vending offers employment and opportunities for business ownership for thousands of entrepreneurs. These entrepreneurs have been struggling for decades as they experience discrimination, attacks on their livelihood, excessive fines, and even arrests. Our city currently criminalizes sidewalk vendors. We believe that these laws are negatively impacting vendors, community members, and the overall L.A. economy.

Legalizing the vending of food for Los Angeles entrepreneurs will advance small business growth, will help create vibrant and safer neighborhoods, and will expand access to fresh, healthier, and affordable foods.

☐ As a resident, I support the legalization of street vending in the city of Los Angeles, because it will improve the quality of life of vendors and community members. .

☑ As a business owner, I support the legalization of street vending, as I feel it will help the local economy and will help level the playing field between vendors and established businesses.

La venta ambulante en Los Ángeles es parte de la historia, cultura y economía de la ciudad. Se estima que hay más de 10,000 vendedores ambulantes en nuestras comunidades. La venta ambulante de comida ofrece empleos y oportunidad de negocio para miles de empresarios. Estos empresarios luchadores por muchos años han sufrido discriminación, ataques contra sus negocios, multas excesivas y hasta encarcelamiento. Las leyes de nuestra ciudad avecés no ayudan al más necesitado si no que obstruyen el crecimiento de la economía local.

La legalización de la venta ambulante de comida para los empresarios de Los Ángeles avanzara el crecimiento de pequeños negocios, va a crear vecindarios más bellos y seguros y ampliara el acceso a comidas frescas, más saludables y económicas.

La venta ambulante en Los Ángeles es parte de la historia, cultura y economía de la ciudad. Se estima que hay más de 10,000 vendedores ambulantes en nuestras comunidades. La venta ambulante de comida ofrece empleos y oportunidad de negocio para miles de empresarios. Estos empresarios luchadores por muchos años han sufrido discriminación, ataques contra sus negocios, multas excesivas y hasta encarcelamiento. Las leyes de nuestra ciudad avecés no ayudan al más necesitado si no que obstruyen el crecimiento de la economía local.

La legalización de la venta ambulante de comida para los empresarios de Los Ángeles avanzara el crecimiento de pequeños negocios, va a crear vecindarios más bellos y seguros y ampliara el acceso a comidas frescas, más saludables y económicas.

The Los Angeles Street Vendor Campaign

Los Angeles is part of the history, culture, and economy of our city. Estimates show that there are over 10,000 street vendors in our communities. Food vending offers employment and opportunities for business ownership for thousands of entrepreneurs. These entrepreneurs have been struggling for decades as they experience discrimination, attacks on their livelihood, excessive fines, and even arrests. Our city currently criminalizes sidewalk vendors. We believe that these laws are negatively impacting vendors, community members, and the overall L.A. economy.

Legalizing the vending of food for Los Angeles entrepreneurs will advance small business growth, will help create vibrant and safer neighborhoods, and will expand access to fresh, healthier, and affordable foods.

☐ As a resident, I support the legalization of street vending in the city of Los Angeles, because it will improve the quality of life of vendors and community members. .

☑ As a business owner, I support the legalization of street vending, as I feel it will help the local economy and will help level the playing field between vendors and established businesses.

Estimado miembro del Consejo,

Yo soy dueño/a de un negocio en su distrito y quiero informarle de mi oposición a la prohibición de venta ambulante, y hacerle saber de mi apoyo a una póliza que establecería un programa de venta ambulante en nuestra ciudad.

Los últimos años and sido muy difíciles para el trabajador Angelino. Miles de familias están recurriendo a la venta ambulante como una forma de ganarse la vida. En el momento la ciudad criminaliza a estos empresarios y utiliza nuestros impuestos escasos para aplicar la ley arbitrariamente. Además, necesitamos una póliza que nivela las leyes para los negocios pequeños ya establecidos. La ciudad debe trabajar con dueños de negocios como yo para crear una póliza que ayuda a revitalizar los corredores de negocios y establece mejor aplicación de la ley. Reconocer al vendedor ambulante como un negocio legítimo les dará a los vendedores responsables y negocios pequeños la oportunidad de trabajar juntos.

Por todas estas razones le pido por favor que diga sí a una póliza de venta ambulante que creara trabajos y también ayudara con mejor aplicación de la ley.

Gracias,

Dear Council member,

I own and operate a business in your district and want to let you know of my opposition to the street vending ban, and my support for a policy that would establish a city-wide vending program.

The job market in Los Angeles is tough. Thousands of families are turning to street vending as a way to make ends meet. Currently, the City criminalizes these entrepreneurs and uses scarce tax payer dollars to do arbitrary enforcement. Furthermore, we need a policy that levels the playing field for brick and mortar businesses. The City should work with business owners like me and vendors to create a policy that helps revitalize corridors and establishes better enforcement of illegal vending. Recognizing street vending as a legitimate business will give responsible vendors and businesses an opportunity to work together.

Again, please say yes to a city wide street vending policy that creates jobs and better enforcement.

Thank you,

I own and operate a business in your district and want to let you know of my opposition to the street vending ban, and my support for a policy that would establish a city-wide vending program.

The job market in Los Angeles is tough. Thousands of families are turning to street vending as a way to make ends meet. Currently, the City criminalizes these entrepreneurs and uses scarce tax payer dollars to do arbitrary enforcement. Furthermore, we need a policy that levels the playing field for brick and mortar businesses. The City should work with business owners like me and vendors to create a policy that helps revitalize corridors and establishes better enforcement of illegal vending. Recognizing street vending as a legitimate business will give responsible vendors and businesses an opportunity to work together.

Again, please say yes to a city wide street vending policy that creates jobs and better enforcement.

Thank you,

Estimado miembro del Consejo,

Yo soy dueño/a de un negocio en su distrito y quiero informarle de mi oposición a la prohibición de venta ambulante, y hacerle saber de mi apoyo a una póliza que establecería un programa de venta ambulante en nuestra ciudad.

Los últimos años and sido muy difíciles para el trabajador Angelino. Miles de familias están recurriendo a la venta ambulante como una forma de ganarse la vida. En el momento la ciudad criminaliza a estos empresarios y utiliza nuestros impuestos escasos para aplicar la ley arbitrariamente. Además, necesitamos una póliza que nivela las leyes para los negocios pequeños ya establecidos. La ciudad debe trabajar con dueños de negocios como yo para crear una póliza que ayuda a revitalizar los corredores de negocios y establece mejor aplicación de la ley. Reconocer al vendedor ambulante como un negocio legítimo les dará a los vendedores responsables y negocios pequeños la oportunidad de trabajar juntos.

Por todas estas razones le pido por favor que diga sí a una póliza de venta ambulante que creara trabajos y también ayudara con mejor aplicación de la ley.

Gracias

Estimado miembro del Consejo,

Yo soy dueño/a de un negocio en su distrito y quiero informarle de mi oposición a la prohibición de venta ambulante, y hacerle saber de mi apoyo a una póliza que establecería un programa de venta ambulante en nuestra ciudad.

Los últimos años and sido muy difíciles para el trabajador Angelino. Miles de familias están recurriendo a la venta ambulante como una forma de ganarse la vida. En el momento la ciudad criminaliza a estos empresarios y utiliza nuestros impuestos escasos para aplicar la ley arbitrariamente. Además, necesitamos una póliza que nivela las leyes para los negocios pequeños ya establecidos. La ciudad debe trabajar con dueños de negocios como yo para crear una póliza que ayuda a revitalizar los corredores de negocios y establece mejor aplicación de la ley. Reconocer al vendedor ambulante como un negocio legítimo les dará a los vendedores responsables y negocios pequeños la oportunidad de trabajar juntos.

Por todas estas razones le pido por favor que diga sí a una póliza de venta ambulante que creara trabajos y también ayudara con mejor aplicación de la ley.

Dear Council member,

I own and operate a business in your district and want to let you know of my opposition to the street vending ban, and my support for a policy that would establish a city-wide vending program.

The job market in Los Angeles is tough. Thousands of families are turning to street vending as a way to make ends meet. Currently, the City criminalizes these entrepreneurs and uses scarce tax payer dollars to do arbitrary enforcement. Furthermore, we need a policy that levels the playing field for brick and mortar businesses. The City should work with business owners like me and vendors to create a policy that helps revitalize corridors and establishes better enforcement of illegal vending. Recognizing street vending as a legitimate business will give responsible vendors and businesses an opportunity to work together.

Again, please say yes to a city wide street vending policy that creates jobs and better enforcement.

Thank you,

Estimado miembro del Consejo,

Yo soy dueño/a de un negocio en su distrito y quiero informarle de mi oposición a la prohibición de venta ambulante, y hacerle saber de mi apoyo a una póliza que establecería un programa de venta ambulante en nuestra ciudad.

Los últimos años and sido muy difíciles para el trabajador Angelino. Miles de familias están recurriendo a la venta ambulante como una forma de ganarse la vida. En el momento la ciudad criminaliza a estos empresarios y utiliza nuestros impuestos escasos para aplicar la ley arbitrariamente. Además, necesitamos una póliza que nivela las leyes para los negocios pequeños ya establecidos. La ciudad debe trabajar con dueños de negocios como yo para crear una póliza que ayuda a revitalizar los corredores de negocios y establece mejor aplicación de la ley. Reconocer al vendedor ambulante como un negocio legítimo les dará a los vendedores responsables y negocios pequeños la oportunidad de trabajar juntos.

Por todas estas razones le pido por favor que diga sí a una póliza de venta ambulante que creara trabajos y también ayudara con mejor aplicación de la ley.

Gracias

Dear Council member,

I own and operate a business in your district and want to let you know of my opposition to the street vending ban, and my support for a policy that would establish a city-wide vending program.

The job market in Los Angeles is tough. Thousands of families are turning to street vending as a way to make ends meet. Currently, the City criminalizes these entrepreneurs and uses scarce tax payer dollars to do arbitrary enforcement. Furthermore, we need a policy that levels the playing field for brick and mortar businesses. The City should work with business owners like me and vendors to create a policy that helps revitalize corridors and establishes better enforcement of illegal vending. Recognizing street vending as a legitimate business will give responsible vendors and businesses an opportunity to work together.

Again, please say yes to a city wide street vending policy that creates jobs and better enforcement.

Estimado miembro del Consejo,

Yo soy dueño/a de un negocio en su distrito y quiero informarle de mi oposición a la prohibición de venta ambulante, y hacerle saber de mi apoyo a una póliza que establecería un programa de venta ambulante en nuestra ciudad.

Los últimos años and sido muy difíciles para el trabajador Angelino. Miles de familias están recurriendo a la venta ambulante como una forma de ganarse la vida. En el momento la ciudad criminaliza a estos empresarios y utiliza nuestros impuestos escasos para aplicar la ley arbitrariamente. Además, necesitamos una póliza que nivela las leyes para los negocios pequeños ya establecidos. La ciudad debe trabajar con dueños de negocios como yo para crear una póliza que ayuda a revitalizar los corredores de negocios y establece mejor aplicación de la ley. Reconocer al vendedor ambulante como un negocio legítimo les dará a los vendedores responsables y negocios pequeños la oportunidad de trabajar juntos.

Por todas estas razones le pido por favor que diga sí a una póliza de venta ambulante que creara trabajos y también ayudara con mejor aplicación de la ley.

Currently, the City criminalizes these entrepreneurs and uses scarce tax payer dollars to do arbitrary enforcement. Furthermore, we need a policy that levels the playing field for brick and mortar businesses. The City should work with business owners like me and vendors to create a policy that helps revitalize corridors and establishes better enforcement of illegal vending. Recognizing street vending as a legitimate business will give responsible vendors and businesses an opportunity to work together.

Again, please say yes to a city wide street vending policy that creates jobs and better enforcement.

Thank you,

I own and operate a business in your district and want to let you know of my opposition to the street vending ban, and my support for a policy that would establish a city-wide vending program.

Estimado miembro del Consejo,

Yo soy dueño/a de un negocio en su distrito y quiero informarle de mi oposición a la prohibición de venta ambulante, y hacerle saber de mi apoyo a una póliza que establecería un programa de venta ambulante en nuestra ciudad.

Los últimos años and sido muy difíciles para el trabajador Angelino. Miles de familias están recurriendo a la venta ambulante como una forma de ganarse la vida. En el momento la ciudad criminaliza a estos empresarios y utiliza nuestros impuestos escasos para aplicar la ley arbitrariamente. Además, necesitamos una póliza que nivela las leyes para los negocios pequeños ya establecidos. La ciudad debe trabajar con dueños de negocios como yo para crear una póliza que ayuda a revitalizar los corredores de negocios y establece mejor aplicación de la ley. Reconocer al vendedor ambulante como un negocio legítimo les dará a los vendedores responsables y negocios pequeños la oportunidad de trabajar juntos.

Por todas estas razones le pido por favor que diga sí a una póliza de venta ambulante que creara trabajos y también ayudara con mejor aplicación de la ley.

Gracias
