Mr. Michael Espinosa

Dear Mr. Espinosa,

Billy the elephant has lived at the Los Angeles Zoo for nearly 30 years, since he was taken as a youngster from his natural environment in Malaysia. For most of this time, he has endured living all by himself in an extremely tiny enclosure. As a result, he has displayed significant signs of stress, such as swaying and rocking side to side and head-bobbing due to frustration, boredom and possibly depression.

Elephants naturally need to roam several miles a day to maintain healthy joints and feet. They are also highly intelligent, sensitive, and social animals who need to be engaged by their surroundings in order to be happy. Billy has none of this.

I am not alone in being worried that Billy will face the same fate as his predecessors at the Los Angeles Zoo, who died prematurely due to conditions elephants often acquire while living in enclosed and cramped quarters.

The Los Angeles Zoo promised to close down the old elephant exhibit and build a bigger, better enclosure for Billy that would be more like his natural environment. But even after the renovations, Billy is still being kept in a tiny area separate from the other elephants. He still displays the same repetitive swaying and head-bobbing behavior that demonstrates his stress, boredom, and depression. Simply rotating the elephants from one small area to another does not give them enough exercise.

This new "state-of-the-art" elephant exhibit is not at all what the L.A. Zoo promised it would be. It seems to me that the new exhibit was built more to impress paying visitors than to meet Billy's needs. I feel betrayed and lied to by the Los Angeles Zoo, and I'm still very much concerned about the fate of Billy.

Please free Billy and send him to an elephant sanctuary.

Sincerely,

Ms. Margarita Martinez

Mr. Michael Espinosa

Dear Mr. Espinosa,

Billy the elephant has lived at the Los Angeles Zoo for nearly 30 years, since he was taken as a youngster from his natural environment in Malaysia. For most of this time, he has endured living all by himself in an extremely tiny enclosure. As a result, he has displayed significant signs of stress, such as swaying and rocking side to side and head-bobbing due to frustration, boredom and possibly depression.

Elephants naturally need to roam several miles a day to maintain healthy joints and feet. They are also highly intelligent, sensitive, and social animals who need to be engaged by their surroundings in order to be happy. Billy has none of this.

I am not alone in being worried that Billy will face the same fate as his predecessors at the Los Angeles Zoo, who died prematurely due to conditions elephants often acquire while living in enclosed and cramped quarters.

The Los Angeles Zoo promised to close down the old elephant exhibit and build a bigger, better enclosure for Billy that would be more like his natural environment. But even after the renovations, Billy is still being kept in a tiny area separate from the other elephants. He still displays the same repetitive swaying and head-bobbing behavior that demonstrates his stress, boredom, and depression. Simply rotating the elephants from one small area to another does not give them enough exercise.

This new "state-of-the-art" elephant exhibit is not at all what the L.A. Zoo promised it would be. It seems to me that the new exhibit was built more to impress paying visitors than to meet Billy's needs. I feel betrayed and lied to by the Los Angeles Zoo, and I'm still very much concerned about the fate of Billy.

Please free Billy and send him to an elephant sanctuary.

Sincerely,

Ms. Cyndi Bush

Well like when I die I don't want to be burry in this state heck no!,
So what makes you people think this elephant or any caged animals want to die in captivity? None....
I am going to go into the forest and die...

Please free Billy and send him to an elephant sanctuary.

This elephant deserves the best life he has left. He needs to be in a place where he can be comfortable and live in as natural setting WITH companionship. This is just so cruel.

Please free Billy and send him to an elephant sanctuary.

Mr. Michael Espinosa

Dear Mr. Espinosa,

Billy the elephant has lived at the Los Angeles Zoo for nearly 30 years, since he was taken as a youngster from his natural environment in Malaysia. For most of this time, he has endured living all by himself in an extremely tiny enclosure. As a result, he has displayed significant signs of stress, such as swaying and rocking side to side and head-bobbing due to frustration, boredom and possibly depression.

Elephants naturally need to roam several miles a day to maintain healthy joints and feet. They are also highly intelligent, sensitive, and social animals who need to be engaged by their surroundings in order to be happy. Billy has none of this.

I am not alone in being worried that Billy will face the same fate as his predecessors at the Los Angeles Zoo, who died prematurely due to conditions elephants often acquire while living in enclosed and cramped quarters.

The Los Angeles Zoo promised to close down the old elephant exhibit and build a bigger, better enclosure for Billy that would be more like his natural environment. But even after the renovations, Billy is still being kept in a tiny area separate from the other elephants. He still displays the same repetitive swaying and head-bobbing behavior that demonstrates his stress, boredom, and depression. Simply rotating the elephants from one small area to another does not give them enough exercise.

This new "state-of-the-art" elephant exhibit is not at all what the L.A. Zoo promised it would be. It seems to me that the new exhibit was built more to impress paying visitors than to meet Billy's needs. I feel betrayed and lied to by the Los Angeles Zoo, and I'm still very much concerned about the fate of Billy.

Please free Billy and send him to an elephant sanctuary.

Sincerely,

Ms. Beverly Harwell

Billy needs to be with his own kind. Elephants are social creatures just like people. It is cruel to keep him isolated!

Please free Billy and send him to an elephant sanctuary.

Mr. Michael Espinosa

Dear Mr. Espinosa,

Billy the elephant has lived at the Los Angeles Zoo for nearly 30 years, since he was taken as a youngster from his natural environment in Malaysia. For most of this time, he has endured living all by himself in an extremely tiny enclosure. As a result, he has displayed significant signs of stress, such as swaying and rocking side to side and head-bobbing due to frustration, boredom and possibly depression.

Elephants naturally need to roam several miles a day to maintain healthy joints and feet. They are also highly intelligent, sensitive, and social animals who need to be engaged by their surroundings in order to be happy. Billy has none of this.

I am not alone in being worried that Billy will face the same fate as his predecessors at the Los Angeles Zoo, who died prematurely due to conditions elephants often acquire while living in enclosed and cramped quarters.

The Los Angeles Zoo promised to close down the old elephant exhibit and build a bigger, better enclosure for Billy that would be more like his natural environment. But even after the renovations, Billy is still being kept in a tiny area separate from the other elephants. He still displays the same repetitive swaying and head-bobbing behavior that demonstrates his stress, boredom, and depression. Simply rotating the elephants from one small area to another does not give them enough exercise.

This new "state-of-the-art" elephant exhibit is not at all what the L.A. Zoo promised it would be. It seems to me that the new exhibit was built more to impress paying visitors than to meet Billy's needs. I feel betrayed and lied to by the Los Angeles Zoo, and I'm still very much concerned about the fate of Billy.

Please free Billy and send him to an elephant sanctuary.

Sincerely,

Ms. christine pelletier

(Dear Clerk, Mr. Espinosa may I ask to have my comments attached to File #17-0453. Thank you!)

Dear Mr. Ryu, Councilmember Price and Councilmember O'Farrell,

Greetings!

As a college student who cares deeply about wildlife, especially elephants, I strongly support the Motion to Release Billy the Elephant to Sanctuary (File #17-0453). I hope you will, too.

Thank you for your time and kind consideration!

Sincerely,
Rebecca Canright

Dear Sir,

I support the Motion to Release Billy the Elephant to Sanctuary (File #17-0453). Please release him to allow him to enjoy a safe and peaceful life with company of his own kind. It is the least you can do for him after all he has given to society.

I would like my comments to be attached to file File #17-0453

Thank you

Assunto: Shut Down the Elephant Exhibit at the Los Angeles Zoo and Release the Elephants to Sanctuary

#FREEBILY

ATT'N MR. DAVID RYU,

As you know, in the Los Angeles Zoo there are captive elephants: on one side of the enclosure are two female Asian elephants, Tina and Jewel, both former victims of the circus industry in their early fifties. On the other side, separated from Tina and Jewel, is Billy, a lone, male Asian elephant. Billy was born in 1985 to a wild elephant herd in Malaysia, and was acquired by the Los Angeles Zoo in 1989, where he has since lived in isolation. He occupies one lonely acre of space where he spends most of his time in a corner swaying and bobbing his head for hours on end.

In the wild, elephants live in complex, social communities and cover hundreds, perhaps, thousands of acres with their herd foraging for food, socializing, playing, and resting, among other activities. In contrast, the elephants in the Los Angeles Zoo have about two acres of usable space surrounded by metal bars and the constant clicking of electric wires. In addition, the two acres are divided into smaller enclosures to keep Billy separate from the females, leaving him with no mental or social stimulation.

Billy has been and continues to be deprived of companionship, mental stimulation, and social learning opportunities. As for the females, they should be living within a closely related herd of 20 – 30 individual elephants of all ages and both sexes.

There is no justification for the captivity of this highly complex, intelligent, and social species, especially since research shows that elephants experience the same psychological reactions to captivity and isolation as humans. How long will we stand by and allow these magnificent creatures to be exploited for entertainment and profit? They have spent their lives in the service of humans. It is time to say enough.

I would like to inform you that I am supporting the Motion to Release Billy the Elephant to Sanctuary (File #17-0453).

Good Afternoon Gentlemen,

The proverbial "cat is out of the bag"! Modern society now knows that captivity is detrimental to the health and well being of the many animals held against their will in zoos. Billy has served the city of Los Angeles well and deserves to live out the remainder of his life in a reputable sanctuary environment where he can emotionally enjoy the companionship of other elephants as well as benefit physically from the spaciousness these refuges can provide.

PLEASE FREE BILLY NOW!

Most Sincerely,

Dona LaSchiava

Special Note To Michael Espinosa: Please File Comments Under File #17-0453. Thank you!

Arts, Parks&River Committee,

Please release Billy the elephant to a sanctuary. He has been at the L.A. Zoo for far too long and in this day and age, no one wants to see elephants abused or exploited, even if they're in zoos and not circuses. The best place for all animals is their natural environment, but if they can't be released into the wild, then a sanctuary would be second best. I hope that you support the motion to release Billy the elephant to a sanctuary.

Thank you,

Hi!

I do support the motion to release Billy the elephant of the L.A zoo to a Sanctuary (File #17-0453), because and after visiting him, I am absolutely convinced that this elephant is not healthy, nor happy at the zoo.

This is a wild animal designed to be in the open space and living in a herd. He's been captive for 28 years at the zoo with only a few zookeepers to keep him company. He is not doing anything natural he's supposed to be doing, everything has to be organised for him. He is broken, I could tell by looking at the size of his enclosure and his moves (3 steps forward, 3 steps backward so on) and his head bobbing.

We teach children that elephants are smart, that elephants walk miles everyday in the wild, that elephants are social animals, that they live in a herd, that elephants have feelings (elephants bury their own deads!) , so it doesn't make any sense to me to keep them captive forever in a small enclosure, that is animal cruelty!

In a sanctuary Billy will finally be able to run around, enjoy the greens, interact with other animals, without being disturbed by the noise of thousands of visitors around him everyday... finally being an elephant!

Zoos are not a solution to what's happening to elephants in Asia or Africa. Human are always responsible, it's apt to us to make a better world and fight (put an end to) animal cruelty, poaching and trophy hunting, everything with political actions.
