Comments for Public Posting: You people are insane and need to be shut down for thinking that it's OK to force someone to rent their personal property or be forced to pay you a fee. You want too much control over people's personal choices. With all the billions of dollars that you are already collecting and continue to pursue, you don't need another funding source that hurt people personally. LA does not have a money problem when it comes to homelessness; LA has a money management and lack of accountability problem. With all the billions that you've already spent and continue to collect, the problem has not been resolved but rather continues to get worse because you don't address root causes or come up with meaningful solutions to avert the true demons that keep this beast alive. You're not going to pay people to fix-up and maintain their personal property or pay a management company to deal with the headache that they don't want in dealing with tenants but rather your solution is to tax them to the point where they could lose the property to fees. Who the hell do you think you are to impose your wants on someone else's personal choice regarding their personal property. You have created a hostile environment whereby some people just don't want to rent out their property and perhaps would keep it to pass down to their heirs. Not everyone wants to go through the emotional trauma that you put landlords through and it is their right and choice not to do so without penalty. Just as it is a woman's right to choose what to do with her own body, it is a property owner's right to choose that to do with their own property; including retaining it for heirs without renting it out in the meantime. People all across industries have always had the right and choice to go out of business or not to business at all, if they wanted to and nobody penalized them.
