Comments for Public Posting: I live in the middle of both of these planned lots. These sites are only 2 miles apart for areas that consist mainly of homes. It is not fair to Eagle Rock, Highland Park, or the part of Pasadena that borders these communities to take on that many homeless people and the crime/ open drug use that comes along with it. And to still allow camping in public spaces along with it is extremely careless. There are several other areas that are not in the middle of residential neighborhoods to build these pallets. When will what is best for tax paying citizens be as important as what is best for the homeless. LA county is covered in trash and needles. Enough is enough. Until laws are enforced none of this will get better. Right now California is doing nothing but welcoming homeless from all over the country and wasting our tax dollars.
