Comments for Public Posting: I am in support of the City's investigation into the feasibility of working remotely and the negative effects of traffic on the environment and air pollution. The Health Commission saw an educational presentation this month from researchers who have studied examples of the four hour work week and telecommuting. I agree with the positives rose by the researchers, who recommend employers allow for telecommuting, staggered work schedules, and a four day work week where employees can complete 100% of their work in 80% of their time at 100% pay, that these measures are all positive for mental health, physical health, community involvement, the environment, and the flow of traffic. I encourage the City Council to pursue this route for the betterment of Angelenos.
