Comments for Public Posting: Rodeo is more than a competition — it is a living tradition. Rooted in agriculture and built on grit, skill, and deep respect for the land and livestock, rodeo reflects the hard work and values that shaped our community. It honors generations of farmers, ranchers, and families who built their lives through perseverance, responsibility, and pride in honest work. Rodeo brings people together across generations. It creates opportunities for youth to learn discipline, commitment, and stewardship. It supports local families, small businesses, and nonprofits, and it contributes meaningfully to our local economy. For many in our community, rodeo is not just entertainment — it is heritage, mentorship, and a pathway for young people to grow into capable, responsible adults. A rodeo is more than an event on the calendar. It is a celebration of who we are — our history, our values, and our shared future. I respectfully urge you to consider the cultural, educational, and economic importance of rodeo as you deliberate.
