Comments for Public Posting: I'm just appalled that it's 2025 and we still have to tell people that it's wrong to hurt others. These poor animals did not volunteer for this. If the "cowboys" want to wrestle and fight something, have them fight each other. It's just infuriating that these poor animals have to suffer UNWILLINGLY and most people will just sit around and act like because it's "normal" that it's okay. I shouldn't have to point out, that at different points in history the collective thought it was okay to own people (slavery), keep people separated for things that don't mean anything (segregation), wiping out a people (holocaust). At some point people came to their senses and put a stop to these things. Someday, hopefully soon, people will realize that animals can feel, and shouldn't be made to feel pain or be exploited for amusement or money. It's not okay. Let's do the right thing and actually BE the ones that are in the right side of things and put a stop to this now.
