Comments for Public Posting: I have lived in Los Angeles all of my life and am opposed to the politicians moving homeless people from all over the country into our neighborhood as if it makes sense. Only someone who wants to destroy our neighborhoods would do this. There are plenty of locations other than our safe neighborhoods that encampments can be constructed. Try using San Clemente's example as a template. Build a huge square area out with fencing and all the facilities to take them in. Tents, bathrooms. security and rules where breaking the law is actually enforced and see how it goes. Most likely they will go some where else may be even home where it is less restricted where they can break laws without any consequences. Common sense seems to be a rare commodity in politics. I am sure there is land and money to complete such a project. I do remember a proposition with billions of dollars for the homeless problem. I am sure there are some people in the private sector that can help with ideas that might actually work. Try looking in other communities where there are not homeless encampments for help. I always say follow the money. Someone has to be making money in all this insanity. I wonder who that might be?

Comments for Public Posting: You must clean up Westchester park. It is unsafe and residents cannot use the park.
