Comments for Public Posting: Why in the world would we choose to destroy native land for non-native animals and plants for a zoo expansion? In a time of climate change and knowing the need to make sustainable choices, are plans to increase tourism really the top priority? Is this a necessary move when the zoo is beautiful and functional the way it is? Make choices that protect the locals. Preserving Griffith Park's native plants and animals is a move that needs to be made. We have enough tourist attractions/changes in Los Angeles, the locals deserve a place to enjoy local, native beauty. Thank you for hearing my concerns.
