Comments for Public Posting: Hi there, my name is Skye Smith and I'm writing in with comment on the third item on this week's agenda, the communication regarding the Housing and Community Development Consolidated Plan for this year. In the National Housing Trust Fund Reference within the plan, under Rehabilitation Standards required for the grantee, it's stated that health and safety must be addressed. One of the major health risks in Los Angeles are the uncapped oil wells. This is evidenced by the numerous health and safety issues caused by the new public housing developments built on top of uncapped wells. How is LA city going to address these deadly health hazards that they are building on top of?
