Comments for Public Posting: As a single individual, I worked VERY hard to afford to buy a home on my own and expect to use the home in a quite neighborhood. I am very concerned about the Planning Department's Housing Element maps that rezone large areas of my single-family neighborhood allowing apartment development. We have miles of underutilized commercial corridors that are the perfect locations for adding needed affordable housing. What will you do to get these maps changed? Middle-class and working-class neighborhoods throughout the city are needlessly being impacted. I ask that these rezoning overlays be removed.
