Comments for Public Posting: As a life long resident, I'm appalled at the conditions in our animal control facilities. I've been involved in animal rescue for five decades and it's worse than I've ever seen it. I realize irresponsible humans are a large part of the issue here because they do not spay/neuter their pets or leave them roam but this is not a new situation and should be factored in when budgeting and planning. Cats are suffering more than dogs right now because animal control is turning them away whether they are strays or surrenders resulting in them being left to fend for themselves. As a city, we must do better. There is always a vanity project on the books that can be scrapped to find funds to support the animals of Los Angeles. We are judged by how we treat animals - let's be judged as kind and humane.

Comments for Public Posting: Asking the Council to task animal services to follow the law and ensure that cats are accepted/taken in at shelters. As someone who lives in the canyon, I have experienced how dangerous it can be for stray cats — who become prey for predators like coyotes — and who suffer injuries from cars and poisoning from rodenticide. Thank you for holding animal services responsible for providing shelter for cats as well as dogs.

Comments for Public Posting: Please make sure our animal services is taking cats not leaving them to fend for themselves on the streets. Our shelters are in crisis I urge you to pass something to help them with this.
