

Communication from Public

Name: Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers - OPPOSE

Date Submitted: 06/20/2022 02:52 PM

Council File No: 22-1100-S3

Comments for Public Posting: Dear Mayor Eric Garcetti and City Council Members, The California Hospitality United Coalition is a broad coalition fighting to protect our hospitality economy and jobs. We are writing to express our opposition to the “Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers” ordinance and urge you to not adopt it outright and rather give voters a say on this important issue. Please see the attached letter below.

CALIFORNIA HOSPITALITY UNITED COALITION

Strengthening the Voice of Business

CALIFORNIA
HISPANIC
CHAMBERS OF COMMERCE

Hotel Association of Los Angeles

CALIFORNIA
BUSINESS
ROUNDTABLE

CALIFORNIA
RESTAURANT
ASSOCIATION

南加州台灣旅館業同業公會
TAIWAN HOTEL & MOTEL ASSOCIATION OF SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

CALIFORNIA
TRAVEL
ASSOCIATION
Tourism's United Voice

CENTURYCITY
CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

UNITED LATINOS
Promoviendo Acción Cívica

June 20, 2022

To: Honorable Mayor Eric Garcetti and City Council Members

Fr: California Hospitality United Coalition

Re: Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers - OPPOSE

The California Hospitality United Coalition is a broad coalition fighting to protect our hospitality economy and jobs - representing social justice organizations, small businesses, and minority chambers of commerce among others. We are writing to express our opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance and urge you to not adopt it outright and rather give voters a say on this important issue.

We all want to protect hotel workers, but that is not what this ordinance is about. The workforce limitations and requirements to provide daily room cleaning would kill hotel green programs and impose room cleaning on guests who don't want it, while eliminating overtime opportunities for housekeepers who rely on the extra income to provide for their families.

Additionally, this proposal has not been evaluated for long-term economic impacts to the Transient Occupancy Tax, and thus, City General Funds. In Long Beach, where a similar measure was passed, there was a dramatic decrease in their TOT revenue following implementation. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are still recovering from the pandemic and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and result in less tax revenue.

Lastly, we are in a water crisis. Now is not the time for the city council to increase water usage in hotels for visitors when Angelenos are being asked to cut their own daily water usage by 35 percent because of the severe drought.

Again, we urge you to give Angelenos the opportunity to vote on this important ordinance.

Sincerely,

Lynn S. Mohrfeld, CAE
President & CEO
California Hotel & Lodging Association

The California Hospitality United Coalition:

California Hotel & Lodging Association
Central City Association of Los Angeles
Century City Chamber of Commerce
Greater Los Angeles Hospitality Association
Hotel Association of Los Angeles
Los Angeles Area Chamber of Commerce
Los Angeles County Business Federation
Taiwan Hotel & Motel Association of Southern California
San Pedro Chamber of Commerce
Valley Industry & Commerce Association
Westside Council of Chambers of Commerce
California Business Roundtable
California Hispanic Chambers of Commerce
California Restaurant Association
California Retailers Association
California Travel Association
Antelope Valley Chambers of Commerce
American Hotel & Lodging Association
Asian American Hotel Owners Association
Asian Industry B2B
Beverly Hills Chamber of Commerce
Burbank Chamber of Commerce
Brea Chamber of Commerce
California Association of Boutique & Breakfast Inns
California Business and Industrial Alliance
California Business Properties Association
California Delta Chambers & Visitors Bureau
California Taxpayers Coalition
California Taxpayer Protection Committee
Costa Mesa Chamber of Commerce
Destination Irvine
El Dorado County Chamber of Commerce
El Dorado Hills Chamber of Commerce
Garden Grove Chamber of Commerce
Greater Riverside Chambers of Commerce
Greater San Fernando Valley Chamber of Commerce
Hispanic Chambers of Commerce San Francisco
Hotel Council of San Francisco
Inland Empire Economic Partnership
Inland Empire Regional Chamber of Commerce
La Canada Flintridge Chamber of Commerce
Long Beach Area Chamber of Commerce

Malibu Chamber of Commerce
National Federation of Independent Business
Oceanside Chamber of Commerce
Petaluma Area Chamber of Commerce
Pomona Chamber of Commerce
Protect Culver City
R Street Sacramento Partnership
Rancho Mirage Chamber of Commerce
Redondo Beach Chamber of Commerce
Regional Chamber of Commerce San Gabriel Valley
Regional Hispanic Chamber of Commerce
San Francisco Filipino American Chamber of Commerce
South Bay Association of Chambers of Commerce
South Orange County Economic Coalition
Travel Santa Ana
Torrance Area Chamber of Commerce
United Latinos Action
West Ventura County Business Alliance
West Hollywood Chamber of Commerce
Visit Greater Palm Springs
Yorba Linda Chamber Of Commerce

Communication from Public

Name: Hotel Association of Los Angeles & Local Hotel Community

Date Submitted: 06/20/2022 05:24 PM

Council File No: 22-1100-S3

Comments for Public Posting: Dear City Council Members: We are writing to express strong opposition to the “Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers” ordinance. We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide – Send it to the ballot. We oppose the measure for the following reasons: This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons. This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small “mom and pop” businesses — making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family. This measure would reduce the City’s vital TOT revenue The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City’s General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles’s hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry’s ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services. Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide – Send it to the ballot. Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Sven Johansson to Council Member Herb Wesson on Jun 17, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Sven Johansson to Council Member Gilbert Cedillo on Jun 17, 2022

--

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Sven Johansson to Marisa Alcaraz on Jun 17, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Sven Johansson to Liz Saldivar on Jun 17, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Sven Johansson to David Hersch on Jun 17, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Sven Johansson to Dennis Gleason on Jun 17, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Sven Johansson to Jenny Chavez on Jun 17, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Sven Johansson to Jeanne Min on Jun 17, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Sven Johansson to Hannah Lee on Jun 17, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Sven Johansson to Chad Molnar on Jun 17, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Sven Johansson to Rachel Brashier on Jun 17, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Sven Johansson to Solomon Rivera on Jun 17, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Sven Johansson to Ackley Padilla on Jun 17, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Sven Johansson to Lisa Hansen on Jun 17, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Sven Johansson to Karo Torossian on Jun 17, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Sven Johansson to Matt Hale on Jun 17, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Sven Johansson to Debby Kim on Jun 17, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Sven Johansson to Jennifer Barraza on Jun 17, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Sven Johansson to Andrea Conant on Jun 17, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Sven Johansson to Council Member Curren Price on Jun 17, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Sven Johansson to Council Member Joe Buscaino on Jun 17, 2022

--

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Sven Johansson to Council Member Monica Rodriguez on Jun 17, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Sven Johansson to Council Member Kevin de Leon on Jun 17, 2022

--

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Sven Johansson to Council Member Nithya Raman on Jun 17, 2022

--

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Sven Johansson to Council Member John Lee on Jun 17, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Sven Johansson to Council Member Paul Krekorian on Jun 17, 2022

--

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Sven Johansson to Council Member Marqueece Harris-Dawson on Jun 17, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Sven Johansson to Council Member Paul Koretz on Jun 17, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Sven Johansson to Council Member Mitch O'Farrell on Jun 17, 2022

--

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Sven Johansson to Council Member Mike Bonin on Jun 17, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Sven Johansson to Council Member Nury Martinez on Jun 17, 2022

--

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Sven Johansson to Council Member Bob Blumenfield on Jun 17, 2022

--

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Kian Zarrinnam to Council Member Herb Wesson on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Kian Zarrinnam to Council Member Gilbert Cedillo on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Kian Zarrinnam to Marisa Alcaraz on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Kian Zarrinnam to Liz Saldivar on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Kian Zarrinnam to David Hersch on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Kian Zarrinnam to Dennis Gleason on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Kian Zarrinnam to Jenny Chavez on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Kian Zarrinnam to Jeanne Min on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Kian Zarrinnam to Hannah Lee on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Kian Zarrinnam to Chad Molnar on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Kian Zarrinnam to Rachel Brashier on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Kian Zarrinnam to Solomon Rivera on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Kian Zarrinnam to Ackley Padilla on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Kian Zarrinnam to Lisa Hansen on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Kian Zarrinnam to Karo Torossian on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Kian Zarrinnam to Matt Hale on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Kian Zarrinnam to Debby Kim on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Kian Zarrinnam to Jennifer Barraza on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Kian Zarrinnam to Andrea Conant on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Kian Zarrinnam to Council Member Curren Price on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Kian Zarrinnam to Council Member Joe Buscaino on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Kian Zarrinnam to Council Member Monica Rodriguez on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Kian Zarrinnam to Council Member Kevin de Leon on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Kian Zarrinnam to Council Member Nithya Raman on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Kian Zarrinnam to Council Member John Lee on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Kian Zarrinnam to Council Member Paul Krekorian on Jun 16, 2022

--

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Kian Zarrinnam to Council Member Marqueece Harris-Dawson on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Kian Zarrinnam to Council Member Paul Koretz on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Kian Zarrinnam to Council Member Mitch O'Farrell on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Kian Zarrinnam to Council Member Mike Bonin on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Kian Zarrinnam to Council Member Nury Martinez on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Kian Zarrinnam to Council Member Bob Blumenfield on Jun 16, 2022

--

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Josh Maldonado to Council Member Herb Wesson on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Josh Maldonado to Council Member Gilbert Cedillo on Jun 16, 2022

--

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Josh Maldonado to Marisa Alcaraz on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Josh Maldonado to Liz Saldivar on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Josh Maldonado to David Hersch on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Josh Maldonado to Dennis Gleason on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Josh Maldonado to Jenny Chavez on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Josh Maldonado to Jeanne Min on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Josh Maldonado to Hannah Lee on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Josh Maldonado to Chad Molnar on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Josh Maldonado to Rachel Brashier on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Josh Maldonado to Solomon Rivera on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Josh Maldonado to Ackley Padilla on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Josh Maldonado to Lisa Hansen on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Josh Maldonado to Karo Torossian on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Josh Maldonado to Matt Hale on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Josh Maldonado to Debby Kim on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Josh Maldonado to Jennifer Barraza on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Josh Maldonado to Andrea Conant on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Josh Maldonado to Council Member Curren Price on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Josh Maldonado to Council Member Joe Buscaino on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Josh Maldonado to Council Member Monica Rodriguez on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Josh Maldonado to Council Member Kevin de Leon on Jun 16, 2022

--

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Josh Maldonado to Council Member Nithya Raman on Jun 16, 2022

--

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Josh Maldonado to Council Member John Lee on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Josh Maldonado to Council Member Paul Krekorian on Jun 16, 2022

--

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Josh Maldonado to Council Member Marqueece Harris-Dawson on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Josh Maldonado to Council Member Paul Koretz on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Josh Maldonado to Council Member Mitch O'Farrell on Jun 16, 2022

--

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Josh Maldonado to Council Member Mike Bonin on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Josh Maldonado to Council Member Nury Martinez on Jun 16, 2022

--

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Josh Maldonado to Council Member Bob Blumenfield on Jun 16, 2022

--

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Rodolfo Gutierrez to Council Member Herb Wesson on Jun 16, 2022

--

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Rodolfo Gutierrez to Council Member Gilbert Cedillo on Jun 16, 2022

--

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Rodolfo Gutierrez to Marisa Alcaraz on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Rodolfo Gutierrez to Liz Saldivar on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Rodolfo Gutierrez to David Hersch on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Rodolfo Gutierrez to Dennis Gleason on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Rodolfo Gutierrez to Jenny Chavez on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Rodolfo Gutierrez to Jeanne Min on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Rodolfo Gutierrez to Hannah Lee on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Rodolfo Gutierrez to Chad Molnar on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Rodolfo Gutierrez to Rachel Brashier on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Rodolfo Gutierrez to Solomon Rivera on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Rodolfo Gutierrez to Ackley Padilla on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Rodolfo Gutierrez to Lisa Hansen on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Rodolfo Gutierrez to Karo Torossian on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Rodolfo Gutierrez to Matt Hale on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Rodolfo Gutierrez to Debby Kim on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Rodolfo Gutierrez to Jennifer Barraza on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Rodolfo Gutierrez to Andrea Conant on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Rodolfo Gutierrez to Council Member Curren Price on Jun 16, 2022

--

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Rodolfo Gutierrez to Council Member Joe Buscaino on Jun 16, 2022

--

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Rodolfo Gutierrez to Council Member Monica Rodriguez on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Rodolfo Gutierrez to Council Member Kevin de Leon on Jun 16, 2022

--

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Rodolfo Gutierrez to Council Member Nithya Raman on Jun 16, 2022

--

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Rodolfo Gutierrez to Council Member John Lee on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Rodolfo Gutierrez to Council Member Paul Krekorian on Jun 16, 2022

--

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Rodolfo Gutierrez to Council Member Marqueece Harris-Dawson on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Rodolfo Gutierrez to Council Member Paul Koretz on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Rodolfo Gutierrez to Council Member Mitch O'Farrell on Jun 16, 2022

--

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Rodolfo Gutierrez to Council Member Mike Bonin on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Rodolfo Gutierrez to Council Member Nury Martinez on Jun 16, 2022

--

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Rodolfo Gutierrez to Council Member Bob Blumenfield on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Andrea Knowles to Council Member Herb Wesson on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Andrea Knowles to Council Member Gilbert Cedillo on Jun 16, 2022

--

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Andrea Knowles to Marisa Alcaraz on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Andrea Knowles to Liz Saldivar on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Andrea Knowles to David Hersch on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Andrea Knowles to Dennis Gleason on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Andrea Knowles to Jenny Chavez on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Andrea Knowles to Jeanne Min on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Andrea Knowles to Hannah Lee on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Andrea Knowles to Chad Molnar on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Andrea Knowles to Rachel Brashier on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Andrea Knowles to Solomon Rivera on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Andrea Knowles to Ackley Padilla on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Andrea Knowles to Lisa Hansen on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Andrea Knowles to Karo Torossian on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Andrea Knowles to Matt Hale on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Andrea Knowles to Debby Kim on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Andrea Knowles to Jennifer Barraza on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Andrea Knowles to Andrea Conant on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Andrea Knowles to Council Member Curren Price on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Andrea Knowles to Council Member Joe Buscaino on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Andrea Knowles to Council Member Monica Rodriguez on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Andrea Knowles to Council Member Kevin de Leon on Jun 16, 2022

--

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Andrea Knowles to Council Member Nithya Raman on Jun 16, 2022

--

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Andrea Knowles to Council Member John Lee on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Andrea Knowles to Council Member Paul Krekorian on Jun 16, 2022

--

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Andrea Knowles to Council Member Marqueece Harris-Dawson on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Andrea Knowles to Council Member Paul Koretz on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Andrea Knowles to Council Member Mitch O'Farrell on Jun 16, 2022

--

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Andrea Knowles to Council Member Mike Bonin on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Andrea Knowles to Council Member Nury Martinez on Jun 16, 2022

--

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Andrea Knowles to Council Member Bob Blumenfield on Jun 16, 2022

--

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Gazi Shahjahan to Council Member Herb Wesson on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Gazi Shahjahan to Council Member Gilbert Cedillo on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Gazi Shahjahan to Marisa Alcaraz on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Gazi Shahjahan to Liz Saldivar on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Gazi Shahjahan to David Hersch on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Gazi Shahjahan to Dennis Gleason on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Gazi Shahjahan to Jenny Chavez on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Gazi Shahjahan to Jeanne Min on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Gazi Shahjahan to Hannah Lee on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Gazi Shahjahan to Chad Molnar on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Gazi Shahjahan to Rachel Brashier on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Gazi Shahjahan to Solomon Rivera on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Gazi Shahjahan to Ackley Padilla on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Gazi Shahjahan to Lisa Hansen on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Gazi Shahjahan to Karo Torossian on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Gazi Shahjahan to Matt Hale on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Gazi Shahjahan to Debby Kim on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Gazi Shahjahan to Jennifer Barraza on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Gazi Shahjahan to Andrea Conant on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Gazi Shahjahan to Council Member Curren Price on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Gazi Shahjahan to Council Member Joe Buscaino on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Gazi Shahjahan to Council Member Monica Rodriguez on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Gazi Shahjahan to Council Member Kevin de Leon on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Gazi Shahjahan to Council Member Nithya Raman on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Gazi Shahjahan to Council Member John Lee on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Gazi Shahjahan to Council Member Paul Krekorian on Jun 16, 2022

--

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Gazi Shahjahan to Council Member Marqueece Harris-Dawson on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Gazi Shahjahan to Council Member Paul Koretz on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Gazi Shahjahan to Council Member Mitch O'Farrell on Jun 16, 2022

--

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Gazi Shahjahan to Council Member Mike Bonin on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Gazi Shahjahan to Council Member Nury Martinez on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Gazi Shahjahan to Council Member Bob Blumenfield on Jun 16, 2022

--

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Bharat Bhakta to Council Member Herb Wesson on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Bharat Bhakta to Council Member Gilbert Cedillo on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Bharat Bhakta to Marisa Alcaraz on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Bharat Bhakta to Liz Saldivar on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Bharat Bhakta to David Hersch on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Bharat Bhakta to Dennis Gleason on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Bharat Bhakta to Jenny Chavez on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Bharat Bhakta to Jeanne Min on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Bharat Bhakta to Hannah Lee on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Bharat Bhakta to Chad Molnar on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Bharat Bhakta to Rachel Brashier on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Bharat Bhakta to Solomon Rivera on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Bharat Bhakta to Ackley Padilla on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Bharat Bhakta to Lisa Hansen on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Bharat Bhakta to Karo Torossian on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Bharat Bhakta to Matt Hale on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Bharat Bhakta to Debby Kim on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Bharat Bhakta to Jennifer Barraza on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Bharat Bhakta to Andrea Conant on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Bharat Bhakta to Council Member Curren Price on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Bharat Bhakta to Council Member Joe Buscaino on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Bharat Bhakta to Council Member Monica Rodriguez on Jun 15, 2022

--

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Bharat Bhakta to Council Member Kevin de Leon on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Bharat Bhakta to Council Member Nithya Raman on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Bharat Bhakta to Council Member John Lee on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Bharat Bhakta to Council Member Paul Krekorian on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Bharat Bhakta to Council Member Marqueece Harris-Dawson on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Bharat Bhakta to Council Member Paul Koretz on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Bharat Bhakta to Council Member Mitch O'Farrell on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Bharat Bhakta to Council Member Mike Bonin on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Bharat Bhakta to Council Member Nury Martinez on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Bharat Bhakta to Council Member Bob Blumenfield on Jun 15, 2022

--

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Michael Dee to Council Member Herb Wesson on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Michael Dee to Council Member Gilbert Cedillo on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Michael Dee to Marisa Alcaraz on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Michael Dee to Liz Saldivar on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Michael Dee to David Hersch on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Michael Dee to Dennis Gleason on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Michael Dee to Jenny Chavez on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Michael Dee to Jeanne Min on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Michael Dee to Hannah Lee on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Michael Dee to Chad Molnar on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Michael Dee to Rachel Brashier on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Michael Dee to Solomon Rivera on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Michael Dee to Ackley Padilla on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Michael Dee to Lisa Hansen on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Michael Dee to Karo Torossian on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Michael Dee to Matt Hale on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Michael Dee to Debby Kim on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Michael Dee to Jennifer Barraza on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Michael Dee to Andrea Conant on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Michael Dee to Council Member Curren Price on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Michael Dee to Council Member Joe Buscaino on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Michael Dee to Council Member Monica Rodriguez on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Michael Dee to Council Member Kevin de Leon on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Michael Dee to Council Member Nithya Raman on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Michael Dee to Council Member John Lee on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Michael Dee to Council Member Paul Krekorian on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Michael Dee to Council Member Marqueece Harris-Dawson on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Michael Dee to Council Member Paul Koretz on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Michael Dee to Council Member Mitch O'Farrell on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Michael Dee to Council Member Mike Bonin on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Michael Dee to Council Member Nury Martinez on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Michael Dee to Council Member Bob Blumenfield on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Mary Banzon to Council Member Herb Wesson on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Mary Banzon to Council Member Gilbert Cedillo on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Mary Banzon to Marisa Alcaraz on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Mary Banzon to Liz Saldivar on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Mary Banzon to David Hersch on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Mary Banzon to Dennis Gleason on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Mary Banzon to Jenny Chavez on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Mary Banzon to Jeanne Min on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Mary Banzon to Hannah Lee on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Mary Banzon to Chad Molnar on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Mary Banzon to Rachel Brashier on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Mary Banzon to Solomon Rivera on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Mary Banzon to Ackley Padilla on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Mary Banzon to Lisa Hansen on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Mary Banzon to Karo Torossian on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Mary Banzon to Matt Hale on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Mary Banzon to Debby Kim on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Mary Banzon to Jennifer Barraza on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Mary Banzon to Andrea Conant on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Mary Banzon to Council Member Curren Price on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Mary Banzon to Council Member Joe Buscaino on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Mary Banzon to Council Member Monica Rodriguez on Jun 15, 2022

--

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Mary Banzon to Council Member Kevin de Leon on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Mary Banzon to Council Member Nithya Raman on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Mary Banzon to Council Member John Lee on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Mary Banzon to Council Member Paul Krekorian on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Mary Banzon to Council Member Marqueece Harris-Dawson on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Mary Banzon to Council Member Paul Koretz on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Mary Banzon to Council Member Mitch O'Farrell on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Mary Banzon to Council Member Mike Bonin on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Mary Banzon to Council Member Nury Martinez on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Mary Banzon to Council Member Bob Blumenfield on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Steven Dodar to Council Member Herb Wesson on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Steven Dodar to Council Member Gilbert Cedillo on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Steven Dodar to Marisa Alcaraz on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Steven Dodar to Liz Saldivar on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Steven Dodar to David Hersch on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Steven Dodar to Dennis Gleason on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Steven Dodar to Jenny Chavez on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Steven Dodar to Jeanne Min on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Steven Dodar to Hannah Lee on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Steven Dodar to Chad Molnar on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Steven Dodar to Rachel Brashier on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Steven Dodar to Solomon Rivera on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Steven Dodar to Ackley Padilla on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Steven Dodar to Lisa Hansen on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Steven Dodar to Karo Torossian on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Steven Dodar to Matt Hale on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Steven Dodar to Debby Kim on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Steven Dodar to Jennifer Barraza on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Steven Dodar to Andrea Conant on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Steven Dodar to Council Member Curren Price on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Steven Dodar to Council Member Joe Buscaino on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Steven Dodar to Council Member Monica Rodriguez on Jun 15, 2022

--

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Steven Dodar to Council Member Kevin de Leon on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Steven Dodar to Council Member Nithya Raman on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Steven Dodar to Council Member John Lee on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Steven Dodar to Council Member Paul Krekorian on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Steven Dodar to Council Member Marqueece Harris-Dawson on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Steven Dodar to Council Member Paul Koretz on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Steven Dodar to Council Member Mitch O'Farrell on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Steven Dodar to Council Member Mike Bonin on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Steven Dodar to Council Member Nury Martinez on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Steven Dodar to Council Member Bob Blumenfield on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Bronte' Nersessian to Council Member Herb Wesson on Jun 15, 2022

--

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Bronte' Nersessian to Council Member Gilbert Cedillo on Jun 15, 2022

--

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Bronte' Nersessian to Marisa Alcaraz on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Bronte' Nersessian to Liz Saldivar on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Bronte' Nersessian to David Hersch on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Bronte' Nersessian to Dennis Gleason on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Bronte' Nersessian to Jenny Chavez on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Bronte' Nersessian to Jeanne Min on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Bronte' Nersessian to Hannah Lee on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Bronte' Nersessian to Chad Molnar on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Bronte' Nersessian to Rachel Brashier on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Bronte' Nersessian to Solomon Rivera on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Bronte' Nersessian to Ackley Padilla on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Bronte' Nersessian to Lisa Hansen on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Bronte' Nersessian to Karo Torossian on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Bronte' Nersessian to Matt Hale on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Bronte' Nersessian to Debby Kim on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Bronte' Nersessian to Jennifer Barraza on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Bronte' Nersessian to Andrea Conant on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Bronte' Nersessian to Council Member Curren Price on Jun 15, 2022

--

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Bronte' Nersessian to Council Member Joe Buscaino on Jun 15, 2022

--

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Bronte' Nersessian to Council Member Monica Rodriguez on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Bronte' Nersessian to Council Member Kevin de Leon on Jun 15, 2022

--

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Bronte' Nersessian to Council Member Nithya Raman on Jun 15, 2022

--

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Bronte' Nersessian to Council Member John Lee on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Bronte' Nersessian to Council Member Paul Krekorian on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Bronte' Nersessian to Council Member Marqueece Harris-Dawson on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Bronte' Nersessian to Council Member Paul Koretz on Jun 15, 2022

--

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Bronte' Nersessian to Council Member Mitch O'Farrell on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Bronte' Nersessian to Council Member Mike Bonin on Jun 15, 2022

--

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Bronte' Nersessian to Council Member Nury Martinez on Jun 15, 2022

--

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Bronte' Nersessian to Council Member Bob Blumenfield on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Grant Coonley to Council Member Herb Wesson on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Grant Coonley to Council Member Gilbert Cedillo on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Grant Coonley to Marisa Alcaraz on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Grant Coonley to Liz Saldivar on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Grant Coonley to David Hersch on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Grant Coonley to Dennis Gleason on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Grant Coonley to Jenny Chavez on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Grant Coonley to Jeanne Min on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Grant Coonley to Hannah Lee on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Grant Coonley to Chad Molnar on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Grant Coonley to Rachel Brashier on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Grant Coonley to Solomon Rivera on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Grant Coonley to Ackley Padilla on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Grant Coonley to Lisa Hansen on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Grant Coonley to Karo Torossian on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Grant Coonley to Matt Hale on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Grant Coonley to Debby Kim on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Grant Coonley to Jennifer Barraza on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Grant Coonley to Andrea Conant on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Grant Coonley to Council Member Curren Price on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Grant Coonley to Council Member Joe Buscaino on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Grant Coonley to Council Member Monica Rodriguez on Jun 15, 2022

--

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Grant Coonley to Council Member Kevin de Leon on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Grant Coonley to Council Member Nithya Raman on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Grant Coonley to Council Member John Lee on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Grant Coonley to Council Member Paul Krekorian on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Grant Coonley to Council Member Marqueece Harris-Dawson on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Grant Coonley to Council Member Paul Koretz on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Grant Coonley to Council Member Mitch O'Farrell on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Grant Coonley to Council Member Mike Bonin on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Grant Coonley to Council Member Nury Martinez on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Grant Coonley to Council Member Bob Blumenfield on Jun 15, 2022

--

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from mark goldrup to Council Member Herb Wesson on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from mark goldrup to Council Member Gilbert Cedillo on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from mark goldrup to Marisa Alcaraz on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from mark goldrup to Liz Saldivar on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from mark goldrup to David Hersch on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from mark goldrup to Dennis Gleason on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from mark goldrup to Jenny Chavez on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from mark goldrup to Jeanne Min on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from mark goldrup to Hannah Lee on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from mark goldrup to Chad Molnar on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from mark goldrup to Rachel Brashier on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from mark goldrup to Solomon Rivera on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from mark goldrup to Ackley Padilla on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from mark goldrup to Lisa Hansen on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from mark goldrup to Karo Torossian on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from mark goldrup to Matt Hale on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from mark goldrup to Debby Kim on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from mark goldrup to Jennifer Barraza on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from mark goldrup to Andrea Conant on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from mark goldrup to Council Member Curren Price on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from mark goldrup to Council Member Joe Buscaino on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from mark goldrup to Council Member Monica Rodriguez on Jun 15, 2022

--

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from mark goldrup to Council Member Kevin de Leon on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from mark goldrup to Council Member Nithya Raman on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from mark goldrup to Council Member John Lee on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from mark goldrup to Council Member Paul Krekorian on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from mark goldrup to Council Member Marqueece Harris-Dawson on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from mark goldrup to Council Member Paul Koretz on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from mark goldrup to Council Member Mitch O'Farrell on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from mark goldrup to Council Member Mike Bonin on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from mark goldrup to Council Member Nury Martinez on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from mark goldrup to Council Member Bob Blumenfield on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from veronica Rosales to Council Member Herb Wesson on Jun 15, 2022

--

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from veronica Rosales to Council Member Gilbert Cedillo on Jun 15, 2022

--

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from veronica Rosales to Marisa Alcaraz on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from veronica Rosales to Liz Saldivar on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from veronica Rosales to David Hersch on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from veronica Rosales to Dennis Gleason on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from veronica Rosales to Jenny Chavez on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from veronica Rosales to Jeanne Min on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from veronica Rosales to Hannah Lee on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from veronica Rosales to Chad Molnar on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from veronica Rosales to Rachel Brashier on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from veronica Rosales to Solomon Rivera on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from veronica Rosales to Ackley Padilla on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from veronica Rosales to Lisa Hansen on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from veronica Rosales to Karo Torossian on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from veronica Rosales to Matt Hale on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from veronica Rosales to Debby Kim on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from veronica Rosales to Jennifer Barraza on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from veronica Rosales to Andrea Conant on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from veronica Rosales to Council Member Curren Price on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from veronica Rosales to Council Member Joe Buscaino on Jun 15, 2022

--

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from veronica Rosales to Council Member Monica Rodriguez on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from veronica Rosales to Council Member Kevin de Leon on Jun 15, 2022

--

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from veronica Rosales to Council Member Nithya Raman on Jun 15, 2022

--

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from veronica Rosales to Council Member John Lee on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from veronica Rosales to Council Member Paul Krekorian on Jun 15, 2022

--

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from veronica Rosales to Council Member Marqueece Harris-Dawson on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from veronica Rosales to Council Member Paul Koretz on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from veronica Rosales to Council Member Mitch O'Farrell on Jun 15, 2022

--

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from veronica Rosales to Council Member Mike Bonin on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from veronica Rosales to Council Member Nury Martinez on Jun 15, 2022

--

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from veronica Rosales to Council Member Bob Blumenfield on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Maria De Miranda to Council Member Herb Wesson on Jun 15, 2022

--

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Maria De Miranda to Council Member Gilbert Cedillo on Jun 15, 2022

--

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Maria De Miranda to Marisa Alcaraz on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Maria De Miranda to Liz Saldivar on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Maria De Miranda to David Hersch on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Maria De Miranda to Dennis Gleason on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Maria De Miranda to Jenny Chavez on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Maria De Miranda to Jeanne Min on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Maria De Miranda to Hannah Lee on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Maria De Miranda to Chad Molnar on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Maria De Miranda to Rachel Brashier on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Maria De Miranda to Solomon Rivera on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Maria De Miranda to Ackley Padilla on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Maria De Miranda to Lisa Hansen on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Maria De Miranda to Karo Torossian on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Maria De Miranda to Matt Hale on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Maria De Miranda to Debby Kim on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Maria De Miranda to Jennifer Barraza on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Maria De Miranda to Andrea Conant on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Maria De Miranda to Council Member Curren Price on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Maria De Miranda to Council Member Joe Buscaino on Jun 15, 2022

--

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Maria De Miranda to Council Member Monica Rodriguez on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Maria De Miranda to Council Member Kevin de Leon on Jun 15, 2022

--

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Maria De Miranda to Council Member Nithya Raman on Jun 15, 2022

--

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Maria De Miranda to Council Member John Lee on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Maria De Miranda to Council Member Paul Krekorian on Jun 15, 2022

--

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Maria De Miranda to Council Member Marqueece Harris-Dawson on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Maria De Miranda to Council Member Paul Koretz on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Maria De Miranda to Council Member Mitch O'Farrell on Jun 15, 2022

--

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Maria De Miranda to Council Member Mike Bonin on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Maria De Miranda to Council Member Nury Martinez on Jun 15, 2022

--

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Maria De Miranda to Council Member Bob Blumenfield on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Irma Silva to Council Member Herb Wesson on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Irma Silva to Council Member Gilbert Cedillo on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Irma Silva to Marisa Alcaraz on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Irma Silva to Liz Saldivar on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Irma Silva to David Hersch on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Irma Silva to Dennis Gleason on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Irma Silva to Jenny Chavez on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Irma Silva to Jeanne Min on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Irma Silva to Hannah Lee on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Irma Silva to Chad Molnar on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Irma Silva to Rachel Brashier on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Irma Silva to Solomon Rivera on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Irma Silva to Ackley Padilla on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Irma Silva to Lisa Hansen on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Irma Silva to Karo Torossian on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Irma Silva to Matt Hale on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Irma Silva to Debby Kim on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Irma Silva to Jennifer Barraza on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Irma Silva to Andrea Conant on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Irma Silva to Council Member Curren Price on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Irma Silva to Council Member Joe Buscaino on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Irma Silva to Council Member Monica Rodriguez on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Irma Silva to Council Member Kevin de Leon on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Irma Silva to Council Member Nithya Raman on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Irma Silva to Council Member John Lee on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Irma Silva to Council Member Paul Krekorian on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Irma Silva to Council Member Marqueece Harris-Dawson on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Irma Silva to Council Member Paul Koretz on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Irma Silva to Council Member Mitch O'Farrell on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Irma Silva to Council Member Mike Bonin on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Irma Silva to Council Member Nury Martinez on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Irma Silva to Council Member Bob Blumenfield on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Ermias Mekuria to Council Member Herb Wesson on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Ermias Mekuria to Council Member Gilbert Cedillo on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Ermias Mekuria to Marisa Alcaraz on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Ermias Mekuria to Liz Saldivar on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Ermias Mekuria to David Hersch on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Ermias Mekuria to Dennis Gleason on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Ermias Mekuria to Jenny Chavez on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Ermias Mekuria to Jeanne Min on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Ermias Mekuria to Hannah Lee on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Ermias Mekuria to Chad Molnar on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Ermias Mekuria to Rachel Brashier on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Ermias Mekuria to Solomon Rivera on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Ermias Mekuria to Ackley Padilla on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Ermias Mekuria to Lisa Hansen on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Ermias Mekuria to Karo Torossian on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Ermias Mekuria to Matt Hale on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Ermias Mekuria to Debby Kim on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Ermias Mekuria to Jennifer Barraza on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Ermias Mekuria to Andrea Conant on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Ermias Mekuria to Council Member Curren Price on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Ermias Mekuria to Council Member Joe Buscaino on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Ermias Mekuria to Council Member Monica Rodriguez on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Ermias Mekuria to Council Member Kevin de Leon on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Ermias Mekuria to Council Member Nithya Raman on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Ermias Mekuria to Council Member John Lee on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Ermias Mekuria to Council Member Paul Krekorian on Jun 15, 2022

--

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Ermias Mekuria to Council Member Marqueece Harris-Dawson on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Ermias Mekuria to Council Member Paul Koretz on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Ermias Mekuria to Council Member Mitch O'Farrell on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Ermias Mekuria to Council Member Mike Bonin on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Ermias Mekuria to Council Member Nury Martinez on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Ermias Mekuria to Council Member Bob Blumenfield on Jun 15, 2022

--

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Rajesh Patel to Council Member Herb Wesson on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Rajesh Patel to Council Member Gilbert Cedillo on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Rajesh Patel to Marisa Alcaraz on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Rajesh Patel to Liz Saldivar on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Rajesh Patel to David Hersch on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Rajesh Patel to Dennis Gleason on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Rajesh Patel to Jenny Chavez on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Rajesh Patel to Jeanne Min on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Rajesh Patel to Hannah Lee on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Rajesh Patel to Chad Molnar on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Rajesh Patel to Rachel Brashier on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Rajesh Patel to Solomon Rivera on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Rajesh Patel to Ackley Padilla on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Rajesh Patel to Lisa Hansen on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Rajesh Patel to Karo Torossian on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Rajesh Patel to Matt Hale on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Rajesh Patel to Debby Kim on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Rajesh Patel to Jennifer Barraza on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Rajesh Patel to Andrea Conant on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Rajesh Patel to Council Member Curren Price on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Rajesh Patel to Council Member Joe Buscaino on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Rajesh Patel to Council Member Monica Rodriguez on Jun 15, 2022

--

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Rajesh Patel to Council Member Kevin de Leon on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Rajesh Patel to Council Member Nithya Raman on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Rajesh Patel to Council Member John Lee on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Rajesh Patel to Council Member Paul Krekorian on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Rajesh Patel to Council Member Marqueece Harris-Dawson on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Rajesh Patel to Council Member Paul Koretz on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Rajesh Patel to Council Member Mitch O'Farrell on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Rajesh Patel to Council Member Mike Bonin on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Rajesh Patel to Council Member Nury Martinez on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Rajesh Patel to Council Member Bob Blumenfield on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Irma Saguache to Council Member Herb Wesson on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Irma Saguache to Council Member Gilbert Cedillo on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Irma Saguache to Marisa Alcaraz on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Irma Saguache to Liz Saldivar on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Irma Saguache to David Hersch on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Irma Saguache to Dennis Gleason on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Irma Saguache to Jenny Chavez on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Irma Saguache to Jeanne Min on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Irma Saguache to Hannah Lee on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Irma Saguache to Chad Molnar on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Irma Saguache to Rachel Brashier on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Irma Saguache to Solomon Rivera on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Irma Saguache to Ackley Padilla on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Irma Saguache to Lisa Hansen on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Irma Saguache to Karo Torossian on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Irma Saguache to Matt Hale on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Irma Saguache to Debby Kim on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Irma Saguache to Jennifer Barraza on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Irma Saguache to Andrea Conant on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Irma Saguache to Council Member Curren Price on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Irma Saguache to Council Member Joe Buscaino on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Irma Saguache to Council Member Monica Rodriguez on Jun 15, 2022

--

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Irma Saguache to Council Member Kevin de Leon on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Irma Saguache to Council Member Nithya Raman on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Irma Saguache to Council Member John Lee on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Irma Saguache to Council Member Paul Krekorian on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Irma Saguache to Council Member Marqueece Harris-Dawson on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Irma Saguache to Council Member Paul Koretz on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Irma Saguache to Council Member Mitch O'Farrell on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Irma Saguache to Council Member Mike Bonin on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Irma Saguache to Council Member Nury Martinez on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Irma Saguache to Council Member Bob Blumenfield on Jun 15, 2022

--

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from gus graf to Council Member Herb Wesson on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from gus graf to Council Member Gilbert Cedillo on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from gus graf to Marisa Alcaraz on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from gus graf to Liz Saldivar on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from gus graf to David Hersch on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from gus graf to Dennis Gleason on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from gus graf to Jenny Chavez on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from gus graf to Jeanne Min on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from gus graf to Hannah Lee on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from gus graf to Chad Molnar on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from gus graf to Rachel Brashier on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from gus graf to Solomon Rivera on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from gus graf to Ackley Padilla on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from gus graf to Lisa Hansen on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from gus graf to Karo Torossian on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from gus graf to Matt Hale on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from gus graf to Debby Kim on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from gus graf to Jennifer Barraza on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from gus graf to Andrea Conant on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from gus graf to Council Member Curren Price on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from gus graf to Council Member Joe Buscaino on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from gus graf to Council Member Monica Rodriguez on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from gus graf to Council Member Kevin de Leon on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from gus graf to Council Member Nithya Raman on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from gus graf to Council Member John Lee on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from gus graf to Council Member Paul Krekorian on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from gus graf to Council Member Marqueece Harris-Dawson on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from gus graf to Council Member Paul Koretz on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from gus graf to Council Member Mitch O'Farrell on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from gus graf to Council Member Mike Bonin on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from gus graf to Council Member Nury Martinez on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from gus graf to Council Member Bob Blumenfield on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Criss Draper to Council Member Herb Wesson on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Criss Draper to Council Member Gilbert Cedillo on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Criss Draper to Marisa Alcaraz on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Criss Draper to Liz Saldivar on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Criss Draper to David Hersch on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Criss Draper to Dennis Gleason on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Criss Draper to Jenny Chavez on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Criss Draper to Jeanne Min on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Criss Draper to Hannah Lee on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Criss Draper to Chad Molnar on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Criss Draper to Rachel Brashier on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Criss Draper to Solomon Rivera on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Criss Draper to Ackley Padilla on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Criss Draper to Lisa Hansen on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Criss Draper to Karo Torossian on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Criss Draper to Matt Hale on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Criss Draper to Debby Kim on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Criss Draper to Jennifer Barraza on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Criss Draper to Andrea Conant on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Criss Draper to Council Member Curren Price on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Criss Draper to Council Member Joe Buscaino on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Criss Draper to Council Member Monica Rodriguez on Jun 15, 2022

--

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Criss Draper to Council Member Kevin de Leon on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Criss Draper to Council Member Nithya Raman on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Criss Draper to Council Member John Lee on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Criss Draper to Council Member Paul Krekorian on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Criss Draper to Council Member Marqueece Harris-Dawson on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Criss Draper to Council Member Paul Koretz on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Criss Draper to Council Member Mitch O'Farrell on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Criss Draper to Council Member Mike Bonin on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Criss Draper to Council Member Nury Martinez on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Criss Draper to Council Member Bob Blumenfield on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Andy Patel to Council Member Herb Wesson on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Andy Patel to Council Member Gilbert Cedillo on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Andy Patel to Marisa Alcaraz on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Andy Patel to Liz Saldivar on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Andy Patel to David Hersch on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Andy Patel to Dennis Gleason on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Andy Patel to Jenny Chavez on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Andy Patel to Jeanne Min on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Andy Patel to Hannah Lee on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Andy Patel to Chad Molnar on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Andy Patel to Rachel Brashier on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Andy Patel to Solomon Rivera on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Andy Patel to Ackley Padilla on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Andy Patel to Lisa Hansen on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Andy Patel to Karo Torossian on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Andy Patel to Matt Hale on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Andy Patel to Debby Kim on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Andy Patel to Jennifer Barraza on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Andy Patel to Andrea Conant on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Andy Patel to Council Member Curren Price on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Andy Patel to Council Member Joe Buscaino on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Andy Patel to Council Member Monica Rodriguez on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Andy Patel to Council Member Kevin de Leon on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Andy Patel to Council Member Nithya Raman on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Andy Patel to Council Member John Lee on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Andy Patel to Council Member Paul Krekorian on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Andy Patel to Council Member Marqueece Harris-Dawson on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Andy Patel to Council Member Paul Koretz on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Andy Patel to Council Member Mitch O'Farrell on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Andy Patel to Council Member Mike Bonin on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Andy Patel to Council Member Nury Martinez on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Andy Patel to Council Member Bob Blumenfield on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Laurie Dew to Council Member Herb Wesson on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Laurie Dew to Council Member Gilbert Cedillo on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Laurie Dew to Marisa Alcaraz on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Laurie Dew to Liz Saldivar on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Laurie Dew to David Hersch on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Laurie Dew to Dennis Gleason on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Laurie Dew to Jenny Chavez on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Laurie Dew to Jeanne Min on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Laurie Dew to Hannah Lee on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Laurie Dew to Chad Molnar on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Laurie Dew to Rachel Brashier on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Laurie Dew to Solomon Rivera on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Laurie Dew to Ackley Padilla on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Laurie Dew to Lisa Hansen on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Laurie Dew to Karo Torossian on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Laurie Dew to Matt Hale on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Laurie Dew to Debby Kim on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Laurie Dew to Jennifer Barraza on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Laurie Dew to Andrea Conant on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Laurie Dew to Council Member Curren Price on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Laurie Dew to Council Member Joe Buscaino on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Laurie Dew to Council Member Monica Rodriguez on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Laurie Dew to Council Member Kevin de Leon on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Laurie Dew to Council Member Nithya Raman on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Laurie Dew to Council Member John Lee on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Laurie Dew to Council Member Paul Krekorian on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Laurie Dew to Council Member Marqueece Harris-Dawson on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Laurie Dew to Council Member Paul Koretz on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Laurie Dew to Council Member Mitch O'Farrell on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Laurie Dew to Council Member Mike Bonin on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Laurie Dew to Council Member Nury Martinez on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Laurie Dew to Council Member Bob Blumenfield on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Kiran Patel to Council Member Herb Wesson on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Kiran Patel to Council Member Gilbert Cedillo on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Kiran Patel to Marisa Alcaraz on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Kiran Patel to Liz Saldivar on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Kiran Patel to David Hersch on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Kiran Patel to Dennis Gleason on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Kiran Patel to Jenny Chavez on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Kiran Patel to Jeanne Min on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Kiran Patel to Hannah Lee on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Kiran Patel to Chad Molnar on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Kiran Patel to Rachel Brashier on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Kiran Patel to Solomon Rivera on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Kiran Patel to Ackley Padilla on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Kiran Patel to Lisa Hansen on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Kiran Patel to Karo Torossian on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Kiran Patel to Matt Hale on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Kiran Patel to Debby Kim on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Kiran Patel to Jennifer Barraza on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Kiran Patel to Andrea Conant on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Kiran Patel to Council Member Curren Price on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Kiran Patel to Council Member Joe Buscaino on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Kiran Patel to Council Member Monica Rodriguez on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Kiran Patel to Council Member Kevin de Leon on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Kiran Patel to Council Member Nithya Raman on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Kiran Patel to Council Member John Lee on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Kiran Patel to Council Member Paul Krekorian on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Kiran Patel to Council Member Marqueece Harris-Dawson on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Kiran Patel to Council Member Paul Koretz on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Kiran Patel to Council Member Mitch O'Farrell on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Kiran Patel to Council Member Mike Bonin on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Kiran Patel to Council Member Nury Martinez on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Kiran Patel to Council Member Bob Blumenfield on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from libby zarrahy to Council Member Herb Wesson on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from libby zarrah to Council Member Gilbert Cedillo on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from libby zarrahy to Marisa Alcaraz on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from libby zarrahy to Liz Saldivar on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from libby zarrahy to David Hersch on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from libby zarrahy to Dennis Gleason on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from libby zarrah to Jenny Chavez on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from libby zarrahy to Jeanne Min on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from libby zarrahy to Hannah Lee on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from libby zarrahy to Chad Molnar on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from libby zarrahy to Rachel Brashier on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from libby zarrah to Solomon Rivera on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from libby zarrahy to Ackley Padilla on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from libby zarrahy to Lisa Hansen on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from libby zarrahy to Karo Torossian on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from libby zarrahy to Matt Hale on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from libby zarrahy to Debby Kim on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from libby zarrahy to Jennifer Barraza on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from libby zarrahy to Andrea Conant on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from libby zarrah to Council Member Curren Price on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from libby zarrah to Council Member Joe Buscaino on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from libby zarrah to Council Member Monica Rodriguez on Jun 15, 2022

--

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from libby zarrah to Council Member Kevin de Leon on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from libby zarrah to Council Member Nithya Raman on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from libby zarrahy to Council Member John Lee on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from libby zarrah to Council Member Paul Krekorian on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from libby zarrah to Council Member Marqueece Harris-Dawson on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from libby zarrahy to Council Member Paul Koretz on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from libby zarrah to Council Member Mitch O'Farrell on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from libby zarrahy to Council Member Mike Bonin on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from libby zarrah to Council Member Nury Martinez on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from libby zarrahy to Council Member Bob Blumenfield on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Michelle Steiner to Council Member Herb Wesson on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Michelle Steiner to Council Member Gilbert Cedillo on Jun 16, 2022

--

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Michelle Steiner to Council Member Herb Wesson on Jun 15, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Michelle Steiner to Council Member Gilbert Cedillo on Jun 15, 2022

--

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

-- Sent from Michelle Steiner to Marisa Alcaraz on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Michelle Steiner to Liz Saldivar on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Michelle Steiner to David Hersch on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Michelle Steiner to Dennis Gleason on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Michelle Steiner to Jenny Chavez on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Michelle Steiner to Jeanne Min on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Michelle Steiner to Hannah Lee on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Michelle Steiner to Chad Molnar on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Michelle Steiner to Rachel Brashier on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

This measure would reduce the City's vital TOT revenue: The City has not conducted an economic analysis of how the measure would reduce Transient Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to the City's General Fund. An ordinance with this much economic constraint has not been proposed in any other city. Los Angeles's hospitality jobs and economy are struggling to recover from the pandemic, and this ordinance will hurt the industry's ability to rebound and reduce TOT revenue that fund critical city services.

Despite its stated goal of protecting employees, this measure is deeply harmful to our employees, to the hotel industry, and ultimately, to the entire City.

We therefore ask that the council let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

Thank you for your consideration.

-- Sent from Michelle Steiner to Solomon Rivera on Jun 16, 2022 --

Dear [@legislatorTitle] [@legislatorLast],

Dear City Council Members:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the "Workplace Security, Workload, Wage, and Retention Measures for Hotel Workers" ordinance.

We all want to protect hotel employee; in fact, we support the employee safety elements of the proposal, including panic buttons. However, this ordinance includes many other elements that are unworkable. We, therefore, ask that the council to let the voters decide - Send it to the ballot.

We oppose the measure for the following reasons:

This measure increases water consumption during an unprecedented drought: Angelenos have been asked to reduce their water consumption by 35 percent in light of severe drought conditions. This measure deeply undermines this goal. Mandatory daily room cleaning would increase the use of water, as well as electricity and gas in perpetuity. It also would impose daily room cleaning on guests who prefer to opt out for environmental or other reasons.

This measure would prevent employees from earning additional income: We believe one job should be enough. In cities where square-footage limits have been mandated, employees lose hours as hotels comply with the law, forcing employees to seek additional work elsewhere. At a time where hotels are struggling to fully staff our operations, this would result in further staff shortages, reduced rooms available for guests, and will triple the cost of housekeeping for many small "mom and pop" businesses -- making hotels in Los Angeles less competitive and less affordable for the average family.

