Comments for Public Posting: Too many processes being streamlined, or made ministerial in the name of affordable housing. Single family home lots being rezoned for high density housing, should not be allowed without review, and community input. Tenants in affordable units are being displaced for new, mostly market rate developments. We need to give cities back the right to have a say in what gets built in their community. What I have witnessed, is developers exploiting the plight enforced on communities by the politicians in Sacramento. These policies that have removed city oversight, have primarily resulted in more unchecked market rate development.
