Comments for Public Posting: Hi, my name is Gillian Reimers with district 14. I am giving general public comment. The Rent Stabilization Ordinance is an incredibly important law that helps keep millions of Angelenos stably housed. But the rent increases allowed right now are too high and unaffordable for Angelenos who are already struggling to make the rent. I urge the City Council to adopt Keep LA Housed's demands for the RSO formula to Cap increases at 60% CPI or 3% with no minimum increase Get rid of unfair additional increases for utilities and extra occupants. Every extra percentage point is less money for tenants to spend on other necessities like food, medical care, transportation, and childcare. We need the formula updated immediately-- new rent increases go into effect in July and we can't afford any more increases under the current formula. The City Council must vote now to update the RSO with a new formula to keep Angelenos housed. Thank you.

Comments for Public Posting: I call on the LA city council to implement a robust rent control plan ASAP. Rent control might not bring down rents on its own, but it is a crucial tool in preventing tenants from losing their existing housing to sky-high, market-rate increases. Angelenos should not have to worry about regular rent increases on top of how to stretch their already-thin paychecks as far as possible.

Comments for Public Posting: Rent is too high. We don't need another rent increase. People are struggling to pay the rent and bills and now another rent increase could leave many homeless. Thank you, OH

Comments for Public Posting: On behalf of the Los Angeles County Business Federation, a grassroots alliance of 240 business organizations representing 420,000 employers with 5 million employees throughout Southern California, we write to strongly oppose the proposed changes to the City of Los Angeles Rent Stabilization Ordinance (RSO) formula. Beacon Economics' recent analysis of the Los Angeles Housing Department (LAHD) recommendations makes clear these changes are based on flawed assumptions and would worsen the city's housing challenges. Replacing the Consumer Price Index with "CPI Less Shelter" is misguided. Shelter is the most relevant component of CPI for housing providers. Removing it would tie rent caps to unrelated costs like gasoline or apparel, distorting the formula and ignoring real operating expenses. Lowering caps would not stabilize rents; it would simply force steeper increases upon turnover, making housing more expensive and harder to find. Operating costs continue to outpace inflation. Insurance premiums rose 17% in just 20 months, and maintenance costs have grown 25% more than CPI over the past decade. The LAHD analysis underestimates these realities, particularly escalating insurance costs. Decades of economic research show rent control leads to unintended consequences: reduced mobility, lower-quality housing, and conversion of rentals to other uses. Already, new construction and investment in Los Angeles have slowed under an unstable political environment. Tightening the RSO formula would only amplify these problems, deepening the shortage. If the City wants to improve housing affordability, it should pursue policies that work: expanding housing supply and providing targeted assistance to renters in need. For these reasons, we urge you to reject the proposed RSO changes. Doubling down on ineffective rent control will make the housing crisis worse. RE: City of Los Angeles Rent Stabilization Ordinance – Council File 23-1134

Honorable Chair and Councilmembers,

On behalf of the Los Angeles County Business Federation, a grassroots alliance of 240 business organizations representing 420,000 employers with 5 million employees throughout Southern California, we write to strongly oppose the proposed changes to the City of Los Angeles Rent Stabilization Ordinance (RSO) formula.

Beacon Economics' recent analysis of the Los Angeles Housing Department (LAHD) recommendations makes clear these changes are based on flawed assumptions and would worsen the city's housing challenges. Replacing the Consumer Price Index with "CPI Less Shelter" is misguided. Shelter is the most relevant component of CPI for housing providers. Removing it would tie rent caps to unrelated costs like gasoline or apparel, distorting the formula and ignoring real operating expenses. Lowering caps would not stabilize rents; it would simply force steeper increases upon turnover, making housing more expensive and harder to find. Operating costs continue to outpace inflation. Insurance premiums rose 17% in just 20 months, and maintenance costs have grown 25% more than CPI over the past decade. The LAHD analysis underestimates these realities, particularly escalating insurance costs.

Decades of economic research show rent control leads to unintended consequences: reduced mobility, lower-quality housing, and conversion of rentals to other uses. Already, new construction and investment in Los Angeles have slowed under an unstable political environment. Tightening the RSO formula would only amplify these problems, deepening the shortage.

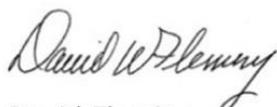

If the City wants to improve housing affordability, it should pursue policies that work: expanding housing supply and providing targeted assistance to renters in need.

For these reasons, we urge you to reject the proposed RSO changes. Doubling down on ineffective rent control will make the housing crisis worse. If you have any questions, please don't hesitate to contact our Director of Advocacy, Chris Wilson, at chris.wilson@bizfed.org.

Comments for Public Posting: Hi, my name is Julia and I live in Angelino Heights with my partner - we're residents of CD1 and constituents of Councilmember Eunisses Hernandez. We're renters and we're only able to live here because of rent control in our city. However, over the last few years (since the COVID moratorium expired) our landlord has been enacting the maximum rent increases allowed, and as this continues, it won't be sustainable for us as our income doesn't match the increases. My partner has been out of work for a year - this has been one of the worst years for jobs in the entertainment industry. And we're fortunate that I'm currently working - so many others aren't, not to mention folks in our community who are scared to go to work because of ICE terrorizing our city, or those who work multiple jobs but don't make enough to pay the rent. Rent increases allowed under the Rent Stabilization Ordinance are too high and unaffordable for Angelenos who are already struggling to make the rent. Nearly all of our friends and neighbors in the district are renters, too. I urge the City Council to adopt Keep LA Housed's demands for the RSO formula as soon as possible.

Comments for Public Posting: Stop taking it easy on corporate landlords. Here are two examples of how Statewide Enterprises, the people who run my apartment building, have manipulated the system so they can raise the rent. 1) They used the cost of adding a "gym" to justify raising rent a couple years ago. The thing is, the gym only contains two Peloton bikes - some of the most expensive pieces of equipment one could buy for a gym, and that's how they were able to justify raising everyone's rent. 2) Attempted to remove me, a 3-year tenant, from my apartment by falsely claiming that I needed to provide a security deposit after THEY canceled my security deposit insurance. They will always try to find ways around these rules, and City Council needs to be more diligent about protecting tenants from greedy landlords.
