Comments for Public Posting: We don't need more helicopters bringing more distracting noise. We don't need more helicopters lowering the air quality. We don't need more helicopters watching us from above, in a god-like complex. We need food for our families, help for our health, education for our children, and space for us to live and thrive. Do these helicopters plan to airlift us to medial facilities when we need help? Do these helicopters plan to shot down evil-doers form above, like a god striking down lighting and thunder? Are these helicopters a watchful eye, they see but do nothing? How silly of me, of course they do something. Their sounds stresses people out, the same people that are meant to be protected. Is that just another necessary evil, to add to the pile of all the other necessary evils? At what point that pile crosses the line, I wonder.
