Comments for Public Posting: I am leaving these words for the benefit of freedom. Banning kratom or 7 Hydroxymitragynine is something that is not necessary. We need regulations not denial. Kratom has helped me in countless ways and I probably wouldn't be here without it. Kratom has helped me quit and stay away from alcohol and other substances. I believe this is more about power and money than it is about the safety of our citizens. I don't believe banning kratom is going to do anything positive. Kratom, when used with responsibility can be very beneficial. Please consider those who don't want to take r/x or don't have access to other options for their well being. Please reconsider the ban and try kratom yourself to experience the positive effects for yourself.

Comments for Public Posting: Taking away relief from Americans this day and age is absolutely terrible but not surprising. We cannot even find a resolution to open our government back up but here we are focusing attention and resources on eliminating a product that alleviates physical and societal pressures. 7-Oh when used appropriately is a tool for many people with struggling. Trying to take it away without establishing a plan of action for the American consumers is mind boggling. Banning this product will NOT help anything; it will add weight to the opioid epidemic. Let's keep it available and legal to everyone
