Comments for Public Posting: Let me get this straight. Over the years, the city council passed numerous resolutions banning all official city travel and discouraging conducting business in Texas, Florida, Arizona, North Carolina... based on those states having positions and or laws regarding trans, voting, LGBTQ, and immigration issues that go against the woke holier than thou city council members. Many who have since resigned in disgrace or have been jailed due to their own do as I say not as I do way of life. These feel good actions did absolutely nothing and put LA in awkward positions where these actions were mostly rescinded. What was boycotted in most cases became the law of the land. The disease of situational ethics just won't go away, and now you want to sister-up with a communist regime that jails political prisoners (I think you actually like that when the target is someone you disagree with), a culture of torturing and consuming dogs and cats, and countless other cultural and political policy points that would have you once again boycotting if your morals and values weren't so convoluted. Unless of course this is in conjunction with the CIA and you are working to implement social and political change through subterfuge and spycraft. Then I support.
