Comments for Public Posting: Harbor Connects has partnered with One San Pedro since 2018 to help shape a comprehensive vision centered on a healthy, safe, and equitable community. We strongly support One San Pedro and the residents and families it serves—particularly the residents of Rancho San Pedro, who deserve to live in a safe, healthy, and prosperous community. This is a project that both San Pedro and the City of Los Angeles deserve. Over the years, we have built meaningful relationships with residents to better understand community priorities and have worked closely with One San Pedro to coordinate thoughtful, responsive service delivery. Together, we have participated in more than 200 community events and meetings, all focused on strengthening both current conditions and long-term community well-being. For these reasons, we fully support continued investment through ULA funding and urge approval of these awards to ensure this critical work can move forward.

Comments for Public Posting: While I am the rector of St. Peter's Episcopal Church, San Pedro, I am also a founding member of the San Pedro Faith Consortium. In that role, I have been a part of the One San Pedro (OSP) redevelopment of the public housing here in town for the last eight years. As such, I have witnessed and been a part of OSP's tireless commitment to the Rancho San Pedro community. It has been a lengthy process, however, that is because we have involved the residents with as many decisions as possible, including everything from the design to the transition plan. Our goal, ultimately, is to not only build them new housing, but also that their community is preserved and even strengthened in the process. I am strongly in favor of your supporting OSP with United to House LA (ULA) awards.
