In addition to our four brick-and-mortar clinics, CAMP operates two mobile units that deliver high-quality, high-volume, low-cost veterinary care to pets and families who need it most. One mobile unit can administer up to 100 vaccines in just two hours. In 2024 alone, our mobile teams administered over 110,000 vaccines and performed more than 5,000 spay and neuter surgeries. Our mobile clinics also provide microchipping, flea and tick treatment, deworming, blood work, and treatment for infections — all at least 80% lower cost than a private veterinarian. Our bilingual, Spanish-speaking veterinary teams serve both animals and the people who love them. These services reach both independent clients and shelter animals through our longstanding partnership with LA Animal Services. When shelter veterinarians are backlogged, our mobile units park directly at the shelter to provide timely, professional, and essential care. This right-of-entry simply formalizes what has been a 15+ year partnership and allows us to continue providing critical services when and where they are most needed. CAMP is proud to be a trusted partner of Los Angeles Animal Services and our community. Our mission is to ensure that every Angeleno, regardless of income, can access high-quality veterinary services, and that all pets — including those in need at our city shelters — receive the medical care they deserve. Thank you for your consideration. Signed, Zoey Knittel Executive Director Community Animal Medicine Project (CAMP)

Public Comment – License Approval for CAMP's Mobile Clinics

Dear Los Angeles City Council Members:

I am submitting this comment on behalf of the Community Animal Medicine Project, better known as CAMP, in support of the Right of Entry license approval for CAMP's mobile spay and neuter clinics at Los Angeles' six shelters.

In addition to our four brick-and-mortar clinics, CAMP operates two mobile units that deliver high-quality, high-volume, low-cost veterinary care to pets and families who need it most. One mobile unit can administer up to 100 vaccines in just two hours. In 2024 alone, our mobile teams administered over 110,000 vaccines and performed more than 5,000 spay and neuter surgeries.

Our mobile clinics also provide microchipping, flea and tick treatment, deworming, blood work, and treatment for infections — all at least 80% lower cost than a private veterinarian. Our bilingual, Spanish-speaking veterinary teams serve both animals and the people who love them.

These services reach both independent clients and shelter animals through our longstanding partnership with LA Animal Services. When shelter veterinarians are backlogged, our mobile units park directly at the shelter to provide timely, professional, and essential care. This right-of-entry simply formalizes what has been a 15+ year partnership and allows us to continue providing critical services when and where they are most needed.

CAMP is proud to be a trusted partner of Los Angeles Animal Services and our community. Our mission is to ensure that every Angeleno, regardless of income, can access high-quality veterinary services, and that all pets — including those in need at our city shelters — receive the medical care they deserve.

Thank you for your consideration.

Signed,
