

RESOLUTION

WHEREAS, sport, play and movement are essential to ensure positive youth development. Research has shown that sport and play improve mental and physical health, increase cognitive performance, build self-esteem, cultivate leadership skills, and lead to higher academic and career achievement; and

WHEREAS, access to sport, play and movement varies across race and socioeconomic status and those at the greatest risk for poor health and wellness outcomes often have the least access to opportunities for physical activity; and

WHEREAS, achieving play equity means removing barriers and ensuring access to sports and play; and

WHEREAS, the City of Los Angeles must close the play equity gap so all children can build social and emotional skills for pathways to lifelong well-being – regardless of their race, gender, zip code, sexual orientation, socioeconomic status or ability; and

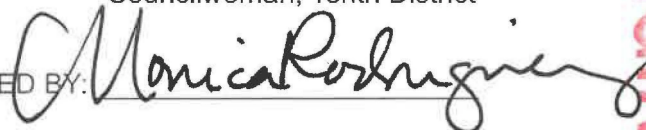

WHEREAS, the LA84 Foundation and the Play Equity Fund are issuing a call to action to fortify the spirit of our city's youth with Play Day on June 27. This national celebration annually uplifts the lifelong benefits of sport, play and movement for kids in the neighborhoods where they live; and

WHEREAS, in the heart of CD10, the annual Play Day Block Party at the LA84 Foundation headquarters in West Adams will return. The block party will feature music, art, sports and food to recreate the unifying spirit and community connections that defined the transformative 1984 Summer Olympic Games; and

WHEREAS, Play Day celebrates our shared goal for thriving children and families and shows that sports and the joy of play have the power to connect us, help us understand each other better, and build more promising futures for young people.

NOW THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, the Los Angeles City Council presents this resolution in recognition of the LA84 Foundation and declares June 27, 2025, as "Play Day" in the City of Los Angeles and encourage all residents to join the celebration in West Adams and to play on that day.
