Comments for Public Posting: The Cultural Heritage Commission has designating the 1920's Fox Apartments as a Historical Cultural Monument. It is o of the few remaining brick buildings on the original road where the Red Line Electric Train transported people from the newly created Westwood community to all points east. The building still houses the original affordable apartments on the second level. These same units were used by the Fox Studios employees just as movies were created in what is now Century City. Plans back in the 1920's envisioned a movie capital . At the same time, UCLA was just being created. This remaining character building housed Emil's Swiss Pastry for years. Clementine Cafe just celebrated their 25th anniversary and it is the center of activity for all of Comstock Hills and the Westside. This precious structure reminds us of the beginnings of the movie industry. It should be protected and treasured by all.
