Historic-Cultural Monument Application

FINDINGS

- The Mary Clay School "exemplifies significant contributions to the broad cultural, economic or social history of the nation, state, city or community" as the location of the Mary Clay School, the first Black-owned, non-sectarian private school in Los Angeles catering to middle-income families, which operated at the subject property from 1959 to 1998.

- The Mary Clay School "is associated with the lives of historic personages important to national, state, city, or local history" as the long-term residence of Mary Elizabeth Smith Clay, a trailblazing educator, civic-minded volunteer, and founder of the Mary Clay School.

CRITERIA

The criterion is the Cultural Heritage Ordinance which defines a historical or cultural monument as any site (including significant trees or other plant life located thereon), building or structure of particular historic or cultural significance to the City of Los Angeles if it meets at least one of the following criteria:

1. Is identified with important events of national, state, or local history, or exemplifies significant contributions to the broad cultural, economic or social history of the nation, state, city or community;
2. Is associated with the lives of historic personages important to national, state, city, or local history; or
3. Embodies the distinctive characteristics of a style, type, period, or method of construction; or represents a notable work of a master designer, builder, or architect whose individual genius influenced his or her age.

SUMMARY

The Mary Clay School is a two-story building on the northern side of West Adams Boulevard, located midblock between 9th and 10th Avenues in the West Adams neighborhood of Los Angeles. Designed by architect Edwin C. Thorne in a Period Revival architectural style, it was commissioned by F. Irwin Herron as a single-family residence and constructed in 1924. By 1936, the Herrons were renting out the subject property to Peter and Zora Manser, who lived on site and managed what they called the Manser Travelogue School for the Farm. Miss Leona Free assumed control of the school facilities in 1941, renaming it the Leona School. In 1959, the subject property was sold to Mary Elizabeth Smith Clay and Wilbron "Bud" Clay, to serve as their residence and business, the Mary Clay School.

The massing of the building is concentrated toward the center of the lot, and is L-shaped in plan with a hipped roof clad in composition shingles. The building is two stories in height and of wood-frame construction with stucco cladding. The primary, south-facing elevation is asymmetrically composed with an off-centered main entry set within a simple classical order entablature of architrave, frieze and cornice. Mounted metal numerals "3911" are centered within the frieze above the door. A large jalousie window covered with metal security bars, roughly the width of the entry door, is set atop the frieze at the second-story and extends up to the underside of the roof overhang. A thin, vertically oriented window is set to the immediate west of the entry door surround, with a metal mailbox mounted below. Other fenestration on this elevation include tripartite steel and vinyl windows, jalousie picture windows, and sliding vinyl windows. There is also a prominent chimney that has been truncated above the roofline. Fenestration at the east, west, and rear facades consist of picture windows of varying sizes.

The Mary Clay School, which operated on the subject site from 1959 to 1998, was an outgrowth of founder Mary Elizabeth Smith Clay's lifelong professional interest in children and childcare. The school was partly founded as a response to changes taking place in the education system in the postwar era, but it also served the needs of middle class Black families seeking quality childcare. During World War II, the United States Congress allocated funds to create a nationwide network of "war nurseries," or childcare centers. These centers offered preschool services to assist women who were entering the workforce in increasing numbers, and by doing so aided the war effort. They were not segregated by race, and proved popular with families of all backgrounds throughout Los Angeles even after the war ended. Through the advocacy of concerned parent councils, and with the legislative help of California Assemblyman Augustus Hawkins, hundreds of childcare centers in California were made permanent in 1946. However, by the start of the 1950s, the California State Board of Education strengthened means testing to allow only low-income families to use these facilities.

This policy change created a gap that was felt by a growing number of middle-class Black families in Los Angeles, as their household incomes were now too high to qualify for public childcare centers. Black mothers looking for alternatives faced a dilemma, as they couldn't afford the exorbitant tuition rates for high-end day care centers. At the same time, they encountered racism from the majority of private, White-owned day care facilities. This took the form of unanswered calls, endless waiting lists, or application paperwork reviews so lengthy that mothers were forced to rely on family members to babysit their children, often derailing their own careers by reducing their working hours or quitting their jobs. The Mary Clay School was founded to meet this need in 1952, initially operating out of Clay's own home at 2056 W. 27th Street (extant, altered). Recognizing the need for more space, Clay and her husband moved to a larger home at 1502 Crenshaw Boulevard in 1954 (no longer extant).

Clay's lifelong goal of providing quality childcare reached its ultimate expression when the school moved to the subject site, 3911 W. Adams Boulevard, in 1959. With her own children grown, Clay, with the help of her husband Wilbron, purchased the Adams property to reside in and fully devote themselves to child education. Subsequently recognized by the Los Angeles Sentinel as "the first Negro-owned private school (non-sectarian) in Los Angeles," the school quickly became recognized as a model institution and point of pride for Black Angelenos. By 1962, the Mary Clay School had a full-time staff of three teachers, including Clay's daughter-in-law Sue Clay, and by 1964 the staff included Leon Howard, a consulting psychologist. The school also employed cutting-edge methods to address speech issues, as well as incorporating foreign language instruction from kindergarten through third grade.

The school's curriculum went beyond basic pre-schooling, incorporating cultural and finishing school components intended to demonstrate good socialization and comportment. The school also provided enriching, expert-informed childcare as well as tutoring, speech therapy, foreign language instruction, and more socially-oriented activities such as field trips, formal performances, and cultural enrichment activities.

Regular events, such as the school's first graduation in 1956, were held to demonstrate pupils' progress to their parents. Seeking to reinforce lessons on manners and proper etiquette, Clay began hosting a regular series of cotillion-performances for young pupils, subsequently dubbed "Clay-tillions" by parents. In 1964, the school took nine young girls on a cultural tour of the U.S. with a send-off given by former Los Angeles Mayor (then Councilmember) Tom Bradley.

In 1965, Clay stepped down as director of the Mary Clay School to lead education efforts that included directing childworker training programs and helping implement a Head Start Program at the Second Baptist Church. Throughout the duration of the school's life, under Mary Clay's direction and later under her daughter-in-law Eleanor "Sue" (nee Goodlow) Clay's direction, the Mary Clay School was a site of teacher training and early childhood research for the University of Southern California (USC), the University of California, Los Angeles (UCLA), and the community colleges of East Los Angeles, West Los Angeles, and El Camino.

After Clay died of cancer in 1971, the school maintained the learning traditions, standards, and values that she had originally implemented. Sue Clay and her husband Carl continued to direct the school and update the curriculum to reflect shifting values over time. The "Claytillion" was replaced by the "Graduation Spring Program" where kindergarten and pre-kindergarten classes performed two plays, one in English and the other in Spanish. The school's curriculum also incorporated detailed lessons about different cultures through which the children learned about various traditions, foods, and clothing. Subsequent generations of Clay family members continued to staff the school at the subject property until it closed in 1998.

Born Mary Elizabeth Smith in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania in 1907, Clay was the daughter of Charles C. and Alice Smith. The Smiths valued education and community service and Clay, their only daughter, absorbed these values from an early age. She grew up going to local schools, and her brother, Dr. Jack Shephard Smith, went on to medical school at Howard University. Clay continued her education at the Margaret Morrison College for Women, a branch of the Carnegie Technical School in Pittsburgh. While in College, Clay's interest in the developmental challenges of small children led her to establish a pre-school at the SoHo Community House. Founded in 1905, the SoHo Community House served as a social service agency to the residents of the industrial neighborhood of SoHo, which was located between Downtown Pittsburgh and the nearby Oakland neighborhood.

Upon graduating in 1932, Clay became a resident staff worker at the SoHo Community House. The following year she married Carl Quincy Tinker, a pharmacist and University of Pittsburgh graduate. Following a two-week honeymoon in Buffalo, New York, the couple moved west to settle in Los Angeles. Clay's first son, Carl, was born in 1934, followed by Donald, born in 1936. After moving to Los Angeles, Clay served at various points as teacher and head teacher of the Nursery Division of the Albion Street School, 28th Street School, and Jefferson High School. By 1941, Clay was divorced and by 1942 was dating Wilbron "Bud" Clay. They were married in 1943.

It was around this time she became the director of the 36th Street School Child Care Center. Clay also did graduate work during World War II, taking night classes at USC and UCLA. This strengthened her expertise in child development, leading her to collaborate with various organizations that worked on family and children's issues within the Black community of Los Angeles. In 1952, Clay opened a private nursery school for children under five at her 27th Street home located at 1502 Crenshaw Boulevard. Clay expanded the school when she and her husband moved to the subject property at 3911 W. Adams in 1959, taking advantage of the larger facilities to boost enrollment and curriculum offerings from kindergarten to third grade.

In 1963, Mary Clay was awarded a regional citation by the National Sorority of Phi Delta Kappa, Inc., an International African American professional sorority for women in the field of education, for her efforts as a trailblazer in starting the first private kindergarten to be accredited by the Los Angeles School system.

In 1965, Clay was appointed by the Lyndon B. Johnson presidential administration as Director of the Title Five Project, which trained adults for employment in caring for children. When the federal Head Start program began that same year, Clay stepped down as director of the Mary Clay School to help establish a Second Baptist preschool for low-income children. She was diagnosed with cancer in 1967, and passed away in Los Angeles in 1971.

Edwin Charles Thorne, the architect of the subject property, was born in Suffolk, Virginia, on April 16, 1867. Raised in Nebraska, he apprenticed to learn the carpenter's trade at 18. He moved to Los Angeles, and from 1888-1907 he worked various jobs as a mechanic, foreman, and superintendent. Thorne spent nearly two years of this period working in a mercantile business, studying architecture and engineering, and moved to Garvanza, where he became a well-respected builder. Thorne worked as an assistant building inspector for the City of Los Angeles from 1909, leaving the City to work as architect for the Union Realty Company in 1912. That year, the Los Angeles Times reported on Thorne's plans for a six-story commercial building for prominent developer Charles C. Chapman, to be located on the east side of Los Angeles Street, north of 6th Street. Thorne established his own business in 1913, designing single-family homes, apartment buildings, and schools throughout Southern California. One of his notable works was the Temple (formerly La Puente) School in the Whittier Narrows area, which today serves as the district offices of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. Thorne passed away in Los Angeles on May 11, 1935, at the age of 68.

The subject property has undergone some alterations since its initial construction. These include the permitting and construction of a new dwelling and garage in 1923-1924; the change of the building's use to a nursery school in 1959; the conversion of the rear garage to a nursery and the addition of a restroom in 1960; the addition of a rear aluminum patio in 1962; the installation of a front aluminum canopy, the demolition of the rear garage, and the addition of a new accessory canopy in 1965; and the addition of another restroom in 1968.

The subject property is designated as an altered Contributor to the West Adams Terrace Historic Preservation Overlay Zone.

DISCUSSION

The Mary Clay School meets two of the Historic-Cultural Monument criteria for designation under the Cultural Heritage Ordinance. It "exemplifies significant contributions to the broad cultural, economic or social history of the nation, state, city or community" as the site of the Mary Clay School, the first Black-owned, non-sectarian private school in Los Angeles catering to middle-income families. It is also "associated with the lives of historic personages important to national, state, city, or local history" as the long-term residence of Mary Elizabeth Smith Clay, a trailblazing educator, civic-minded volunteer, and founder of the Mary Clay School.

The Mary Clay School began operating out of the subject property beginning in 1959, continuing to educate generations of children in the West Adams community until its closing in 1998. Following World War II, middle class women sought more opportunities for childcare to effectively manage both their careers and family lives. In Los Angeles, African American women faced additional challenges as White-owned pre-schools delayed or simply refused to admit Black children and children of color in general. As a non-sectarian, private school, the Mary Clay School was open to all applicants regardless of race or religion. The school sought to provide enriching, expert-informed childcare ranging from basic pre-school to a culturally-focused finishing school. The primary aim of the school was for students to become well-rounded successful adults.

The Mary Clay School was considered a model, private early educational institution for its teaching methods, cultural programs, and play equipment in the yard. It became a very popular school option with working parents with young children. Over the years, multiple generations of some families attended the school, and there are many prominent community members who either were students themselves, or enrolled their children in the school.

Mary Clay lived at the property with her husband, Wilbron "Bud" Clay, from 1959 until her passing in 1971. The Clays operated the school with the assistance of various faculty and staff while residing at the site for the remainder of their lives. Mary Clay hosted various events for prominent social groups throughout her life in Los Angeles, many of which fundraised for Black-focused and child-oriented causes. Among these were the Los Angeles Chapter of the Links Incorporated, the Anchorettes, the Jack and Jill of America, the Pitt-Los Club, and the 12 Big Sisters, of which Clay was a prominent member.

Mary Clay and her namesake school won many awards and accolades for educational service. Foremost among these were a regional citation by the National Sorority of Phi Delta Kappa, Inc., an International African American professional sorority for women in the field of education. She left a legacy of a strong educational foundation to all the children who attended the school and provided support to their working parents who could feel secure that their children would be safe and well cared for under the supervision of the Mary Clay School staff.

CALIFORNIA ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY ACT ("CEQA") FINDINGS

State of California CEQA Guidelines, Article 19, Section 15308, Class 8 "consists of actions taken by regulatory agencies, as authorized by state or local ordinance, to assure the maintenance, restoration, enhancement, or protection of the environment where the regulatory process involves procedures for protection of the environment."

State of California CEQA Guidelines Article 19, Section 15331, Class 31 "consists of projects limited to maintenance, repair, stabilization, rehabilitation, restoration, preservation, conservation or reconstruction of historical resources in a manner consistent with the Secretary of the Interior's Standards for the Treatment of Historic Properties with Guidelines for Preserving, Rehabilitating, Restoring, and Reconstructing Historic buildings."

The designation of the Mary Clay School as an Historic-Cultural Monument in accordance with Chapter 9, Article 1, of The City of Los Angeles Administrative Code ("LAAC") will ensure that future construction activities involving the subject property are regulated in accordance with Section 22.171.14 of the LAAC. The purpose of the designation is to prevent significant impacts to an Historic-Cultural Monument through the application of the standards set forth in the LAAC. Without the regulation imposed by way of the pending designation, the historic significance and integrity of the subject property could be lost through incompatible alterations and new construction and the demolition of an irreplaceable historic site/open space. The Secretary of the Interior's Standards for Rehabilitation are expressly incorporated into the LAAC and provide standards concerning the historically appropriate construction activities which will ensure the continued preservation of the subject property.

The City of Los Angeles has determined based on the whole of the administrative record, that substantial evidence supports that the Project is exempt from CEQA pursuant to CEQA Guidelines Section Article 19, Section 15308, Class 8 and Class 31. The project was found to be exempt based on the following:

> The use of Categorical Exemption Class 8 in connection with the proposed designation is consistent with the goals of maintaining, restoring, enhancing, and protecting the environment through the imposition of regulations designed to prevent the degradation of Historic-Cultural Monuments.
> The use of Categorical Exemption Class 31 in connection with the proposed designation is consistent with the goals relating to the preservation, rehabilitation, restoration and reconstruction of historic buildings and sites in a manner consistent with the Secretary of the Interior's Standards for the Treatment of Historic Properties.

Furthermore, none of the exceptions to the Categorical Exemption Under CEQA Guidelines Section 15300.2 apply to the proposed Project. The proposed Project will not result in significant cumulative impacts from successive projects of the same type in the same place. The Project does not involve unusual circumstances as it is in a similar location, topography, and streetscape as other Historic-Cultural Monuments in the West Adams – Baldwin Hills – Leimert Community Plan Area. The Project will not damage scenic resources in a state scenic highway. The Project site is not on a list compiled pursuant to Government Code Section 65962.5 related to hazardous waste sites. The Project will also not cause a substantial adverse change in the significance of an historical resource.

Categorical Exemption ENV-2026-1490-CE was prepared on June 17, 2026.

BACKGROUND

On March 25, 2026, the Los Angeles City Council, acting upon a motion introduced by Councilmember Heather Hutt and seconded by Councilmember Maqueece Harris-Dawson, initiated consideration of the subject property as an Historic-Cultural Monument. On June 11, 2026, a subcommittee of the Commission consisting of Commissioners Rubio and Dominguez conducted a site inspection of the property, accompanied by staff from the Office of Historic Resources.

PLANNING & LAND USE MANAGEMENT

MOTION

Section 22.171.10 of the Administrative Code provides that the City Council, the Cultural Heritage Commission, or the Director of Planning, may initiate consideration of a proposed site, building, or structure as a Historical-Cultural Monument. The Cultural Heritage Commission, after reviewing and investigating any such Council-initiated designation, shall approve or disapprove in whole or in part the proposed inclusion and submit a report upon such action to the Council. In addition, Section 22.171.12 of the Administrative Code provides that there shall be a temporary stay of demolition, substantial alteration or removal of any such proposed location or structure pending designation.

The property located at 3911 West Adams Boulevard, a 10-room house completed in 1924, was designed by Architect Edwin C. Thorne and originally commissioned by F. Irwin Herron, president of the Mercereau Bridge & Construction Company, which notably built the Colorado Street Bridge in Pasadena.

While serving as the Herron family residence, it was the location for significant life events, including Mrs. Herron's mother's funeral in 1928 and the weddings of the Herron daughters in 1929 and 1933.

The property's use shifted in 1936 when the Herrons moved and began renting it out as a small boarding school, initiating a long and continuous history of educational use. Since then, the location has housed multiple institutions, starting with the Manser Travelogue School for the Farm. This was followed by the Leona School (1941–1958), which was regularly advertised in Los Angeles newspapers, and then the Mary Clay School (1959–1971+).

After St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran Church bought the house in 1998 and opened a preschool, it became the current home of the World City Center School, which offers dual-language learning. The Lutheran Church bought the house in 1998 and opened a preschool, and it became the current home of the World City Center School, which offers dual-language learning.

I THEREFORE MOVE that the City Council initiate consideration of the property located at 3911 West Adams Boulevard, as a City Historic-Cultural Monument under the procedures set forth in Section 22.170.10 of the Administrative Code, and instruct the Department of City Planning to prepare the Historic Cultural Monument application for review and consideration of the Cultural Heritage Commission.

I FURTHER MOVE that after reviewing the application, the Cultural Heritage Commission submit its report and recommendation to the City Council regarding the inclusion of the property located at 3911 West Adams Boulevard, in the City list of Historic-Cultural Monuments.

Statement A — Architectural Description

Site

The Mary Clay School is located at 3911 W. Adams Boulevard, in the West Adams neighborhood of Los Angeles. The site consists of a rectangular, flat lot measuring approximately 73 feet wide with a depth of 178 feet, oriented perpendicularly to West Adams Boulevard. The southern side of the lot fronts West Adams Boulevard, and is flanked by similarly sized lots. The lot to the east is occupied by a two-story church (St. Paul Evangelical Lutheran), while the lot to the west is occupied by a two-story apartment complex. The northern side of the lot fronts a 12-foot-wide alleyway.

The subject parcel is occupied by a two-story single-family residence, generally L-shaped in plan, sited towards the center of the lot and set back approximately 55 feet from the street. The front yard is occupied by a large U-shaped concrete driveway with access points off of Adams Boulevard at both the eastern and western edges of the lot. This driveway curves northward towards the main entry of the building and its eastern portion extends to the facade of the building to allow for vehicular parking. The portion of the driveway near the main entry is connected by a wide, brick-paved path flanked by small strips of plantings. The western side of the curved driveway merges into a straight driveway that runs along the lot's western edge and terminates at the northernmost portion (rear) of the building.

A portion of the rear yard consists of a paved surface, which surrounds a children's play structure set within a sand pit. To the immediate north is a children's garden, consisting of various dirt pathways that separate planting areas. To the west of this garden is a concrete patio sited between the northern facade of the building and a single-story shed with sheet metal roofing.

Building

The massing of the building is concentrated toward the center of the lot, and is L-shaped in plan with a hipped roof clad in composition shingles. The building is two stories in height and of wood-frame construction with stucco cladding. The primary, south-facing elevation is asymmetrically composed with an off-centered main entry set within a simple classical order entablature of architrave, frieze and cornice. Mounted metal numerals "3911" are centered within the frieze above the door. A large jalousie window covered with metal security bars, roughly the width of the entry door, is set atop the frieze at the second-story and extends up to the underside of the roof overhang. A thin, vertically oriented window is set to the immediate west of the entry door surround, with a metal mailbox mounted below. Other fenestration on this elevation include tripartite steel and vinyl windows, jalousie picture windows, and sliding vinyl windows. There is also a prominent chimney that has been truncated above the roofline.

Fenestration at the east, west, and rear facades consist of picture windows of varying sizes.

Statement B — Statement of Significance

The Mary Clay School meets the following criteria for designation as a Los Angeles Historic-Cultural Monument (HCM):

> Criterion 1: It is identified with important events of national, state, or local history, or exemplifies significant contributions to the broad cultural, economic or social history of the nation, state, city or community.

The subject property meets Criterion 1 for its contributions to the social and cultural development of the African-American community in Los Angeles as the site of the Mary Clay School, the first Black-owned, non-sectarian private school in Los Angeles catering to middle-income families. The school began operating out of the subject property beginning in 1959, continuing to educate generations of children in the West Adams community until its closing in 1998.

Following World War II, middle class women sought more opportunities for childcare to effectively manage both their careers and family lives. In Los Angeles, African American women faced additional challenges as White-owned pre-schools delayed or simply refused to admit Black children and children of color in general. As a non-sectarian, private school, the Mary Clay School was open to all applicants regardless of race or religion. The school sought to provide enriching, expert-informed childcare ranging from basic pre-school to a culturally-focused finishing school. The primary aim of the school was for students to become well-rounded successful adults.

The Mary Clay School was considered a model, private early educational institution for its teaching methods, cultural programs, and play equipment in the yard. It became a very popular school option with working parents with young children. Over the years, multiple generations of some families attended the school, and there are many prominent community members who either were students themselves, or enrolled their children in the school.

> Criterion 2: It is associated with the lives of historic personages important to national, state, city, or local history.

The subject property meets Criterion 2 as the long-term residence of Mary Elizabeth Smith Clay, a lifelong educator, civic-minded volunteer, and founder of the Mary Clay School. Mary Clay lived at the property with her husband, Wilbron “Bud” Clay, from 1959 until her passing in 1971. The Clays operated the school with the assistance of various faculty and staff while residing at the site for the remainder of their lives.

Mary Clay and her namesake school won many awards and accolades for educational service. Foremost among these were a regional citation by the National Sorority of Phi Delta Kappa, Inc., an International African American professional sorority for women in the field of education. She left a legacy of a strong educational foundation to all the children who attended the school and provided support to their working parents who could feel secure that their children would be safe and well cared for under the supervision of the Mary Clay School staff.

The subject property is designated as an altered Contributor to the West Adams Terrace Historic Preservation Overlay Zone.

African-American Community in West Adams

Throughout the middle of the 20th century, African American settlement patterns in Los Angeles were generally restricted to east of Main Street from Downtown to Watts by a variety of tactics designed to keep Black people out of White neighborhoods. Some tactics were informal actions of individuals, others were legal measures implemented by private groups or government agencies. By the postwar years, African Americans had become the most intensely segregated of all non-White groups in Los Angeles, even after the courts had declared deed restrictions unconstitutional.

Deed restrictions were widely used in Los Angeles from 1900 to 1948. Typically, they dictated that the owner could only sell or rent a property to "Caucasians," otherwise the owner could lose the property. In some deeds, the excluded groups were mentioned by name, and invariably included African Americans, Mexicans, Asians, and occasionally Jews. A typical covenant lasted for 20 to 50 years. Deed restrictions were upheld as constitutional by the California and U.S. Supreme Courts in 1919 and 1926, which unleashed their widespread use in Los Angeles.

During the Great Depression, a government agency called the Home Owners' Loan Corporation (HOLC) created a housing appraisal system of color-coded maps categorizing the riskiness of lending to households in different neighborhoods. Surveyor descriptions accompanying these maps demonstrate the degree to which race and the presence of deed restrictions was a factor in these redlining maps.[1] By 1939, the HOLC noted that the West Adams Terrace neighborhood was under "threat of lower class population."[2] According to HOLC, the area "[had] always been a medium price single family rental district and is now rapidly becoming a multiple family area." The conversion of old homes into multi-family dwellings and boarding houses resulted in a "low yellow" grade, placing the area in the yellow, or "definitely declining" category.

The use of covenants diminished after 1948, when the U.S. Supreme Court ruled in Shelley v. Kraemer that it was unconstitutional for courts to enforce the agreements, although it never declared the agreements themselves unlawful. In 1953, the Barrows v. Jackson case ruling strengthened enforcement against their use. However, it was not until the 1968 Fair Housing Act that they were deemed illegal.

With deed restrictions deemed unconstitutional, the population of the West Adams Terrace area continued to diversify with increasing numbers of African Americans and Latino residents throughout the 1950s and subsequent decades.

The historian Josh Sides noted that, during the postwar era, "a slightly higher proportion of [Black men] in West Adams were professionals and managers compared to the general Black male population…" and as a result, Black families found West Adams to have "better housing stock, reduced crime, greater integration, and better schools than they had experienced in South Central and Watts."[3] The increasing numbers of Black families settling into the area made West Adams a desirable neighborhood for Black community spaces.

African-American Community - Education, Childcare

When California joined the Union in 1850, statutes were enacted that denied African Americans the right to receive a public education, among other things. After a petition sent by African Americans to the Los Angeles Board of Education in 1872, the California Supreme Court ruled in the case of Ward v. Floor that segregation in educational practices was unconstitutional, breaching U.S. Constitution's 14th and 15th Amendments. The judge's ruling, however, created a loophole that allowed separate schools. The African American school-aged population in Los Angeles remained small until 1900, so separate schools were not created in the city.

Access to educational opportunities was a powerful factor in attracting African Americans to Los Angeles at the beginning of the 20th century. For African Americans, like many other communities, education represented a means towards upward mobility. As such, education became the main priority for African American women who bore the responsibility for their children's schooling.

In Los Angeles, Black children attended public school with other ethnic and racial minorities that were also subject to restrictive covenants and other forms of housing discrimination. One of the few schools that were predominately African American was 51st Street Elementary (5108 Holmes Avenue, renamed Holmes Avenue Elementary). While mainly African American children attended the school, the principals and teachers were exclusively White. In 1911, Bessie Burke joined the staff. She was the first African American teacher in the Los Angeles public school system. By 1918, she was promoted to principal of the school, another first for her race.

During the 1920s and 1930s, schools in Los Angeles remained multiracial. However, following World War II, Los Angeles schools became deeply segregated between White and non-White students. The official policy of the Los Angeles Board of Education was purportedly one of color blindness. All students attend the school closest to their homes regardless of race. Although, White students in racially mixed neighborhoods were able to seek a waiver and attend a predominately White school. This practice, combined with racial discrimination in housing, resulted in de facto segregation well into the 1950s. When the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People started investigating the practice in 1953, and the U.S. Supreme Court handed down the landmark Brown v. Board of Education case in 1954, schools became a central focus of the Los Angeles Civil Rights Movement. A motivating factor in the legal challenges to deed restrictions was not just access to better housing, but better schools that were concentrated in wealthier areas that tended to have a higher population of Whites.

Original Construction and Owners

Designed by architect Edwin C. Thorne, the subject property was completed in 1924 for F. Irwin Herron. Herron and his father, Rufus Hills Herron, were oil drillers and real estate investors who came to Los Angeles around 1895, and helped found what would become the Los Angeles Stock Exchange.[4]

By 1936, the Herrons were renting out the subject property to Peter and Zora Manser, who lived on site and managed what they called the Manser Travelogue School for the Farm. The Manser School offered riding, swimming, tutoring, music, and dance lessons. Miss Leona Free assumed control of the school facilities in 1941, and renamed it the Leona School. This boarding school would remain at 3911 West Adams until 1958, when she moved her school to another former single-family residence at 700 South Longwood Avenue. In 1959, the subject property was sold to Mary Elizabeth Smith Clay and Wilbron "Bud" Clay, to serve as their residence and business, the Mary Clay School.[5]

Following the closing of the Mary Clay School in 1998, the property was purchased by St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran Church, located next door at the northwest corner of Ninth Avenue and West Adams Boulevard. The Church managed its own pre-school at the subject property, until the World City Center School opened in 2014. World City Center School continues to operate on the subject site to the present day, with building ownership recently changing in 2024.

Mary Clay School

The Mary Clay School, which operated from 1952 to 1998, was an outgrowth of founder Mary Elizabeth Smith Clay's lifelong professional interest in children and childcare. The school was partly founded as a response to changes taking place in the education system in the postwar era, but it also served the needs of middle class Black families seeking quality childcare.

During World War II, Congress allocated funds to create a nationwide network of "war nurseries." or childcare centers.[6] These centers offered preschool services to assist women who were entering the workforce in increasing numbers, and by doing so aided the war effort. They were not segregated by race, and proved popular with families of all backgrounds throughout Los Angeles even after the war ended. Through the advocacy of concerned parent councils, and with the legislative help of Assemblyman Augustus Hawkins, hundreds of childcare centers in California were made permanent in 1946. However, by the start of the 1950s, the California State Board of Education strengthened means testing to allow only low-income families to use these facilities.[7]

This policy change created a gap that was felt by a growing number of middle-class Black families in Los Angeles, as their household incomes were now too high to qualify for public childcare centers. Black mothers looking for alternatives faced a dilemma, as they couldn't afford the exorbitant tuition rates for high-end day cares. At the same time, they encountered racism from the majority of private, White-owned day cares. This took the form of unanswered calls, endless waiting lists, or application paperwork reviews so lengthy that mothers were forced to rely on family to babysit their children, often derailing their own careers by reducing their working hours or quitting their jobs.

[5] Though referred to as "Bud" through much of his life, census and draft records attached to this nomination confirm Bud Clay's full name to have been "Wilbron Arlando Clay." Some newspaper articles erroneously give his name as "Wilborn."

[6] These childcare centers were funded through an infrastructure law called the Lanham Act, passed in 1940. National Park Service, "Childcare on the World War II Home Front," National Park Service, accessed June 1, 2026, https://www.nps.gov/articles/000/childcare-on-the-world-war-ii-home-front.htm

[7] California took over funding of the State childcare center program when federal funds were terminated in February 1946, intending to end the program in March 1947. Through the successful efforts of advocacy groups statewide—center directors like Mary Clay, along with the Parents' council of Los Angeles were notable local examples—the centers gained additional funding through 1957. At this point the program was made permanent and means testing requirements, nominally incorporated into the 1946 bill, were strengthened. Ellen Reese, "Maternalism and Political Mobilization," Gender & Society, vol. 10, no. 5 (1996): 567-568, footnote 6.

The Mary Clay School was founded to meet this need in 1952, initially operating out of Clay's own home at 2056 W. 27th Street (extant, altered). Recognizing the need for more space, Clay and her husband moved to a larger home at 1502 Crenshaw Boulevard in 1954 (no longer extant). The Crenshaw location not only served as the second site for the school, but also hosted various events for prominent social groups, many of which fundraised for Black-focused and child-oriented causes. Among these were the Los Angeles Chapter of the Links Incorporated, the Anchorettes, the Jack and Jill of America, the Pitt-Los Club, and the 12 Big Sisters, of which Clay was a prominent member.

Clay's lifelong goal of providing quality childcare reached its ultimate expression when the school moved to 3911 W. Adams Boulevard in 1959. With her own children grown, Clay, with the help of her husband Wilbron, purchased the Adams property to reside in and fully devote themselves to child education. Subsequently recognized by the Los Angeles Sentinel as "the first Negro-owned private school (non-sectarian) in Los Angeles," the school quickly became recognized as a model institution and point of pride for Black Angelenos. By 1962, the Mary Clay School had a full-time staff of three teachers, including Clay's daughter-in-law Sue Clay, and by 1964 the staff included Leon Howard, a consulting psychologist. The school also employed cutting-edge methods to address speech issues, as well as incorporating foreign language instruction from kindergarten through third grade.

The school's curriculum went beyond basic pre-schooling, incorporating cultural and finishing school components intended to demonstrate good socialization and comportment. The school also provided enriching, expert-informed childcare as well as tutoring, speech therapy, foreign language instruction, and more socially-oriented activities such as field trips, formal performances, and cultural enrichment activities.

Regular events, such as the school's first graduation in 1956, were held to demonstrate pupils' progress to their parents. Seeking to reinforce lessons on manners and proper etiquette, Clay began hosting a regular series of cotillion-performances for young pupils, subsequently dubbed "Clay-tillions" by parents. In 1964, the school took nine young girls on a cultural tour of the U.S. with a send-off given by former Los Angeles Mayor (then Councilmember) Tom Bradley.

Clay stepped down as director of the Mary Clay School in 1965 to lead education efforts that included directing childworker training programs and helping implement a Head Start program at the Second Baptist Church. Throughout the duration of the school's life, under Mary Clay's direction and later under her daughter-in-law Eleanor "Sue" (nee Goodlow) Clay's direction, the Mary Clay School was a site of teacher training and early childhood research for the University of Southern California (USC), the University of California, Los Angeles (UCLA), and the community colleges of East Los Angeles, West Los Angeles, and El Camino.

After Clay died of cancer in 1971, the school maintained the learning traditions, standards, and values that she had originally implemented. Sue Clay and her husband Carl continued to direct the school and update the curriculum to reflect shifting values over time. The "Claytillion" was replaced by the "Graduation Spring Program" where kindergarten and pre-kindergarten classes performed two plays, one in English and the other in Spanish. The school's curriculum also incorporated detailed lessons about different cultures through which the children learned about various traditions, foods, and clothing. Subsequent generations of Clay family members continued to staff the school at the subject property until it closed in 1998.

Mary Elizabeth Smith Clay Biography

Born Mary Elizabeth Smith in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania in 1907, Clay was the daughter of Charles C. and Alice Smith. The Smiths valued education and community service and Clay, their only daughter, absorbed these values from an early age. She grew up going to local schools, and her brother, Dr. Jack Shephard Smith, went on to medical school at Howard University. Clay continued her education at the Margaret Morrison College for Women, a branch of the Carnegie Technical School in Pittsburgh.

During her time at Margaret Morrison College, Clay's interest in the developmental challenges of small children led her to establish a pre-school at the SoHo Community House. Founded in 1905, the SoHo Community House served as a social service agency to the residents of the industrial neighborhood of SoHo, which was located between Downtown Pittsburgh and Oakland neighborhood.

Upon graduating in 1932, Clay became a resident staff worker at the SoHo Community House. The following year she married Carl Quincy Tinker, a pharmacist and University of Pittsburgh graduate. Following a two-week honeymoon in Buffalo, New York, the couple moved west to settle in Los Angeles. Clay's first son, Carl, was born in 1934, followed by Donald, born in 1936. After moving to Los Angeles, Clay served at various points as teacher and head teacher of the Nursery Division of the Albion Street School, 28th Street School, and Jefferson High School. By 1941, Clay was divorced and by 1942 was dating Wilbron "Bud" Clay. They were married in 1943.

It was around this time she became the director of the 36th Street School Child Care Center. This was part of a nationwide network of child care centers, established during World War II as an emergency measure providing daycare to the children of war workers. The quality and availability of these childcare centers varied nationwide, but in Los Angeles the centers proved to be affordable, convenient, and critical for women seeking jobs in war industry boomtowns. Because they were desegregated, their importance to families of color increased as working parents otherwise found it impossible to secure supervised childcare. Through the advocacy of concerned parent councils, and with the legislative help of Assemblyman Augustus Hawkins, California's 350 childcare centers were made permanent in 1947.

Clay also did graduate work during the war, taking night classes at the University of Southern California and the University of California, Los Angeles. This strengthened her expertise in child development, leading her to collaborate with various organizations that worked on family and children's issues within the Black community of Los Angeles. Among these organizations were the 12 Big Sisters Club, the Anchorettes, the Jack and Jill of America, and the Lullaby Guild. Clay, with Bud's assistance, hosted fundraising dinners, holiday events, and celebration luncheons for these organizations up through the 1950s at their home, located first at 2060 W. 27th Street.

By the start of the 1950s, the State Board of Education decided to allow only low-income families to use childcare centers, creating a need for middle-income families seeking quality childcare and leading Clay to found her namesake school. By the time of its founding, Clay already had significant experience working as an educator locally for nearly 20 years. In 1952, Clay opened a private nursery school for children under five at her 27th Street home located at 1502 Crenshaw Boulevard. Clay expanded the school when she and her husband moved to the subject property at 3911 W. Adams in 1959, taking advantage of the larger facilities to boost enrollment and curriculum offerings from kindergarten to third grade.

In 1963, Mary Clay was awarded a regional citation by the National Sorority of Phi Delta Kappa, Inc., an International African American professional sorority for women in the field of education, for her efforts as a trailblazer in starting the first private kindergarten to be accredited by the Los Angeles School system.

In 1965, Clay was appointed by the Johnson administration as Director of the Title Five Project, which trained adults for employment in caring for children. When the federal Head Start program began that same year, Clay stepped down as director of the Mary Clay School to help establish a Second Baptist preschool for low-income children. She was diagnosed with cancer in 1967, and passed away in Los Angeles in 1971.

Edwin C. Thorne

Edwin Charles Thorne was born in Suffolk, Virginia, on April 16, 1867, to Charles R. and Eliza A. (Bogardus) Thorne. Thorne was raised in Nebraska, and apprenticed to learn the carpenter's trade at 18. He moved to Los Angeles, marrying Hilda W. Runstrom in 1887, and from 1888-1907, he worked various jobs as a mechanic, foreman, and superintendent. Thorne spent nearly two years of this period working in a mercantile business, while studying architecture and engineering. In the 1890s, Thorne and his wife, who were to ultimately have four daughters, moved to Garvanza, where he became a well-respected builder.

Thorne worked as an assistant building inspector for the City of Los Angeles from 1909, leaving the City to work as architect for the Union Realty Company in 1912. That year, the Los Angeles Times reported on Thorne's plans for a six-story commercial building for prominent developer Charles C. Chapman, to be located on the east side of Los Angeles Street, north of 6th Street.

Thorne resigned from the Union Realty Company in 1913 to establish his own business, going on to design single-family homes, apartment buildings, and schools throughout Southern California. One of his notable works was the Temple (formerly La Puente) School in the Whittier Narrows area, which today serves as the district offices of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. Thorne passed away in Los Angeles on May 11, 1935, at the age of 68.

Development of West Adams Terrace

The subject building is in the West Adams Terrace Historic Preservation Overlay Zone, located in the southwestern section of the City of Los Angeles south of the Santa Monica Freeway and northwest of the University of Southern California campus.

This area is ancestral and unceded territory of the original people of Los Angeles, the Tongva, who defined their world as Tovaangar. The subject building is closest to the former villages of Yaanga and Geveronga and was most probably controlled by them for thousands of years. Prior to the period of conquest and colonization by Spanish, Mexican and U.S. governments (1769-present), the Tongva intensively managed their lands, by cultivating, pruning, seeding, and above all, by seasonal burning.

In the 1770s, the Spanish established a colonial military, religious, and economic base at Misíon San Gabriel Arcángel, relocating thousands of Tongva and their neighbors from surrounding village-states. The colonial occupation depended on the forced labor of the Tongva, which would eradicate the local Indigenous economic base by displacing flowerfields with European grazing grasses and cutting ancient acorn-bearing oaks for lumber. Despite subjugation by Spanish, Mexican and U.S. governments, members of the Gabrielino-Tongva tribe continue to be stewards of their homelands today.

Until the later part of the 19th century, the south and western areas of the city were used exclusively for grazing and agriculture. Beginning in the late 1880's, portions of the region were subdivided for residential and commercial use, and developed as a series of suburban neighborhoods. Development of other suburban communities after this time were spurred by the extension of local horse-drawn streetcar routes from downtown Los Angeles.

By 1910, only small sections of the West Adams Terrace area were still used agriculturally; most of the land had been subdivided into residential tracts. Subsequent development took place during the first two decades of the 20th century and continued through the World War II era.

INDUSTRIAL GROWTH RESTS ON ELECTRIC POWER.

Public Support of Proposed Projects is Strongly Urged by Head of Edison Company.

That there need be no fear of a power shortage, or of a slowing down in the industrial development of Los Angeles if the projects which are now being contemplated for the development of an unlimited supply of hydro-electric power received the support to which they are entitled of the pioneers, with the added force of the most enlightened modern scientific and engineering skill. A few years ago these projects would have been considered dreams of the wildest variety, but now they are accepted with as much complacency as the smaller projects of a decade ago, for it is an axiom of these swift-moving days that this is the age of Bonds have been voted for a fine grammar school to serve the La Puente school district, and plans and specifications have been completed by Architect E. C. Thorne. The present school building will be remodeled, and two new wings will be added, the improvements and additions to be made at a cost of about $65,000. The building will be of brick and plaster construction, and will contain eight class rooms, and auditorium to seat about 360 people, and a large stage. Two additional rooms will be located in the basement for the teaching of sloyd and domestic science.

The school will occupy a site of about four acres at the corner of Lexington and Durfey Road, on the boulevard between El Monte and Montebello. Baseball diamonds, tennis courts and basket ball courts will be provided, and the grounds surrounding the building will be landscaped by Howard & Smith. General contracts for the work have been awarded to J. C. Thruman of El Monte.

BUILDERS BUSILY ENGAGED

Associated General Contractors Report New Buildings Under Way in Los Angeles and Vicinity

In spite of July being a slow month in so far as construction activities are concerned, contracts awarded during the past week, indicate an increase over the corresponding period of July, 1924. Some of the activities of members of the Southern California Chapter, Associated General Contractors, for the past seven days follow:

The Morthland Construction Company has been awarded the general contract for a six-room grammar school addition and alterations to the Rosemead School on San Julian street, between Valley Boulevard and Mission Drive, for the Savannah School District. Plans prepared by E. C. Thorne, architect, provide for two additions, each 33x99 feet, plaster exterior, tile and composition roof.

Construction will be started within the next ten days on a $20,000, nine-room frame and stucco dwelling at 307 North McCadden Place for F. Castey. The contract was awarded to Royce H. Heath, general contractor.

The city of Ontario has awarded a contract to the Griffith Company, Los Angeles engineering contractors, for improving Mountain street and Magnolia avenue with four-inch asphalt concrete paving. The work will involve an expenditure of about $126,000, and will require the placing of approximately 718,880 square feet of four-inch asphalt concrete paving, curbs, walks, etc.

Bond Issue Will Provide Three Civic Buildings to Replace Structures Wholly Outgrown and Legally Condemned

FRONT VIEW OF PROPOSED NEW CITY FIRE HALL

Providing a maximum result from a minimum outlay, Colton will be able to boast three attractive and decidedly needed public buildings within a very few months unless some unforeseen obstacle blocks the passage of the $43,000 bond issue tomorrow.

So acute has the need become for some provision for better civic buildings that the city is forced to send its jail inmates to the County where pay is exacted for their keep, and in some instances where their fine money has been turned into the county exchequer. The old jail has been condemned for years and it is not only unsafe to keep the men prisoners there but there is no provision at all for women prisoners. The city is losing actual cash because of this handicap.

In the new jail building which it is proposed to erect at a cost of $10,000 there will be cells for men and women, suitable bathing facilities and adequate equipment to keep all prisoners housed at home.

Firemen's Quarters Poor

At present the fire department depends entirely upon the services of two paid firemen in addition to the volunteer corps. These two men and their families must necessarily be in immediate proximity to the fire hall consequently they are now forced to live under conditions of which Colton would not be proud were the tax-payers at large fully cognizant of the situation. Last winter it was necessary

YOUNG OUTLAW IS CONVICTED

(By Associated Press)

OKMULGEE, Okla., Sept. 19.—Matthew Kimes, youthful Oklahoma outlaw, today was sentenced to death by an Okmulgee county district court jury that convicted him for murder for his alleged part in a double bank robbery at Beggs in which Police Chief W. J. McAnnally was killed.

The jury found Kimes guilty late Sunday but disagreed on the punishment. After ten hours deliberation, the jurors reported this morning that they were hopelessly disagreed, 11 to 1, on the degree of punishment.

District Judge James Mayes instructed them to continue their deliberations and the verdict was returned a few minutes later.

CHICAGO READY FOR BIG CROWD

(By Associated Press)

CHICAGO, Sept. 19.—Completion today of arrangements for handling the record breaking crowd expected to witness the Dempsey - Tunney heavyweight championship battle Thursday revealed a recount of seats that boosts the originally figured total of 160,000 to 170,950.

Of this number, 42,000 are of the "ringside" variety, priced at $40 each. This section comprises 104 rows northward and 137 rows southward of the ring at Soldier Field. All had been disposed of, according to an announcement by Tex Rickard several days ago, but latest information is that a considerable batch of the top priced pasteboards had been returned and will be put on sale at the box offices.

will be assisted by Miss Helen Lamb. Already over 100 entries have been received. Invitations have been mailed to hundreds of children in every part of the state and the number entering is expected to be greater than ever.

Ocean Park is proud of its annual Kiddies' Floral Parade. The Ocean Park Business Men's Association which is co-operating in the promotion of the parade, take a great deal of pleasure in offering this beautiful festival to Southern California. It extends a most cordial invitation to every one to witness its great pageant.

The parade starts at 1:30 p. m., Sunday September 25th, and if you wish a day of wonderful enjoyment either motor or take a Pacific Electric train to Ocean Park, where the Kiddies Parade offers you a colorful and brilliant pageant.

A lady phoned the water office relative to hours for watering the lawn.

"What is the proper time to put on my hose?" she asked.

"Really madam, I believe after your B. V. D.'s," came the ready response.

Bond Issue To Be Decided Tomorrow to use tubs to catch the water from the leaky roof and in spite of that precaution the rains washed down over the inside walls of the firemen's apartments, on the second floor of the old city hall building.

To prevent a recurrence of this same condition this winter it will be necessary to expend a sum of $2500 for the new roof alone in addition to redecorating the walls and making other improvements if there should be a failure in carrying the bond issue tomorrow. For the small additional sum of the total $10,00 needed for repairing and remodeling the old city building it can be transformed into a modern appearing and wholly efficient civic structure.

The proposed new fire hall will have its quarters for the fire department equipment in the center of the building, and apartments for the firemen will be erected on either side. The upper floor will be suitable for a convention hall at the present time and later as additional regularly paid firemen are necessary it will afford room for apartments or rooms.

A site on North Ninth street is available at a reasonable figure and the entire structure and its grounds and furnishings will cost but $23,000 according to estimates provided.

Contractors who have looked over the present city hall quarters figure that the removal of the jail and fire department and the firemen's families will allow the entire interior of the present structure to be remade. The small quarters in which the city clerk water department employees and light department employees are housed without air except from the court at the rear of Hotel Anderson, and the cooped up chambers of the Police Judge to say nothing of the lack of facilities in the police department where Chief Deiss has no privacy in questioning his suspects or in other details of the work, are really a disgrace to the city, when for the small expenditure of $10,000 they can be remodeled into modern offices.

The bond issue tomorrow lies entirely within the hands of the voters of Colton, and there is every reason to believe that now that the dire need of the civic improvement is made known the public spirited people will rise as with one voice in passing the bonds by a large majority.

Architect Saves Money for Builder

—o—

Peter Ficker, Pomona Valley Architect, Tells Some of Problems In Designing Attractive Residences.

—o—

Exterior is Merely An Expression of the Interior Plan, Just As Man's Features Express His Soul.

—o—

The owner of a house invariably pays for the architect whether he employs one or not. This is the claim of Peter Ficker, 301 First National Building, who has designed some of the finest homes which have been built in the Pomona Valley.

In discussing his work, Mr. Ficker pointed out many ways in which an architect can actually save the house builder expense. It is a part of his business to do so and in the opinion of Mr. Ficker the architect's work is a boon to the contractor who must necessarily devote his time and attention to the problems of construction.

In drawing plans for a house there are certain restrictions which have to be taken into consideration. The first of these is the lot, the shape of the lot, whether it is level or on a hillside, whether there are certain trees that must be taken into consideration in the plans, the direction of the view, the direction of the sun, of wind currents, etc. None of these must conflict with the plans of the house.

To the amateur the designing of the exterior may offer more problems than those of the interior, but not so to the architect. If there is a good floor plan Mr. Ficker says it is easy to draw the elevations and shape the exterior. As a matter of fact, the exterior, he says, is merely an expression of the interior, just as the physiognomy, or the man's features, usually express his soul.

The first thing in drawing a plan is to consider the wishes of the party who owns the house to comply with his requirements. Then the architect must satisfy himself or see that the arrangements are right architecturally. The first thing, Mr. Ficker points out, is to get the house one that is easy to live in and then it is easy to get elevations.

It is readily seen, therefore, that the solution of the problems facing an architect in the construction of even a modest residence, are not always easily solved. "Sometimes," remarked Mr. Ficker, "we spend weeks in attempting to solve the problems that face us and then again the solution is apparent from the first.

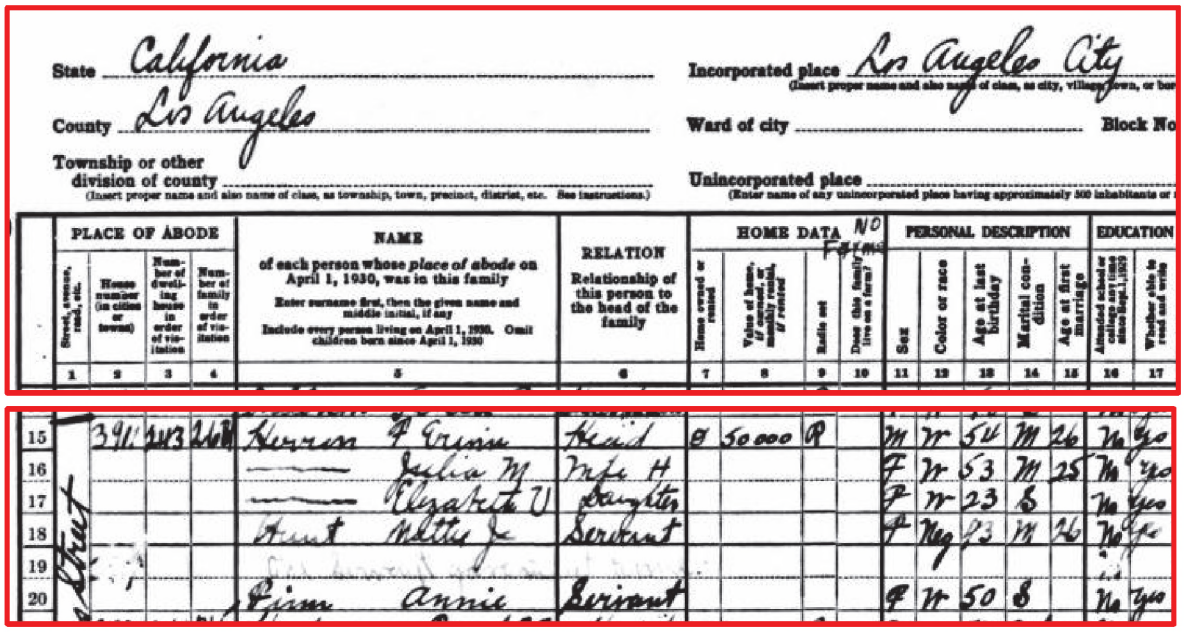

Mr. Ficker has been in Pomona about three years. In that time he has drawn and supervised erection of some of the finest homes in this locality, such as the home of Dr. Ward L. Fisher at 516 Lincoln street, the residence of Dr. Stephen Craig at Ontario, the residence of Oscar Arnold, president of the First National Bank of Ontario, and at the present time he is supervising the fulfillment of plans he recently drew for an attractive $40,000 foothill residence for John K. Wright, located just north of the Baseline on the east side of Live Oak canyon.

For some years past Mr. Ficker has had a working agreement with E. C. Thorne, well known architect of Pasadena, and together they drew the plans which have been followed in the building of the notable group of school buildings at El Monte on the Pomona Valley boulevard. One of these buildings, the gymnasium, has just been completed. Last summer the large elementary school building at El Monte was completed. Mr. Ficker states that the group is not yet finished and that very important additions will be made in the very near future.

No one is more loyal to Pomona than is Mr. Ficker and his strong desire is to have every bidder on his jobs a local man. He is enthusiastic, moreover, over the possibilities for Pomona's growth and development, believing that a city of such beautiful and attractive surroundings should be a city of homes and public buildings that are architecturally attractive.

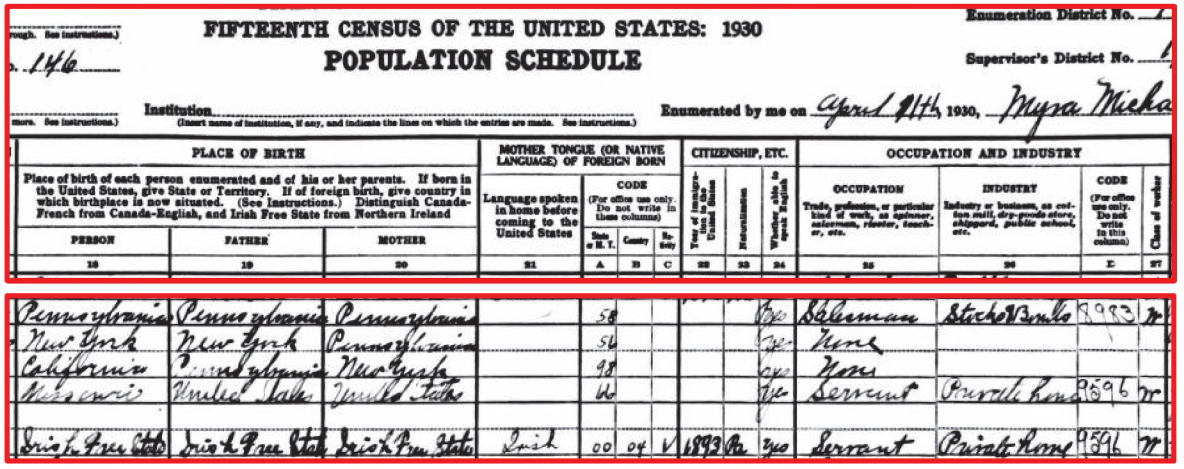

In Ganesha Heights, owned and handled by Allen P. Nichols, Mr. Ficker sees one of the attractive residence tracts of Southern California. He is particularly pleased with the plan of its operation, especially the requirement that all plans be approved by an Art Jury. This gives protection to the builder of a residence, which is worth dollars and cents. The work of the jury eliminates the possibility of costly mistakes. It adds value not only to the building itself but furnishes a guarantee to the builder of any home that the value of his property will not be lowered by unattractive residences adjoining him.

white gladiolus and dainty daisy chains. The pews were marked with clusters of Shasta daisies and butterfly bows of white tulle. Archibald Sessions played the wedding marches and Mrs. Robert Wankowski sang "O Perfect Love" and other selections.

The young people knelt at the altar presented to Christ Church by Col. Herron in memory of his parents, the late Col. and Mrs. W. A. Herron of Pittsburgh, Pa. Miss Herron, who was given away by her father, wore an elaborate creation of ivory crepe charmeuse, embroidered in wild roses and seed pearls, with point lace trimmings. The long, transparent sleeves were of soft tucked tulle. The veil, which fell to the edge of the long train, was of embroidered tulle and was worn by Mrs. Herron at her own wedding, as was also the wreath of orange blossoms which fastened the veil. A shower bouquet of lilies of the valley completed the exquisite attire.

Mrs W L. Graves, Jr., of Fresno, formerly Miss Mary Hubbell, assisted as matron of honor and wore her wedding gown of ivory satin anglese, trimmed with Duchesse and rose point lace, and carried maidenhair ferns. Miss Margaretta Park of Santa Barbara, the bride's cousin, was maid of honor. Her gown was a quaint 1830 frock with bodice of dewdrop net over gold bands, with skirt and girdle of ivory satin charmeuse. A spray of pale pink roses held the skirt in place, and a wreath of ferns and gold gauze ribbon crowned her head. The four maids, Miss Katherine Clark, Miss Anne Patton, Miss Lois Chamberlain and Miss Carmelita Rosecrans, were gowned alike in 1830 frocks with bodice of dewdrop net and skirt and girdle of the palest green satin. They wore gold ornaments in their hair and carried arm bouquets of maidenhair ferns Little Geraldine and Elizabeth Herron, nieces of the bride, were flower girls and wore childish frocks of white and carried baskets of Cecile Bruner roses

Mrs. Herron's gown was of pale gray cachemire de soie embroidered in steel and pearls with yoke and sleeves of Duchesse lace. Mrs. F Irwin Herron was garbed in pink lace gracefully draped over pink satin and Mrs. Samuel L. Graham wore yellow moire with a rich panel of real lace and trimmings of seed pearls

Miss Prescott wore white mousseline with touches of blue silk. Her bouquet was of pink roses. Mr. and Mrs. Baird will travel for several months before settling in Boston. The Education Hubbub

WITH ALL THE NEWS these days about our educational system and work toward integration of public schools, many persons may be prone to overlook the backbone of the national educational scene, the privately-endowed college or university.

Dr. Benjamin E. Mays, president of Morehouse College in Atlanta, Georgia, has taken a hard look at the U. S. private college and come up with some amazing answers.

But like all good educators, Dr. Mays is more interested in the future than in the past.

He uses a factual and interesting approach to the subject. It's a highly readable story. He briefly touches on the past of Negro education in the nation, delves a little further into the present, and then gives a detailed look at the future.

You won't want to miss this analytical study of the educational process. Find out whether our education system is as outmoded as many politicians say it is. It's a penetrating story.

Color Change in Memphis

THE JIM CROW Memphis of old is changing fast. The color line is a lot less sharply drawn than it used to be. Negroes are being appointed and elected to positions in government.

This is a far cry from the old Memphis, where Boss Crump and white supremacy ruled the roost. To be sure, cotton is still king, and there's a long way to go before racial barriers are swept away, but an auspicious start has been made and the face of the city is undergoing a much-needed "lifting."

The Negro has forced much of this change himself with his political power. Politicians have found it can be political suicide to ignore their wishes. They seek the so-called "Negro vote" with an ardor undreamed-of a few years ago.

There is even talk of school desegregation in September. A Negro is a member of the school board. Yes, the Memphis of W. C Handy is fast disappearing. Don't miss it next month.

NURSERY SCHOOL FOR UPPER BRACKET FAMILIES

Mary Clay's private school solves a major problem for professional working mother

The Mary Clay School in Los Angeles is a most satisfactory answer to the child care problem of mothers in the professional field who have preschool age children.

WORKING MOTHERS are rapidly increasing in numbers in all parts of the country. In the city of Los Angeles, numbers are mushrooming with the rapid increase of population. Nursery school is an answer to the prayers of the average working mother. In Los Angeles, public child care centers answer the need of a few who fall in the lower income brackets and are earning only meager salaries.

What happens to the huge number of moderate income families or the professional class working mothers when it comes to child care? If she doesn't hire help in the home, or is lucky enough to place her child in the small number of preschool or nursery schools available, her prayer goes unanswered.

In this teeming city where freeways make a network of progress, bringing suburban workers to the heart of the city in a matter of minutes, in this city where the racial problems aren't as evident as they are in some other parts of the country, there is the subtle brushoff (within the law) given mothers applying to place their children in private child care centers operated by whites.

Though segregation is against the law, the average mother when applying for admittance will find an exaggerated and elaborate preliminary bit of work involving a waiting list before youngsters may be placed in the school. By the time they get around to her name she has hired help in the home that is far more expensive than her income can afford, or given up her job.

Mary Clay greets Billy Stenis as his mother drops him off at school. Mary has been working with mothers since World War II. She worked at federal nursery.

After one walk around the grounds at Mary Clay School any child is more than glad to attend. Thousands of dollars have been spent on the school's playgrounds.

At her desk, Mary checks attendance records of her students. The University of Southern California and Los Angeles State College use school to train teachers.

The need for good private child care centers was ripe when Mary Clay opened her first private preschool in the heart of Los Angeles for all children regardless of color. This isn't just a school, but a model school, used by University of Southern California and Los Angeles State College students to meet special study requirements.

What makes the Clay school so special is that first of all it wasn't organized for the sole purpose of making money. This school is the fulfillment of a dream born in the mind of Mary Elizabeth Smith, Clay in the ivy-covered halls of Carnegie Tech in Pittsburgh years ago, for it was there that the former Mary Smith, daughter of pioneer Pittsburghers Charles and Alice Smith, had a vision of some day having a model nursery school of her own.

During World War II Mrs. Clay worked in federal nursery schools by day and attended UCLA at night, always seeking more knowledge about the training of children. To operate a model private school for tiny tots was her greatest ambition.

In Mrs. Clay's mind the school furnishes an ideal environment for the democratic development of children of all races and creeds. It is a culture center where children see fine plays and hear fine music. They have periods of casual play and opportunities for being very dressed up. The children learn poise and grace so they may take their places in any walk of life.

They all take part in the well-organized program that creates the desired environment at the Mary Clay School.

The Clay-Tillion has gained national attention. The last one, held in December in the fabulous Moulin Rouge of Hollywood, was witnessed by more than 1,200 friends, relatives of the youngsters and interested persons in the preschool field.

An overflow crowd witnessed the presentation at the Beverly Hills Hilton Hotel the year before on Mother's Day. The youngsters were trained by a leading dance master in proper cotillion turns and bows.

Little ladies, dressed in black velvet jumpers, white gloves, patent leather shoes and each wearing a tiara of glitter, walked through a fairyland setting, created especially for the Clay-Tillion. So fabulous is the entire affair that it is always strictly invitational. The people are still talking about the magnificent job being done with the young people.

Recess is over and teacher Beata Stanton calls her students in from playground with an intercom system. Only the best teachers work at the Mary Clay School.

Children get work assignments from an attractive as well as scholarly teacher, Mrs. Margie Ellington. Only the most modern methods are used at the school.

They've had a busy day, but now school's out and Mary Clay helps children into jackets and sweaters before working mothers start arriving to take them home.

It's music time and eager students join teachers (l-r) Mrs. Ethel Prowsil, Miss Norma Liston and Mrs. Margie Ellington for a few songs youngsters understand.

continued

School records have to be accurate and with Eleanor "Sue" Clay keeping them for her, Mary can rest assured she will always find them correct in every way.

First grade teacher Mrs. Woody Brown helps young David Harrison with his arithmetic. David's father is practicing surgeon in new African Republic of Ghana.

It's time for play and children move outside in an orderly fashion. Mary Clay stands at the door as teachers Margie Ellington and Beata Stanton usher children.

Three little lovelies languish in the swings during the play period. L-r are Debby Johnson, Mary Burwell and Monique Oliver. The playground is well supervised.

The best part of the day, lunch time, and Margie Ellington is on hand to help with thermos bottles.

Thousands of dollars have been spent to make the Mary Clay School one of the best staffed and equipped in the country

FINISHING SCHOOLS, schools of refinement, etc., are so very few when it comes to Negro ownership. With the exception of the efforts put forth by the late Dr. Charlotte Hawkins Brown, who headed the Palmer Institute in Sedalia, North Carolina, there were few if any schools to which Negroes could point with pride.

The Mary Clay preschool isn't a finishing school, but for young people it comes pretty close to being one.

Mrs. Clay's formal training includes a degree from Margaret Morrison College for Women (Carnegie Tech), graduate work at U. S. C., principal, teacher, director of a public child care center in Los Angeles for 14 years, work at UCLA and many hours of observing and working with children. She finds real pleasure in her work.

The wheel of fortune has smiled on Mary Clay. Awards have been numerous, complimenting her on work with children far beyond the call of duty. In the last year she opened the first Negro-owned, private school (non-sectarian) in the city of Los Angeles. The kindergarten and first grades are taught by excellent teachers at this ultra-modern school.

Almost any child would be sold on staying at the Mary Clay School after just one trip around the grounds. Rocket ships and jolly animals are themes used in making the play equipment in the yard as inviting as Disneyland. The great rocket ship in reality is a slide. A long creature with bright smile and many legs is in reality a jungle gym.

A giant turtle has taken many a youngster on a bumpy ride. Bicycles, tricycles, sand piles and all the nursery yard toys that make life so enjoyable for children have a fairyland aura at the Clay School.

Many hours of devotion are poured into this school from every angle. Thousands of dollars have been spent on equipment within the classroom and the play area. The Clay school is a model one from many angles, from the teaching methods used with children to the type of play equipment in the yard.

Mrs. Clay, who stands a little more than five feet, has dancing blues eyes and winning ways and says she has just one regret, that the Clay school can not accommodate more children. The waiting lists at the preschool and the regular school are long.

She hopes the day will come when the moderate wage earner and the professional classes in our race will be given more consideration when plans are set down for such institutions as preschools.

It is this class that is really in need of help in this category. The poor can take advantage of state-operated schools, and the rich can afford private care. It's the middle class income group that's hardest hit.

Often their middle class standing is based upon the wife's working, and to do this she must have someone to look after the children. She's not allowed to use state facilities and she can't afford private care.

To provide these facilities is Mary Clay's fondest hope for the future. She hopes to expand present facilities to the point where she can accept many more customers.

TALK O' TOWN

Crisp, Breezy Comment On This and That and Those In Smoke Town

LOVE, YOU LOVELY THING, look what you did to charming Minnie Irvin!

Mr. and Mrs. Perry Lane are announcing Minnie's engagement to Mr. Joshua Brown . . . the wedding or welding to take place this month. Sincere wishes for your happiness, Minnie and Joshua . . . and may you love each other always.

And . . . this is a secret . . . softly, now, on accounta Mary will murder me for telling'. Mary who? Well, Mary Smith . . . yes, pretty Mary . . . social worker . . . A. K. A. . . . and sister of the medico Jack . . . is about to jump aboard the good ship Amour. Yes, sub . . . and HE is Carl Tinker . . . Pitt man . . . pharmacist, and now in sunny California! I hear the welding will take place the latter part of August . . . and lovely Mary is going out in the land of sunshine to live. Now those last few words are SAD . . . because Mary belongs to Smoketown and we dislike losing her. Many, many zillions of happy days, Mary and Carl, and may all your troubles be social workers and pharmacists!

What's this town coming to? . . . engagements and marriages every week . . . but nary a divorce! We cawn't keep fashionable this way. 'sfunny . . . when folks get married they broadcast it to the world . . . and when they get divorced . . . they are silent as the grave. Each can be a BREAK . . . so ring dem bells for either.

TALK O' TOWN

Crisp, Breezy Comment On This and That and Those In Smoke Town

THE BRIDES HAVE IT!

Yes, suh! This is the week of orange blossoms and tulle veils . . . "I do" and "I will" . . . No foolin'! Two of our most charming girls are about to do that thing according to the book. In fact, when you read this, one of them will have middleaisled with her darling love and doubtless on her way to honeymoon bliss.

The first is sweet Pauline Allen . . . who weds today (Thursday) in the Carron Street Baptist Church in a pretty ring ceremony, with six lovely bridesmaids and a matron of honor gowned in soft pastel shades of chiffon. A rainbow wedding it is and no detail is missing to make it most perfect . . . and Sattidy, the charming Mary Smith will step off to the tune of Lohengrin's wedding march in the Soho Community Center. A matron of honor and two bridesmaids in pink and blue will usher pretty Mary to the altar . . . and then away she will go to sunny California.

And the grooms . . . Lawd! I almost forgot to mention the ole deahs. Pauline's hubby will be Joseph (Joe) Bolden . . . a Pittsburgher, no less, and a fine chap. Mary's big moment is Carl Tinker . . . once attended Pitt and now lives in Los Angeles, where he is going to take our Mary. The so and so!

WELL, congratulations, newlyweds. Remember, the first fifty years are the hardest . . . Love and laugh and never give up. And, I'll be seeinya!

While on the subject of marriages, I have good news for you newlyweds. If you don't believe it can be done, listen to this: Mr. and Mrs. L. Holland of 1049 Lawndale street celebrated their 36th wedding anniversary last Sunday . . . AND Mr. and Mrs. L. O. Black of 918 Herron avenue celebrated their 13th wedding anniversary last week. NOW . . . they are in for the orchids of the week. Mr. and Mrs. Holland and Mr. and Mrs. Black, will you accept a nice bouquet from The Talk of Town? We congratulate you and wish you many, many more years of wedded bliss. May all your troubles be golden wedding anniversaries.

This is strictly 33 degree news . . . The Memsuco Club (I'm not sure that's spelled correctly) of Smoketown entertained the visiting Sovereign Grand Inspectors and Generals of the Northern Southern jurisdiction of Scottish Rite Masons at a dinner in the "Y" last Wednesday evening during the conclave. Twenty-eight were present and Illustrious W. T. Poole, 33d degree, the president, and active member of the Supreme Council, made the welcoming address. Now the reason that is in the Talk is because it concerns the high muckidee mucks in the Masons, which is a total mystery to us. But womanlike, we would meddle. At any rate, it was the swank affair (socially) of the conclave.

And, who said the conclave was a flop? . . . Let me tell you Smoketown folk sumpin'. It is no credit for you to broadcast the fact that a convention to which you were host was a FLOP. If you think so, keep it to yourself. Where's your pride? AND ANOTHER THING, your faction can't have its way ALL OF THE TIME.

"WELDED" SATURDAY

(Johnson Photo)

The ceremony will be performed at the Soho Community House in Fifth avenue, and among the guests will be the little children of the Center. A reception will follow at the family residence in Pierce street.

MARY SMITH AND CARL TINKER WED

Soho Community House Is Scene of Impressive Nuptial; Couple to Live In California.

Amid the scenes of the numerous joys and successes of her chosen profession of social work at the Soho Community House, the wedding of Mary Elizabeth Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Smith, to Carl Quincy Tinker was solemnized last Saturday, with the Rev. Dr. Robert D. Brown officiating. The lovely vocal selection, "Because," was sung by Miss Norine West, accompanied by Mrs. Elizabeth Dorsey, both childhood chums of the bride.

The the melodious strains of Mendelssohn came the bridesmaids, Miss Mary Taylor and Mrs. Joseph Raciappa, attired in blue imported net, with accessories of shell pink; the matron of honor, Mrs. Katherine George Smith, sister-in-law of the bride, whose classic beauty was enhanced by the shell pink imported net frock, featuring blue accessories, with which she carried an arm bouquet of roses and larkspur; the junior bridesmaid, Miss Joyce Roberts, cousin of the bride in a white organza frock, piquant and dainty in its simplicty, carried an old-fashioned nosega, of rosebuds and frills.

The bride—what a picture she made, as she gracefully and smilingly tred the primrose path on the arm of her father. Her gown of honeymoon satin featured the very new panelled sleeves and molded her youthful figure most exquisitely. Her veil was of white tulle, accentuated by a cap effect of real lace, held in place by orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of calla lilies.

A bridal dinner, where covers were laid for 29, was held immediately following the ceremony at the home of the bride, and a reception followed in the evening from 8 to 10.

The couple left immediately after the reception for Buffalo, where they will honeymoon for two weeks, returning here before their trip to the coast to the city of Los Angeles, to make their home.

Mr. Tinker is a graduate of Pitt Pharmacy school and the bride is of Carnegie Tech.

Talk O' Town

By Jule

Some Changes Made . . .

YES, indeedy!

Someone wrote there is a change in the ocean, a change in the sea . . but lawdy, there is no change in me. But that "ain't the way I heard it."

The folks are changing their minds and their men . . and why not?

From way out on the sunny coast of California I hear that our very own Mary Smith Tinker and Carl Tinker are telling it to the judge . . and the papers have long since been handed down in the Jimmie Lee-Nan Rucker Lee divorce. The coast may be good for your health, but it doesn't seem to be so lovely for your love.

Look at the actors and actresses in Hollywood!

But we have our troubles in other parts of the country. In Cleveland the Sidney Thomases (Gladys Brown) are wider than the Great Divide.

Changes made! That is the thing to do if you can't get along. I believe there is happiness in this world for everyone. Just find it! It certainly is truly wonderful . . if you can get it!

Second Baptist Is Air-Minded

Headed by Mr. and Mrs. S. P. Johnson of the popular Conner-Johnson Funeral Home, a group of young people from Second Baptist Church were the guests last Sunday of the California Birdmen at their Gardena Valley Airport. Going directly from the morning services at the Eastside church, the group spent a pleasant afternoon at the flying field, inspecting the facilities of the airport and taking short demonstration hops.

On hand to greet the visitors were Major George W. Stone, president of the California Birdmen, and Major Arthur L. Flicke, Jr., operations director.

Considerable enthusiasm was displayed by the young people who were encouraged by the Johnsons. The affair was arranged by Morris D. Hampton, popular young member of Second Baptist Church and editor of the church's youth paper, YOUTHINK.

Hampton, a veteran of one of the air services battalions, is himself interested in flying and plans to spot-light the interest of the young people of the community in the next issue of the church's paper.

COMMUNITY FACES LOSS OF CHILD CARE CENTERS: Slated to Close in March Permanently Lc

COMMUNITY FACES LOSS OF CHILD CARE CENTERS

-Permanently Locked Out?-

Slated to Close in March

THESE LITTLE TOTS, colored and white, are among the thousands throughout the state who will be permanently shut out of Child Care Centers on March 1, unless a bill introduced into the legislature this week by Assemblyman Augustus Hawkins is passed prior to that time. Above are some of the 45 pre-school age children who attend the 36th Street School Child Care Center, shown outside the school building. In the rear line are members of the Parents Council which is energetically pushing the fight to keep the centers open permanently. At the extreme right is seen Mrs. Catherine Jamelson, treasurer and publicity manager in the center (button on lapel) is Mrs. Corine Ashby, secretary. (Photo by Clyde Woods.)

An urgent appeal for community support through sending letters and telegrams to Governor Earl Warren asking that the child care centers be made permanent was issued by the Parents Council of Los Angeles, an organization composed of parents of children of pre-school age.

The child care centers were established during the war as an emergency measure for the purpose of caring for the children of war workers. However, their benefits and importance were reflected in the growing demand of parents who are employed and find it impossible to secure proper supervision for their children.

The centers are under the supervision of trained, qualified teachers. A regular, organized program of rest periods, specially cooked foods, including orange juice, codliver oil, and milk, and special medical attention are provided for needy children.

According to reports made at an executive board meeting of the council this week, it was learned that organized community support must be launched immediately to insure the passage of Assemblyman Augustus Hawkins' bill making the child care center a permanent institution. Churches, clubs, and other civic groups are asked to immediately wire to the governor and to their assemblymen and senators asking that they fully support the bill.

It was further revealed that donations would be welcome for the purpose of sending delegates to Sacramento to lobby on the bill when it comes up in the legislature.

Senate Stalls On Funds for Child Centers

SACRAMENTO— Continuance of child care centers in California until June 30 was endangered on Monday when the Senate postponed action on the $1,500,000 appropriation already approved by the Assembly.

Unless the appropriation is passed, the state's 350 centers will have to close March 1, thus slamming the doors in the faces of the many hundreds of children now attending, the mothers of many of whom are forced to work for a living and have no alternative means of caring for the youngsters.

Opposition to the appropriation was led by Sen. Earl Desmond (D) of Sacramento, who rejected the view that the centers fill an urgent need. "The place to rear children," he said, "is in the home. I am afraid this child-care center philosophy will involve the compulsory attendance of children of pre-school age. Their minds can be shaped by the State."

The measure was attacked also as "paternalistic and socialistic."

Fate of Child Care Centers in Jeopardy
Los Angeles Sentinel (1934-); Feb 20, 1947; ProQuest Historical Newspapers: Los Angeles Sentinel

Fate of Child Care Centers in Jeopardy

With the nations collective eye being focused, scrutinizingly, upon the national budget for the fiscal year of 1947, Los Angeles mothers are confronted with a situation that could result disastrously. If contemplated plans are put into execution, the Child Care Center will cease, as of June 30, 1947. This present Child Care program was initiated by the Federal Government under the Lerham Act and expired at the termination of war.

However, the State of California, sensing the urgent need for the continuance of this program, for its own people, passed a law providing for child care on a temporary basis. Now with the need of such an organization ever more compelling than ever plans are under way to close the Child Care Centers, thereby openly inviting juvenile delinquency to some 14,000 children in the state who are presently enjoying its benefits.

Statistics from the California Department of Industrial Relations show the total number of women employed as wage earners in California manufacturing industries rose to 123,600 in September from 89,600 in May, 1946. These figures are exclusive of Agricultural and domestic employment and represent only about one-third of the total picture.

Child Care Centers are not only beneficial to the children of working mothers, rather it is inseparable and conducive to our high standards of social development. The family being what it is, the unit of society, we must preserve the integral parts, if we are to maintain the position we now so deservedly cherish.

Because of the diversified nature of the program and the ages to which it applies, the execution must be educational and would necessarily continue to be administered by the State and local boards of education.

Our children must have a permanent program embodying highest standards of health and educational guidance, free from stringent restrictions and exorbitant fees. It must be set up with adequate facillities for expansions with State financing and supervision.

Let us all get behind the interest of our children and our community and urge all assembly men and all state senators to pass legislation according to the aforementioned principles.

Woman of the Week

By LIBBY CLARK

EDITOR'S NOTE—This feature conducted by Libby Clark, depicts the life and activities of some woman who has made her mark on the social and civic side of the ledger of life.

LOS ANGELES—She's come a long, long way from the raven haired tot who kept her mother busy and worked hazards on her father's pocketbook with new dollies every other week, but her motherly instinct and love for babies is still there. In the place of Mary, her Swedish doll; Jane, her dimpled colored baby; Alice, her English lassie, and others of her numerous and interracial collection of doll babies, Mary Smith Clay has live moppets of Japanese, Caucasian, Mexican and Negro extraction to busy her day.

MRS. MARY SMITH CLAY
. . . Woman of the Week

Head teacher of the Thirty-sixth Street Child-Care Center, Mrs. Clay, for the past fifteen years has been molding the foundations of our men and women of tomorrow.

PITTSBURGHER

A native of Pittsburgh, Pa., she is the daughter of Mrs. Alice Smith and the late Charles Smith, and is the sister of Dr. J. Shepherd Smith, Philadelphia, Pa.

She attended the local schools, and took her formal training at Margaret Morrison College for Women, a branch of Carnegie Technical School, in Pittsburgh.

Her profound interest in the small child and his problems resulted in the establishment of a play school at the Soho Community Center, where she accepted a position following graduation.

LOVES WORK

Evidence of her love and interest in her tiny wards was revealed when she held her wedding at the Community Center so the children could see "teacher" married.

Following her marriage, she accompanied her husband to Los Angeles, took up residence and set about rearing a family.

The birth of two sons didn't quell her longing for babies or desire to be an integral part of their upbringing, so when Donald, her youngest was of nursery school age, she again resumed her profession.

During the fifteen-year period she has served as teacher and head teacher of the Nursery Division of the Albion Street School, Nevin Avenue School, Twenty-eighth Street School, Jefferson High School and Thirty-sixth Street School.

POPULAR CENTER

One of the most successful and popular centers in the city at the Thirty-sixth Street School, Mrs. Clay has projected a two-fold program into her agenda, which stimulates parental interest in the nursery, and center official interest into their family problems.

Special emphasis is placed on behavior problems of children and those of the parents, whether they be medical, financial, or of a marital nature. Each child is treated as an individual, and his needs and wants dealt with accordingly.

Says our honoree: "Fifty children are already registered here at the nursery, and I'm very happy for them, but I am also distressed over the sixty or more whom we can't accommodate."

CONTINUES

Mrs. Clay continued by saying that after a child gets three full balanced meals and still appears upset or distant, observations and experience proved that he is emotionally hungry for the love of his parents, the recognition of his parents and the security of his parents, thereby making it a vital necessity for the parent to be friend and companion to the child.

Besides being invaluable to the working mother and father who place their baby in her charge daily, Mrs. Clay has endeared herself to fellow-citizens through her work with numerous organizations.

An accomplished musician she is now readying a book of songs for small children, for publication.

She likes to cook and enjoys nothing better than horseback riding or roller skating with her sons, Donald and Carl.

A perfect size fourteen, with a pleasant smile, disposition to match, and beautiful auburn hair which she wears in a becoming bob, Mrs. Clay strives daily in her mannerisms and dress to evade "the school teacher" look for her sons, whose chief worry is that their mother might some day look like a school marm.

"Some day," she says, "when time permits, I'm going to write a book about living in the house with three boys, the oldest boy being my husband, Wilborn Clay."

12 Big Sisters Present Annual Charity Affair

The 12 Big Sisters presented their annual event which this year was a "49er Buffet Snack," given Saturday evening, December 11, at Cooley's Associated Clubhouse, 1748 West 21st street.

The 12 Big Sisters were organized by Mrs. Faustina N. Johnson to aid girls compelled by Court to live in an institution, regardless of the nature of the case. So impressive is their program that juvenile and adult law enforcers and correctional workers have welcomed their assistance.

Led by their president, Mrs. Dorothy Jones, they visit each holiday season during the year and take programs as well as gifts. They have no drives or do any begging. They have one large event a year for finance, the rest they donate from dues and taxation.

The finest project the 12 Big Sisters take credit and find pride and joy in doing, is the chance to carry a young girl through college. In August they succeeded in gaining the privilege to be a Big Sister to a young lady who was graduating from one of the Public Homes with the highest grades of any of her class, being the Valedictorian of her class and the only one of Color in the group. Tuition and books are paid for each semester by the 12 Big Sisters and her personal allowance given each month through the Dean of Women. This particular college has been most cooperative and the Juvenile Authorities have credited with pride this one accomplishment that they too have longed for someone to accept as a project from within our groups.

Mrs. Anne O'Farrell was the committee chairman for the 49er night.

Other members who supervised the many games played or directed the square dances are: Mrs. Ruth Stewart, capable secretary pro tem; Mrs. "Jerry" Woods, Mrs. Mary Clay, Dr. Kathleen Jones King, Mrs. Vivian Wilson, Mrs. Retha Beck, Mrs. Sadie Weems Patterson, Mrs. Emily Johnson, anr Mrs. Zepher Gil.

The Phi-Delphian Social club shared the spotlight over the past week-end, when they held their annual "Mother's Brunch," Sunday morning at the Wilfandel Club out West Adams Way. Like everything else the popular club gives, Sunday's Brunch was quite successful, with the Rountree Catering Service setting up places for 36. Since the social club's organization, ten years or so ago very special Mothers Day affairs have been given, Sunday morning's was a gay soiree, informal, carefree and with enormous zest, things got off to an early start and remained most energetic throughout the early afternoon. It's beginning to look as if Barbara Herndon can be identified as a perfect program leader, for she jotted the words to the mother's day song that her fellow club members sang to the gay tune of "It's a Sin To Tell a Lie," she did a solo number, and also shared a featured spot in the skit, along with Odessa Jones. The entire program carried the mothers and visiting guests back to the days when they were tripping the light fantastics. Adding her bit to the Nostalgic interlude was Jean Brown Harrison, who did the Charleston, like there was "No tomorrow," to coin a word from the Old Square; Norma Williams starred doing the "Cake Walk," and the versatile Odessa Jones, returned to the scene "Rollin-the-Jack." Striking a serious note, the versatile Gloria Roberts rendered one of her concert numbers and bringing the program to fine harmonizing on "My Heart Crys For You" were, Barbara Faulkner, club prexy; Corine Kemp, Betty Wallace, Jackie Clay and Jennard Stanchemore. As hard as the girls tried to stay on the gay side, this number brought tears not only to the eyes of the singers but also their mothers who were pulling for them along the side line. Red and white carnations decorated the appointed tables, and listed in the group of moms, in-laws, and close friends were: Mmes. Kyles, Lillian Lee, Jennie Worsham, Pearl Roberts, Della Williams, Yolanda Stovall, William Faulkner, Mrs. Lambert, Edith Jones, Edith Kemp, Alice Harvey, Florence Ellsworth, Edith Nicholas, Irene Morris, Helen Green, and a host of others. The affair ended around 1:45, giving many of the guests a chance to attend the Hazel Scott concert. . . .

POT POURRI

One of the most spectacular gowns this writer has ever viewed (and we have viewed many a gown) was worn by that scintillating personality, Hazel Scott, when she played her heart out for a most appreciative audience at Sunday's concert sponsored by dear ole AKA. For a brief description the creation took yards and yards of shimmering white satin, caught artistically on the side by puffed drape effect of brilliant green. The bodice hugged her shapely form and was spangled with tiny seed-pearl. Her slippers were of matching green. We won't troy to give a critical review of the music, (See George Garner's report), however we must mention that the First Lady of the Key Board indeed went from Bach to Boogie and when she got off on the Bee-Bop Kick, the house rocked, well quietly so, anyway. It was an enjoyable afternoon, please believe me! There were many merry groups that made the concert and topped the evening with dinner together, etc. Seated on my right was Doc Andy King, on my left was the charming Virginia Johnson. The jovial Hattie McDaniel was a seat or two behind and over in mid-center sat the Eugene Hardimans, Laura Slayton, Katherine Kenney, George and Netta Garner, together again; Benny and Earline Shaw, and close by we spotted Myrtle Hughes, the William Becks, John Somervilles, Ursula Murrell, Libby Clark, Alice Lynch, and Pauline Slater, and what a gay crowd in the foyer during intermission. Seemed like everybody was just carried away with the whole affair. Greeted the AKA head, Zenobia Allen, all smiles, wearing an orchid corsage, the publicity head, Bernice Wright, in the latest Duster garb, Leontyne King in an original number of black crepe that was stunningly set off by a perky hat; the Ivan Browings, Winsome Benzell Graham, the Cris Wrights, Zerish Eberhardt, and so many others on hand for the memorable afternoon. Yep Hazel Scott is Tops! and we certainly enjoyed her program. By the way, Vivian Strange and her committee did a bang up job on the souvenir program, we recall a few years ago when we worked together on souvenir programs.

Comes Sunday the 13th, and the Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity will take over at Ciro's out on the Sunset Strip with a special invitation affair, honoring its neophite members. The smart ingathering will be one of the most brilliant affairs of the social season, so says Dave Arbor the gent in charge and Carl King, chapter vice president who is handling activities for the neophytes throughout this entire week . . . Another interesting date, a little off in the future is claimed by that popular Vogue Art charity and social club for on June 24, the ladies will exhibit their handicraft at a special Cocktail party. Plans have been made to make this year's affair bigger than ever before. Bids will soon go in the mail. Prexy of the organization is Emily Troy Jackson and her roster includes, Mabel Coleman, Sara Collier, Mattie Huddleston, Estelle Lane, Arthenia Lewis, Julia McKinney, Ernestine Nickerson, June Smith, Ruth Speights, Helen Trammell, Velma Rodgers, and we can't forget Zerich Eberhardt's name, for she too is a hard working member.

PARTY LINE

The menu played quite a hand in Gladys Clarke's ingathering Sunday afternoon. Innocently enough, she began inviting extra guests in for the social part of the Doll League Charity club meeting. Once the irrepressible Gladys and her "Clarkie" decide to entertain things to coin a phrase, "snowball." In other words a contenation was commenced that wound up in a colorful, successful affair. Everyone was dressed casually, and Gladys cajoled "Clarkie" into preparing a feed that was fit for kings, and a few of the Leaguers husbands were in the act as mixologists, including Ernie Bendy, Gladwin Ball, Boyd Pickett, and during the late hours, Charlie DeMan. Guests dropping in were the John Scuggs of Detroit, Michigan, Harold Brown, and former League member, Marion B. Jackson, of Washington, D. C. . . Support Widens for Child Care Centers

Protests over the threatened close down of the child care center program in California were increasing, it was reported this week in a dispatch from the office of Assemblyman Augustus F. Hawkins at the State Capitol in Sacramento. The Los Angeles City Council last week adopted a resolution opposing the termination of this program.

The crisit for the child care centers was precipitated by the refusal of Governor Goodwin Knight to include prorvisions for their financing in the proposed state budget for the coming fiscal year, which begins on July 1. If State money is not provided for its support, the program will end on June 30. There are 108 centers in California, including several in the 62nd Assembly district and the general eastside area of Los Angeles county. Several thousand children are on the waiting list, but because of a serious shortage cannot be accommodated.

In order to meet this emergency a bill has been introduced to appropriate the necessary money to continue the centers. This is Assembly Bill 980 by Assemblymen Ernest R. Geddes, Augustus F. Hawkins, Edward E. Elliott, and 48 other authors. Because it is an appropriation measure, the bill requires a two-thirds vote of both Houses of the Legislatu

The program was originally tablished in 1942 in order to p vidt day nurseries for the c dren of working mothers. It jointly financed by State mo and fees collected from pare who place children in the c ters. It has received wide supp for more than a decade from dustry, educators, parent teac associations, labor organizatio and many others.

SURROUNDED by friends as she cuts her cake during the party honoring her graduation from Pepperdine is Gloria Joy Hunnicut, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Sherman Hunnicutt. Pictured are Lestrita Nicholas, Arlene Provost, J. Ronald Powell, Gloria Angelita Nicholas, Camille Finn and Beverly Gopal. Assisting throughout the evening were Mr. and Mrs. Lester Nicholas, Mrs. Ethel Provost, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Sterling, Mrs. Mary Clay, Mrs. Neosho Tatum and Mrs. Corine Gleed.

WEARING a bouffant imported pink lace gown pretty Gloria Joy Hunnicutt (back to camera) greeted her many guests as they arrived at the Pacific Town club for the party honoring her graduation and birthday. The guests enjoyed the music of H. B. Baurm and his band.

Gay Party Honors Gloria Hunnicutt

The Town Club, a beautiful setting, dancing from 9 to 1, champagne punch, a birthday cake and other dainties, was the compliment that Mr. and Mrs. J. Sherman Hunnicutt, bestowed upon their daughter, Gloria Joy, who recently received her B.A. degree from Pepperdine College, and also celebrated her birthday.

Hosts of her friends filled the Town Club, Saturday evening for the gala affair.

Gloria, in a bouffant imported pink lace over pink taffeta, whirled about the dance floor with her partner J. Ronald Powell, who is a junior at Meharry Medical College and a visitor in L.A. for the summer.

The fireplace decorated with a pastel flower arrangement made a lovely background in the lounge.

The patio overlooking the pool was a breathtaking scene as the girls danced with their partners in their party frocks.

The table in the dining area was clothed in pink and decorated with pastel flowers. In the center was a birthday cake, and at either end of the table Mrs. Annabelle Nicholas and Mrs. Ethel Provost poured champagne punch.

At 11 p.m., Gloria cut her birthday cake while her many friends sang "Happy Birthday."

At a late hour the guests departed, declaring it an evening long to be remembered.

the business world. Thelma Robinson, chaired the program for her chapter, and brought the following well known personalities to enlighten the listeners: Emily Johnson, Real Estate; Kermella Cook, Social Work; A. Lucille Reynolds, Education; Mayme G. Lewis, Clerical; Robert Wilson, Stock Market, and Yours Truly did a bit of pinch hitting for the field of Journalism. Following the question and answer period we took part in a "Coffee Break" and enjoyed chatting with several representatives of the Beta Pi Sigma business sorority who found the session most informative. The Iota Patron group was much in evidence, along with the alert young women who make up the Alpha Phi chapter membership. We say congrats to the Iotas for taking time out to point up the adaptability and ability of Anchorettes in the business world, and the part they play in encouraging high school students to further their education.

It was an early hour Wednesday morning when we were winding our way across the Pasadena Freeway, along with the Leon Washingtons, Jr. The incentive for this 7:30 jaunt was to keep an 8:00 a.m. breakfast date at the home of Ester and Ray Jones, where the board of the Pasadena NAACP was honoring Dr. Ralph Bunche with an informal breakfast. Speaking of precision, the NAACP prexy and his co-workers had the affair so planned that to the exact minute, all speaking, chit-chatting, etc., ended in time for Dr. Bunche to make his morning lecture at Cal Tech. His touching on world affairs, the race problem and other events of the day kept all of us fascinated.

NOTES OF INTEREST

The Turnabout Charity club members are working over-time on a "broken toy" drive to be launched in the near future. Marcella Jackson is chairing the drive and the club members are expecting the community to lend its support. On a date to be announced later an appeal will be made by the club for all discarded toys, including broken toys that will be fixed like new by the workers at the Toy Loan Workshop. Plans for the drive were discussed at the meeting hosted by Leola Davis the other Friday evening. The girls also listed an "apparel" shower for the little needy "Miss" they have adopted as a special project. This affair will take place at the Pacific Town Club and each member will invite one guest to take part.

Whenever Marjorie McPherson plays the hostess role you may rest assured the affair will be something different. On Saturday night she launched the Shower Whirl for popular bride-elect, Gloria Hunnicutt. "Bit O Sweden's" Smorgasbord table, is a comparable parallel for the description of Marjorie's buffet. To put the more than 40 guests in the mood for the evening's theme, typical Swedish music could be heard playing softly in the background. The serving crew wore bright red shirts and were much in evidence as they saw that all moved smoothly. Candiments were artistically arranged on a huge Viking Ship, that centered the main table and the name of the honoree was inscribed on its red and white striped mast. It was a very enjoyable affair, and Gloria fairly radiated as she opened the numerous gifts of china pieces in her selected pattern.

Looking as pretty as pictures were several Anchorette members who will take part in Gloria's wedding on June 17. The Nicholas Twins, Shirley Johnson, Judith Dickey, Mary Ann Bauman and several others were up front and center while the gifts were being opened. Assisting was Mrs. Cornelia Bradford. Looking as proud as Gloria's mom during the entire evening was Emily Portwig, Anchorette Advisor, who looks on all the girls as her own. Mary Clay, their adopted mom, was having an enjoyable time. Looking very charming in a light blue knit was Bernice Barnum, along with Ursula Murrell, who chose a navy ribbon knit. Birdie Lee and Connie, Marjorie's sisters were there, and on the scene at different intervals was the senior McPherson and Henry, Jr.

We exchanged pleasantries with Venye Corporal, her son, Sherill Luke, is back from his service with Uncle Sam in Japan. He is stationed in San Francisco, and she made the trip up Friday to see him . . . Bessie Burke, Alma Covington, Essie Tucker, Dr. Veda Somnerville, Dorothy Johnson, Irene Morris, Alice Harvey, and many another charming matron was listed among those present.

It's always interesting to talk with the mother of the bride-elect. She's usually as high in the clouds as her daughter and you can believe me, Mrs. Hunnicutt has everything planned to a point of perfection, she even has that cute little secretive smile when pointed questions are asked about the wedding, that will surely be one of the most outstanding. The hours for the Saturday shower were from 3:30 until 11:00. It was such a delightful ingathering some stayed past the hour.

The Edna Woodward household was a busy place early Sunday morn with several smartly dressed ladies enjoying a Brunch that Edna planned in honor of the visiting Mrs. Nellie Dixon Gordon of Dayton, Ohio. Formerly of L.A., the visitor has enjoyed a whirl of fun while house guesting with her mother, Mrs. John Lewis. Enjoying the Brunch were: Marinell Thrash, Evelyn Brown, Lucille Reynolds,

Mary Clay pre-school has first graduation exercise

Primarily concerned with the emotional and psychological development of children up to the age of five, Mrs. Mary Clay rounded out a certain phase of the growth of 13 youngsters Sunday afternoon presenting them in a program marking their graduation from her pre-school. In a garden transformed into an auditorium, little girls and boys, in white caps and gowns, thrilled a large audience of parents and friends with vocal selections, among them a class song, and by their gracious acceptance of diplomas awarded by Mrs. Clay.

Marching in perfect rhythm to music played by Mrs. Lester Nicholas to takes their places on the stage were: Alvia Shaw, Linda Banks, Gregory Andrew, Paula Rausch, Henry Pemberton, Leonard Beeman, Judy Reuben, Billy Smith, Tony Austin, Steve Griggs, Darlene Moore, Debbie Beinenfeld, and Brett Woodson. Welcoming words were spoken by Mrs. Benjamin Grant, a teacher in the city schools and friend of the nursery school. Graduation message was by the Rev. Alvia Shaw.

Bespeaking the effectiveness of Mrs. Clay's handling of children was their excellent behavior during the program and the poise with which they carried out their parts on the program. Mrs. Clay introduced her husband, "without whose help", she said, "her dream of a private nursery school would never have come true."

Former Pittsburgher Sees Dream Come True for Model Nursery School

LOS ANGELES—A dream which was born in the mind of Mary Elizabeth Smith Clay in the ivy-covered halls of Carnegie Tech in Pittsburgh years ago, has come true here in this City of the Angels.

For it was there that the former Mary Smith, daughter of pioneer Pittsburghers Charles and Alice Smith of East Liberty, had a vision of some day having a model nursery school of her own.

In 1933 Mary married another popular Pittsburgher, Bud Clay. She shelved her dream to come to California and rear two fine sons, Carl and Donald.

DURING WORLD WAR II, Mrs. Clay worked in Federal nursery schools by day, but attended UCLA at night, always seeking more knowledge about the training of children. Always this vision of a model private school for tiny tots was her greatest ambition.

Today, on beautiful Crenshaw Blvd. in the heart of Midwestern Los Angeles, the Mary Clay School stands as a monument to the vision and planning of Mary and her husband.

IN MRS. CLAY'S mind—and in ours too—the school furnishes an ideal environment for the democratic development of small children of all races and creeds.

Attending a graduation exercise at the Clay School is a rare treat. Attired in flawless white caps and gowns, the proud graduates are handed their diplomas while parents beamed with satisfaction. It is a colorful and impressive spectacle.

And it all happened because Pittsburgh-born Mary Clay believed whole-heartedly that she could some day make her girlhood dream come true.

was one of nostalgia for many of us who answered the invitation of the Cosmo Club to attend its holiday dinner dance and installation of new officers The setting was the Mike Taylor playroom, where years ago, many of us took part in social activities as guests of the Taylor offsprings, "Sis", Bill and Jimmie. There's little change, with the exception of the fact that the gang's married now and instead of teen-age courting, you find young matrons and spouses, gathered before the friendly fireplace, chatting about Christmas for their youngsters, or decorations for their homes, and how you are actually dated if you can't dance the "CHICKEN" or CHA CHA.

Louise and Mike, the senior Taylors, were on scene keeping the viands moving and they were tasty! The entire mood of the evening was as gay as the bright green cloth that covered the table, centered by red and white Christmas Holly. Norman B. Houston chaired the activities. The installation was the serious note of the evening . . . Ed Henry gave a fitting speech as retiring prexy. A special citation went to Major Cliff Allen for his untiring efforts during the past year. Maurice Jones made the presentation pitch . . . All of this served as a pace setter for the key Installation address given by George A. Beavers Jr., Chairman of the Board of Directors of GSM. He commended the entire club on taking steps toward becoming a civic as well as social group. Their recent contribution has been toward a life membership in the NAACP. LeRoy Milton accepted the gavel as president for the '58 term . . . and from that point on, the good time rolled in a true holiday spirit . . .

Former Cosmo, Gene Williams and his vivacious wife Florence were among those present. They live in Encino now, so their socializing on the local scene comes in long stretches. Flo mentioned her last party with the gang was last year at this same installation fete. Barbara and Billy Faulkner, Elbert and Marilyn Hudson, Norma and Frank Harvey, the Wallace DeCuirs, Bobby Brewington, Irving Smith were having as much fun dancing as they did in the "old" days . . . Ditto Sy and Felix Williams, Eunice Gross, her sis Betty, the Haywood Carters, Larry Browns, George Whitesides, Lou and Herbie Boswell, Teda and Willard Woods, Betty Henry, Clara Allen, Leo Hendersons, who made the "Women's" club party earlier, Mel and Ike Blocker . . . Mel was lovely in white satin; Lorraine Houston and her date, Ivan and Phillippa Houston, and many another. It was a wonderful party and a grand starter for the never ending round of yuletide events. Rip Russell took bows as chairman of the party and he was ably assisted by his Leontyne, Annette and Bill Taylor . . .

HOLIDAY FUN

Saturday night, the C. C. Club, made merry at Antoinette and Eddie Atkinson's home until the very wee hours. By the way, the meaning of the initials is still a deep secret after all these years. Believe me, we have certainly tried to find out what they are . . . for the members seem to get a giggling pleasure whenever asked . . .

Saturday from morning until night was quite busy . . . Bob Dalton's LaCienega Restaurant, was the scene where a gay welcome was extended Mrs. Edith Loving and her daughter, Mrs. Mary Lou Loving. The festive luncheon was attended by more than 50 smartly attired women who joined in delightful holiday conversation. Mrs. Walter (Mary Lou) Loving, will visit her husband shortly after Christmas at his army station, for goodbyes . . . he's leaving for a sojourn in Germany, under Uncle Sam's banner. Mary plans to join him later. While in the city, Mrs. Edith Loving is stopping with the William Watkins . . .

For Saturday's luncheon the hostess, Mrs. Edith Lovings, chose black, green feathers complimented her large black felt hat . . . Her daughter in law wore a smart beige sheath with matching chapeaux trimmed in bronze feathers . . . Bernice Watkins chose bright Christmas red for her mid-day suit. At the same table were Rosemary Holloman, Maria Coles, Phillppa Houston, Lou Boswell. Across the way sat Anthanaise (Puffy) Hill, Ouida Williams (the recent Ebony display of her home is tops), Alice Matthews, Betty Vaughn, wearing the latest in fur suits; Emily Portwig, Edith Jones, Mamie Waugh, Pauline Boultee, Donzella Wharton and Irene Morris.

We also exchanged holiday greetings with Dr. Veda Somerville, Mrs. Paul R. Williams, Mrs. Irene Hudson, just back from recent trip east; Mrs. Jennie Worsham, and many others. A continuous round of social activities combined with holiday entertaining will keep the Oakland visitors quite busy during their stay. Mrs. Edith Loving will leave for home after the 25th, when her daughter in law leaves to join her husband . . .

We left Bob Daltons and made way to the Beverly Hilton where the 13 Aides, in their inimitable manner, were holding sway in the Surray room. Shocking pink was a refreshing color scheme after seeing so much of the precious holiday red and green. The main table was set in

He's quite busy now days in the P.R. post of the new Frank Sinatra picture, "Kings Go Forth". Not long ago we enjoyed a visit to the lot where scenes were being shot . . . Doc is doing a terrific job and we hear that he will probably be instrumental in activities that will put the coming Urban League membership drive over the top . . .

Sunday night Jane Criner put out the welcome mat to a host of her friends at her West 25th street apartment. Emily Jones and her George had quite a time party hopping between the Urban League Banquet, Jane's holiday fete and Paul and Evelyn Brown's annual sharing of refreshments from their wassail bowl. At the latter affair the Julius Wessons, Edwin Pettys, Carrie Goodson, Lucille Reynolds (she's newly elected Iota Prexy), Carrie and Hoyt Brown, the Able Robinsons, Conklin Brown, Ameera Clark, Marlon Jackson, Al Wilson, and we would go on naming, for throughout the appointed hours many a pal filled his cup with tasty cheer at Woot and Jean's . . .

HERE AND THERE

Shirley Cannon spent the past week vacationing in Palm Springs . . . Old St. Nick arrived in person at the holiday party for Jack and Jill groups one and two Saturday at Mary Clay's Nursery School . . . The parents had as much fun as the youngsters . . . The Brice Taylors hosted a fabulous kiddie party for their little six year old Saturday afternoon at their Hollywood Hills Home . . . A clown proved to be fun for the youngsters. Many of the guests were from the Pasadena Jack and Jill chapter that little Miss Taylor belongs to . . . Glimpsed the Mel Whitfields (Miss 7 Up Nola Simons) at the Ambassador Hotel Friday night. The occasion was the Ramo-Wooldridge Corp. (Inglewood, Calif.) holiday party, that kept three ballrooms jumping from 9 until 1 . . . Hear that around Palm Sunday Lillian Orange has orange blossom ideas followed by a honeymoon trip to Mexico City . . . Who's the man of the hour, Jess Cottom, of course . . . Ed Petty was responsible for the beautiful array of fruit the Doll Leaguers gave to their little guests at the kiddie party. He'll be among special guests at the Installation party on the 27th . . . Leontyne King is welcoming her family and friends in the traditional manner at her new apartment this holiday season . . . Hear that Santa popped a new View Park home in Ruth Kenner's stocking for Christmas . . . It's spanking brand new, and just what she wanted . . . of course the youngsters and the Milomo's Bert Kenner are quite thrilled with the new abode . . . Hazel Washington will take time out to rest now that the holiday season is ending . . . She did some of the outstanding decorating you see about town . . . f'instance, the King Cole home and grounds . . . the pale pink Santa and deer that enhance Charity White's home . . . Hicky and Verna Hickmon's are among the very special . . . And so we make deadline until NEXT WEEK.

Bob Johnsons Have Baby Christened

On Sunday, December 8, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Johnson of 2715 S. Western avenue had their baby daughter, Renee Venetia, christened at Holy Name Catholic Church. The ceremonial was unusually beautiful. The baby was dressed in the traditional long white gown, a gift from a cousin, Mrs. Carrie Clark.

The Godmother, Mrs. Nancy Harper, and Mr. Willie Thomas, who stood in the absence of Godfather, Joe Johnson, toasted in champagne to a long and prosperous life for the young lady, at the reception and buffet that followed at the Johnson home.

week-end looking for merriment in homes with informal parties and grand ball rooms ,where the most formal affairs will hold sway. The Cosmo Club members were certainly under the magic spell, a bit in advance, when their annual Masquerade dancing party took place Friday evening in the Palm Room of the Beach Area's Miramar Hotel. Socialites flocked in large numbers to the annual affair, planned strictly for fun by the popular Cosmos. Masques were optional, however, the elaborate event was outstandingly gay and colorful with the capacity crowd of old friends exchanging greetings and dances.

The semi-formal was marked by some of the smartest dancing gowns we have seen in many a moon. Annette Taylor brought out the designing in her ,with the new short length creation, topped by a bright red satin theatre coat; Pat Prescot's lovely figure was sheathed from tip to toe, in emerald green taffeta; Harriette Johnson was floating in white tulle and silver sequin bodice, as she danced with hubby Jay . . . Newlywed Eunice Gross Robinson wore sophisticated black topped by a fur trimmed jacket. Sy (Mrs. Felix) Williams was enjoying her first big date out, after the visit from Doc Stork. It's no wonder the music was so good, with such top artists as Benny Carter, Eddie Beal, and the rest of their crew, holding sway on the orchestra stand.

The Al Pattons were among early arrivals, so luckily had a ring-side table. Joining them were Harold and Pat Machen, Dr. and Mrs. Eugene Walker (Olive), the Sammy Flerys, Billy Farringtons, and many another, between dances. Across the way, Gwen and Ernest Jackson could be found along with J. P. Taylor, Gloria Taylor, the Stanley Malones, who table-hopped most of the evening. It was fun seeing the Haywood Carters in the dancing throng, ditto Ruth Kenner, Pasadena's Ted Bartletts, winsome Paulette Garland, the Frank Abneys, Arnold Stanchmores, Eddie and Ruth Speights. Ted Schaffers, the Hill Twins, Hugo and Kinneth and wives, Gloria and Charlane.

Conklin Brown was much in evidence, ditto the Johnnie Brewers, Paul Browns, Frank LaVigne, B. T. Davises, Bob and Freddie Ruth Brown (she'll soon be heard in special piano recital). Cel Eggleson, Betsy Greene, Rudi Eggleson, the Milton Woods were taking time out to chat. Cosmos looked especially handsome in their char-red coats and formal trousers .Having as much fun as the guests were Prexy and Mrs. LeRoy Milton, Betty and Edward Henry, the Charles Earles, Bobby and Haroldine Brewington, Marilyn and Elbert Hudson, Norman Houston, Myrtle and Wally DeCuir, Betty and Larry Brown, the Leonard Grimes, Clyde Grimes and the rest of the membership. Sam Strain and his date were certainly concentrating on the Cha Cha steps. We said hello to Vivian Johnson, and the Owen Knoxes, looking very smart . . . This year's Cosmo invitation followed the trend of all others, with old friends getting together. The members were especially sorry that accomodations of the hall would not permit the usual number of guests attending the ball. Many "Before and After" parties were part of the gala evening, one of the best was hosted by Beverly and Leonard Beavers, among their guests stopping by before the ball were Roscoe and Nancy Caroll, Phyllipa and Ivan Houston, and the Steve Johns.

LINKS AND DEBS . . .

Promptly at 8p.m., Halloween night (tomorrow, Oct. 31), when the minor Trick or Treaters have been tucked into bed, witches on broomsticks, goblins and Cobwebs will take a back seat, as the fairy waves her magic wand, over the Statler Hotel, where the most beautiful event of the week-end will be taking place, and we refer to the long-awaited Link's Cotillion Ball. The result of long hours of work will be seen by the group of elegant guests who gather for dinner and dancing in the Pacific Ballroom, to be highlighted by the Seventh Annual Cotillion. The young ladies bowing are from some of the city's best known families. They will be exquisitely gowned and well tutored for this memorable occasion. At the Deb luncheon held last week at the Hilton, each young lady was presented with a gold and pearl bracelet, by her sponsor of the Links, to be worn at the ball. The former Depaur Infantry Chorus singer, E. W. Johnson, will be a featured artist, he now heads the music department at John Adams. Links members are as secretive about their gowns as the debs, this season, we hear that several have been created especially for the ball. Mrs. Henry R. Butler, president, has made extensive plans for an after-party for members and husbands. We also hear that several of the debutants' parents have engaged suites at the hotel for before and after gatherings. You can rest assured the 1958 Cotillion will be listed among [illegible] for such a worthy cause . . .

GAY 90's . . .

The Turnabout Charity Club is planning to leave quite an impression on its wonderful public this season, for instead of the usual revue, the girls are whipping an authentic Mellodrama into shape, for the last Sunday in November. Milton Wood, noted director, is at the helm, with the cast including Lou Boswell, Haroldine Brewington, Verna Dauterieve, Harlette Johnson, Doris Holmes, Helen Jane Steward, and the rest of the members and husbands serving in some unique capacity. The Theatre Mart (Home of the Drunkard for 25 years) has been engaged for the play, that will come complete with the serving of beer and Pretzels during intermission. Turning back the calendar to the more carefree Gay Nineties era will be the musical artistry of Betty Alston, a quintet, and waiters in stripped shirts. The theater is quite small ,so there will be two performances, with limited reservations for each. Turnabout members will have tickets in a few days for circulation . . .

Over the past week-end the moms probably had as much fun as the kiddies taking part in the Saturday group of Jack and Jill Halloween parties. Zorro, ZORRO, ZORRO! was much in evidence at the group one and two affairs, not to mention the clowns, Indians, gypsies and cowboys . . . Charlesetta Tucker's yard was decorated for the little kiddies parade while the second and third graders played Halloween at Mary Clay's school. Jean Holmes, Fay Duffy, Lorrain Robinson were behind the scene at the Tucker abode, while Doris Holmes and Ruth Spencer were in charge at Clays . . . Later that night, the Group five younger set members of the Vogue and Esquires enjoyed their first Hay Ride . . . This week-end other groups will have their Halloween fun . . .

than 1000 children of all ages and nationalities were made happy at the Annul Christmas Party of the Doll League Charity Club last Sunday morning at the Ross Snyder Playground. Hightlighting the affair was the beautiful show put on by the Covan Kiddies, and there was also a Santa Claus who kept the bells continuously ringing as the awe inspired kiddies received toys, candy and fruit. The party was a tremendous success with a record attendance.

NOT ONLY WERE THE DOLL LEAGUERS' guests made happy, but they were able to spread Christmas Cheer to many other children by giving their surplus dolls to the Sunday Morning Breakfast Club, Juvenile Hall children, The exceptional Children's school on West Adams boulevard, and the one in South Los Angeles as well as the Children's Home Society and several other needy groups. Heartfelt thanks are extended to all of you for your magnificent efforts in helping to make this affair bigger and better each year by the president, Ruth Ball, and the entire membership. Many little children were remembered by your unselfish contributions and the officials of Ross Snyder Playground were most cooperative and helpful, states party chairman, Irene Sharpe . . .

FESTIVE ROUND OF PARTIES! PARTIES! PARTIES

Memories of the week-end, crowded with more good times than usual, are as clear as a bell in this December whirl. The Moulin Rouge was the plush setting for the Star-Liters Rainbow Cocktail Hour whose membership is comprised of some of our most glamorous socialites. Exotic Charity Wiley, president, and her entire membership were most gracious in making special effort to assure guests of a wonderful time: Ann Marlbrough, Lois Gayle, Mildred Curtis, Ernestine Kelly, Joan Croomes, Joyce Sonier, Lena Cooper, Nettie Lowe, Mildred Graham, Jean Whitfield and Harriett Thompson. Introduction of the aforementioned was complete show within itself as each member was beautiful in her gorgeous creation. Stellar attraction was none other than the sensational Earl Grant and his Trio, plus the New Moulin Rouge Show starring songstress, Peggy Lee.

Glimpsed number of Hill Toppers at ringside, Dorothy Lewis, Honorene Cochee, Phil Rhoten, and Kay Stone. Nice chatting with Myrtle and J .L. Cunningham of Pasadena; Tom and Stellar Taylor and Albert Weemes. Carrie and Hoyt Brown were really having fun. All agree this was a grand affair.

Much gaiety reigned at the Girl Friends Party Sunday night. Having as much fun as their guests was the personable Mrs. Bertram (Lena) Tucker who was looking very pretty in her Xmas green outfit. Seeing to it that her guests the H. A. Howards, Judge and Mrs. Edwin Jefferson, Mr. and Mrs. E. Parchman, the Stewart Jones, Hoyt Browns, Evelyn Harris and Geneva Wallace were enjoying the tasty service. Charming hostess, Lola Beavers, received in black chiffon; Irene Morris, beige; Della Williams and Georgia Hardimon in black. Milling among the crowd was Bernice Barnum in a beautiful green chapeaux which was definitely an eye catcher. Also enjoyed the chat with Louise Ponder Taylor whom we haven't seen in quite some time, Hazel McBeth, Maxine Heffiin, Honore Levi, Essie Tucker, Hilda Allen and scores more . . .

Members of the Wilfandel Club chose Sunday to celebrate with husbands and friends at a very lavish catered breakfast in their clubhouse. Incidentally this is an annual holiday event where the members might enjoy in regal manner the facilities of the club and the progress they are making. All proclaim Dr. Howard Allen the best eggnog mixiologist which is his yearly duty. Behind-the-scene workers who made this such an outstanding affair were: Frieta Johnson, program chairman; Iva Washington, official hostess; Leontyne King, chairman of Board of Directors; and the president, Mrs. Paul R. Williams. A new freezer was purchased for the club this year, and an elaborate "Open House" is being planned for numerous friends this season . . .

THE COSMO INSTALATION AND ANNUAL XMAS PARTY celebrated last Saturday night in the Reception Room of Broadway Federal Savings and Loan is still the talk of the town. None other than the famous architect, Paul R. Williams, acted as installing officer. Accepting their office in earnest solemnity were: Wallace DeCuir, president; Norman Houston, vice president; Ernest Jackson, secretary; Bill Taylor, treasurer ;Maurice Jones, financial secretary; Ike Blocker and Larry Bown, board members. Dancing followed. Boots and Maurice Jones had the gang over for breakfast to climax this gala affair . . . The Smart Set entertained their many friends last Sunday evening . . . The Phi Delphians Holiday Frolic last Friday night at Victoria Hall was a very elegant affair . . .

More of the same . . . Lessie Stevenson of the Human Hair invited her many friends and patrons to help celebrate the enlargement of her salon with Xmas goodies and cheer on Christmas Eve. Her way of saying thanks to all for such a successful year . . . Very unique invitations were issued for the Mary Clay Pre-School Open House on last Sunday . . . Gala Opening of New Cotton Realty Company offices and Motel on 35th & Western was quite an event Sunday . . . Millie Holbert will have Open House during the holidays and is she happy? Santa Clause left a beautiful '59 Cadillac as her gift . . . Might add that he left a

YOUR Social CHRONICLER — Jessie Mae BROWN

A SYSTEMATIC ACCOUNT of events, particularly of those affecting a nation, is but one of Webster's definitions of HISTORY. It is perfect, however, for Our Authors Study Club's annual effort to bring the city up to date on the numerous contributions the Negro has made to the country, down through the ages. A scant decade or two ago, an organized reviewing of Negro History was an almost unknown thing. We have this club to thank, locally, for encouraging a city wide peek (so to speak) into the gilt edged copies of historical events of our forefathers that have affected this nation in so many ways.

The dates, February 8-15, are high on the calendar of events. Gilbert Lindsey is serving as general chairman of the '59 celebration that covers a wide array of activities. According to Mrs. Vassie Wright, Founder President of the club, the History Week Luncheon, to be held at the Biltmore Hotel, Feb. 14, will find socialites and club leaders flocking downtown in large numbers, for this phase of the celebration promises to be glamorous and most elaborate. In fact, it is being called "History Week's Proud American Luncheon." Putting in extra time, contacting the civic, fraternal and cultural groups is Luncheon chairman, Eula Mae Mattex, who stresses that early reservations must be made. You can bet, a gratifying sum will be taken in at this event, and will be a big help in financing the year-round research program.

A bit of current history making has been done by several of our local women, who are listed in the recently released copy of the National Who's Who of American Women. We doff our Blount Chapeaux, to the charming milliner you have read much about from this pillar over the years, MILDRED BLOUNT; Study Club member, and outstanding social worker, EVANGELINE WOODFOLK; outstanding librarian and member of the local Links, MIRIAM MATTHEWS; Author of "It's Good To Be Back," actress, a Mom of national acclaim, RUBY BERKELEY GOODWIN; and to stars, LENA HORNE, and ETHEL WATHERS, who call Los Angeles home . . .

GIRL FRIDAY'S DAY . . .

When the Urban League pins were given Sunday at the fifth annual Forum Program, our Girl Friday, MARION JACKSON, who did a terrific job of bringing you news from the social scene, while we were keeping that Stork Date, was in the group of diligent Guild workers receiving their five-year pins. If you attended the session, and you probably were in the capacity crowd that filled the ultra-modern Sportsman Park Auditorium, we're wondering if you noticed a little halo spinning over her head . . . From where we sit, we think she's just an angel, so to us the halo was quite evident. We take this means to congratulate her on receiving the five-year pin along with her fellow Guild members, with the hope that she'll see the day that the 15-year pen (awarded George Beavers) or the 10-year pen (Awarded Brazier and others)will be hers. We also want to say "thanks a million ole dear," for keeping the readers so well informed for the past six weeks. By the way, if you noticed a sparkler dazzling on her third finger left hand, you realized that, like most writers, she forgot to mention herself during the columning of events, for she received her ring during the holidays, and has plans for taking the middle aisle, changing the name to Mrs. Albert Wilson in the near future . . . The complete Urban League story is carried in the general news this week. Urban Guild once again came through with a very successful program, saluting Senior Citizens . . .

AROUND TOWN . . .

To the Hills they go . . . and we do mean Baldwin and View Park . . . some of the city's most beautiful. The Wiley College Club members were among the first to be entertained by Dr. and Mrs. H. C. Hudson in their View Park manse. The members were special guests on Saturday night . . . So happens that Consolidated Realty Board and the Pacific Town Club have scheduled their annual affairs on the same date, Jan. 30 will find the Towners at the Sherton House and the Realty Group at Fox Hills. Too bad, some hold membership in both and will have to do a bit of freeway jumping to keep the dates . . . Winsome school marm Dolores Morehead is South District's first Color consultant. She is putting in extra study time at the Chounard Art School, and plans to do additional work at SC next semester while ocmpleting requirements for her Masters Degree . . . George Whiteside, Sr., is State president of the GSM managers. The group met over the week-end in San Francisco. The wives shopped while the gents met, and were joined later for the evening's round of fun. The Larry Browns, and Eddie Speights were among L.A. guests . . .

POLITICAL DOINGS have a definite place in the socializing between now and the spring election. Luncheons, Bruncheons, dinners and the like are being planned by the respective campaigners. sented her Town and Country line of attire from early morn through evening, topped with a beautiful wedding scene. Best Dressed women were introduced mid-way the show, and Estelle said "Thank you" to all participants with a buffet supper at her San Fernando Valley home immediately following show time. It was a catered after-party, and the viands were colorful and tasty, for Christine Hoard had a hand in the arrangements.

Looking tres chic as they popped in and out of different Sunday affairs were Kitty Beard in Green, Jessel King in red and Jennard Stanchmore in beige. They agreed that Estelle Williams styles were the "most" to say the least! Pegga Hawkins, Clara Taylor, Irene Sharp, Becky Farrington and Dorothy Landry (looking smart in knit outfit), Dorothy Lewis, Marion Jackson and Al Wilson, Gwen Garland are a few Angelenos glimpsed in the crowd, viewing the magic that comes from Estelle Williams needles and power machine . . .

NOTES OF INTEREST . . .

The annual Winter Ball Committee of the National Urban League tabled its activities this season, however, it was like "Old Home Week," Sunday afternoon at Elois Davis home, for many of the good committee workers were there to wish Eddie Atkinson the Best. We glimpsed Ann Sweet, the Brian Manians, Drew Johnson, Donald Derricks, Mamie Lewis, and many another. So happens that the case of spirits that committee members sold chances on, was won by precinct worker, A. Litman, much to his surprise. The cute theme was to "put your money where your mouth is." The entire affair proved to be successful, as a fund raising event, and also a booster for Eddie Atkinson. Ouida Williams, chairman, Edith Houston, Elois Davis, who was back from her recent jaunt in time to open her spacious home for the affair; hard working Helen Garrott, Geri Branton, Rosemary Holloman, Ann Coleman, Helen Wright, Maria Cole, Stacey Williams, Fifi Boger are some of the committee members we joined in assisting during our brief stay. Jarone and Charlene Johnson had their two youngest with them; Betty Sevelle was most charming in the "new look" suit (short hem looks good on her).

The candidates are very busy and the activities planned for them are both on the serious and social side. We touch on the social, for that's our line . . . Mary Lou Tolbert, the charming candidate for councilwoman in the 8th district, is hostessing an "At Home," starting at 10 a.m. Sunday at her Sutro Avenue home on March 8. This promises to be quite an ingathering, for Mary Lou and her workers are strictly for work and no window dressing, we learned while chatting with her at the Sentinel office one day last week . . . .

Dr. Delo Gray is consistently at work in the campaign for the 10th district. He recently addressed the Phi-Delphian club members when they met at Jessel King's home. By the way, Delo, an excellent pianist, will be listed among performers at the "Fantasy in Dreamland." He usually does one or two numbers for Hariette at this annual show and promises he won't let her down this year, even though he is quite busy. This brings to mind that concert artist, Virginia Paris, just back from Europe, will sing at the Fantasy and Earl Grant (yep, he's back) will put on a number or two. We caught Earl's show over the week-end at the Interlude with Hariette Johnson and Jack Stancel. It was quite a show, complete with the Ink Spots (Charlie Owens in the lead) and Louis Jordan. Annie High and Wilda Todd were in the house with their respective parties, enjoying the show . . .

HERE AND THERE . . .

Mary Clay recently returned from the east where she attended funeral services for her mother. We extend deepest sympathies to the Clay family . . . One of the most unique campaigns going on at the present time is for membership in Jack and Jill. Some of the material is worth printing, for the moms are going all out to create interest in respective candidates to fill membership vacancies. Candy life savers, with SOS, special prescriptions for membership and all types of poetry have us waiting to read the next . . .

The Friendly 16 met with president, Mrs. Lucille Bufford last week. The ladies mixed business with pleasure as they made plans for the spring season . . . Essie Tucker of Santa Monica is improving rapidly after her operation at Santa Monica Hospital . . . After attending an interesting executive Board meeting of the Auxiliary to the National Medical Association in Camden, N.J., Mrs. Emily Brown Portwig planed home last week by way of Washington, D.C., for a few days, where she was house guest of Dr. and Mrs. Pinyon Cornish. There she visited the students from Los Angeles attending Howard University; Brenda Wright, Nedra Jackson, Marcus Tucker. She talked (by phone) to Mrs. Shirley Johnson Strange, one of her Anchorettes. She was back in L.A. in time to take part in the Zeta Woman of the Year Banquet.

Becky Farrington will be hostess at a "Mama To Be" shower Sunday honoring Jackie Dickerson Hutt . . . Millie Holbert is planning a Stork Shower for Zenobia Maddox Sunday . . . It's a girl for the H. Colemans'. She bowed in last week . . .

members at their Easter dance at the Mayflower Ballroom. Officers of this club include: Milton Swan, president; Al Dawson, secretary; Dan Washington, treasurer; Ed Woods, Sgt.-at-arms; Frank Swan, chaplain. Throngs were on hand to enjoy this initial Easter invitational party . . .

The Social Knights, social and charity club, is just as popular today as it was 29 years ago when the club first hosted an Easter Promenade for all its friends. The familiar Straw "Katy" hats, that mark their affair, a strictly spring apparel event, were much in evidence as Louie Cole presented the gentlemen to an overflow crowd at the L.A. Breakfast Club. A thunderous applause rang through the ballroom as members bowed, for their program has combined social activities and doing something for Polio victims at the same time. Once again, guests made financial donations, upon entering the breakfast club, to help the Knights keep their special project going. This year, Stonewall Jackson took the spotlight as president and presented the check to be used for a polio victim, to the worthy recipient. Witnessing the presentation were: vice president, Samuel Littleton; secretary, Charlton Scott, Jr.; treasurer, John M. Smyles; financial secretary, Curtis Thompson; business manager, Charles U. Macon; Publicity manager, Gus L. Patterson; sgt.-at-arms, James Calhoun; Parliamentarian, Robert L. Atkins; chaplain, Leo Lindley, and club mascot, Darryl C. Macon. The crowd this year was larger than ever before, joining in the 29th celebration of the Social Knights' annual Promenade. The outstanding success of this club far surpasses the wildest dreams of the group of high school boys who first organized it as the Lightening Aces back in 1930 . . .

GIRL FRIDAY NUPTIALS . . . Traditional spring notes are always sparked with nuptial with offerings, and this week we reveal the marriage of sls, (girl Friday) Marion Jackson and Albert Wilthat marital knot. Formal announcements were mailed to friends son, who hied off to Las Vegas, Nevada, on February 9, and tied this week by our parents, the Albert Browns. The double ring ceremony was performed by Reverend V. C. Coleman of Second Baptist Church. Al, formerly of New Jersey, is the father of two sons by a previous marriage. This is a second marriage for both. From this pillar, we wish them years of happiness . . . Secrets are so hard to keep, in the chronicling business, but we didn't breath a word until given the green signal . . .

Detroit's well known Dr. Alfred Thomas and family were given the red carpet treatment by local socialites as they enjoyed their Easter week vacation here. They were housed at the Beverly Hilton, however, little time was spent there for they were on the go from beginning of the visit until it ended Monday morning. The Paul R. Williams entertained at Cocktails for family members and few close friends. Paul R. was architect for the Thomases widely known island home. Mrs. Alice Harvey was luncheon hostess for the Sr. Mrs. Alfred Thomas, Mrs. Miriam Thomas, and 8-year-old Linda, on Tuesday . . . It was Disneyland trip hosted by Marilyn Hudson for the visitors and on Saturday night one of the most colorful affairs was given in their honor, when the Howard Allens entertained a large cocktail party in their new View Park home. The vacationers left for San Francisco early Monday morning, to complete their sojourn on the coast . . .

Urban League Guild members have launched their annual costume ball plans with gusto. Sammy Davis, Jr., will serve as honorary chairman this year, much to the delight of Ball chairman, Connie Maxey. Clubs will learn more about the costume contest at a special cocktail party on Sunday from 4 to 7 at the home of Wanda Wiley, on Dublin avenue, Elinore Adams chairs this special committee . . .

Zenith Charity and social club members are busy as can be completing plans for their annual benefit talent show to be held on Sunday, April 22, at the Mirimar Hotel. Proceeds will go to the Exceptional Children's Opportunity school, and the girls promise a show to top all others, and this is some promise to keep, for in past years they have scheduled some of the entertainment world's best known stars . . .

Henderson Community Center's annual banquet will find Turnabout Charity Club members attending en masse this evening. John W. Crawford, executive director, and staff are very pleased with the groups support of the Toy Loan center there . . .

LOS ANGELES BEAUTIES . . .

Response to the Miss Universe Preliminary contest information written last week has been most outstanding. It is good to note the general interest shown by the community in having a suitable young lady take part in the preliminary try-outs. Young ladies of fine face, figure and character are not hard to find as some believe. The committee serving wih the Southern Area Club is working hard screening suitable candidates who will make the entire community proud to point to them as representative beauties. The big date is May 27 at Moulin Rouge, and the list of chaperones compiled from well known matrons interested in good grooming and finer womanhood, reads like who's who. For once, skeptical moms feel a little more at ease, permitting teen-aged daughters to take part in the contest . . .

The Omegas' annual Starlight Formal on Friday evening at the Breakfast club, will find the fraternity crowning a new campus queen . . . Mona Lisa Bridge club's Cocktail Dansante will take place on April 5, at the Zenda Ballroom. Christine Wyatt, president and members will be introduced promptly at 8 p.m. . . . The Freelancers' Fashion in the Sky' review by Eadward will be something out of this world. Models will actually show styles from Eadward's dress shop, in the bay window overlooking the city. The secret on how the girls will be suspended in mid air, will be revealed at Sunday's show. A second model will be showing the same style inside. Another fashion note will be the confetti colored make up to be worn by the models. We hear that Viola Bond is supplying the entire line of scintillating colors. By the way, winsome Eunice Pye, and Mary Ann Lightner will be showing styles, as well as members of Chic Inc .. . . House of Walters Suede styles will be featured in his annual extravaganza at the Moulin Rouge Sunday . . . These are but a few of the special Mom's Day affairs . . .

HERE AND THERE

Had wonderful luncheon with Santa Monica's leading citizen, Joe Spalding one day last week, and was given a sneak preview of his fabulous new mortuary. The Spalding family certainly has something to be proud of, in fact the citizens of Santa Monica have something to be proud of, for this establishment is the last word in modern design and equipment. Joe and his wife were formerly Angelenos. For more than five years, they have been established in Santa Monica (Joe's a native). The official opening of the Spalding Motuary will take place on Mother's Day and the general public is invited to attend. The chapel (ideal for weddings) reminds one of the glass church. The use of slate and rock combined with special landscaping, is something you must see to appreciate.

Final plans for the Charles R. Drew Auxiliary's annual Bridge Tournament to be held at Victoria Hall on Saturday May 9, at 1 p.m. were made by Mrs. Julian Childs and her committee. Proceeds will go into the Nurses Scholarship Fund that is given to deserving students once a year. Mrs. Elmer Anderson is co-chairman and members are, Mrs. Edward Bailey, William Beck, Gregory Murray, James Swann, Harold Watkins and William R. Williams . . . Hildegarde Bostic's intimate luncheon honoring Ruthe Campanella was a pleasant affair on Saturday afternoon at her beautiful Baldwin Hills home. Old friends from New York, Hildegarde and Ruthe are thrilled that they will be home town buddies once again, when the Campanellas move here in the near future. Tonight (Thursday) The Dodger Star will be in the honorees spot when the Dodgers play the World Champions New York Yankees. This benefit affair will find many baseball fans attending the game . . . Doll League Charity club members were thrilled to meet Campy, on Friday evening, when Dorothy Foster invited him as special guest to the regular meeting . . .

Friends will be happy to know that Mrs. Ivan (Jessie) Cannady is home from recent stay at Queen of Angels hospital and is on the mend . . . Dorothy Gilcrest and Doris Hawkins of Pasadena will be Europe bound at the end of this month. Bon Voyage parties are being scheduled for the young business and professional girls . . . The Brad Pyes and little son had their first trip to Catalina when they took part in the Mardi Gras over the week-end. They didn't get seasick either on the boat ride over . . . The Keglers Pin Classic League of L.A., part of the Bowling Association, staged its award dance at the WAB Hall on Saturday night. Following, James and Essie Keesee had the gang in for a swinging party that lasted long into the night. Their grand piano has been artistically changed into a bar . . . The Gay Tennettes went in for the Cotton Attire with their Frolic at the Armenian Hall on Saturday night. The affair was a tremendous success . . .

Also on the busy Saturday night was Les Beau Dames Fantasy ball out at the Deauville Club, overlooking the blue blue Pacific. The members, introduced by likeable Phil Rhoten, were exquisitely gown in white . . .

Joining the group at the grand finale was "Daddy Bud" (as the youngsters call him) Clay.

A special "Thank you" was given by Mrs. Clay, she was pleasantly surprised by the presentation of a huge bouquet of red roses by her little grandson Donnie Clay, from all the Clay youngsters. In response "Happy Birthday" was sung to Donnie who was 2 years old.

BASEBALL is one of the many activities offered boys and girls at Circle "R" camp. These boys were fortunate to have parents who could afford a trip to camp. Without the help of the SENTINEL Summer Camp Fund Appeal, many unfortunate boys and girls will not be able to go to camp this summer.

Campership Group Stresses Fund Need

In a recent meeting of the campership committee of the Sentinel Summer Camp Fund appeal, held at the home of the chairman, James Derry, supervisor, Los Angeles County Bureau of Public Assistance, efforts were made to re-evaluate campership giving in line with the growing number of requests and limited funds to be distributed among the applicants. The question of what to do with the long list of applicants, already known to the committee, remained unanswered.

These boys and girls know the hurt of being left behind, as many of them stood with tears in their eyes and watched the bus as it left for camp last summer. This is the type of needless frustration the Sentinel through its Camp Fund Appeal is trying to avoid.

Readers are urged to contribute generously to the fund. Your contributions will assist the committee in providing a needed mountain vacation for deserving boys and girls.

All contributions will be acknowledged in the Sentinel, the committee points out. Contributions are deductible for income tax purposes.

Donations should be sent to The Sentinel Summer Camp Fund, office of the Circle "R" Camp, Inc., 1739 W. Adams Boulevard, Los Angeles 18.

YOUR Social CHRONICLER — Jessie Mae BROWN

MERRY CHRISTMAS AND HAPPY NEW YEAR, from ye Ole Chronicler to each and every one of you wonderful readers. Tis the season to be jolly and to spread good cheer. One of the most interesting parties to come across our desk via the mail to date is the Delta's "Lost Class" Christmas Party honoring the Prince Edward County students and others in Virginia, faced by school closings. This year's party held Dec. 20, at Gillfield Baptist Church in Petersburg, is one of the most successful held. Chartered buses transported the students from an assembly point in Farmville to the Petersburg party scene. Along with gifts Delta also made a donation for the Scholarship Fund for Virginia Students. The party is Delta's means of honoring its nation-wide responsibility and commitment to democratic and orderly methods of achieving human rights for all people, according to Dr. Jeanne L. Noble, Delta's national president, who is an associate professor in the Guidance and Human Relations Department of New York University.

Aside from making its contribution to the national project, local Deltas are oreping for their "White Christmas" formal, to be held December 29 . . . The invitation list includes many, many parties, ranging from the Open House ype to the strictly formal . . .

CHRISTMAS SPIRIT . . .

A few of the pre-holiday parties that found Mr' and Mrs. Angelenos donning their best outfits, included the "C. C." club's first big invitational affair to be held in the history of the popular club's existence. The members looked like they stepped from ages of Harpers Bazaar or Vogue in their cocktail attire, including Ann Coleman, Edith Houston, Antoinette Atkinson, Ethel Madox, Helen Wright, Lola Beavers, Linny Price, Ouida Williams, Laura Fowler, and the rest of the membership. To date the girls haven't told what the C. C. initials stand for. The cocktail soiree was strictly invitational . . . and one strictly of a fun nature, setting the holiday off to a grand start . . .Same night the Philadelphians greeted their friends at an intimate type holiday fete. There was toasting, and greeting of old friends to some solid organ music in the background. The entertainment put all in a celebrating mood and the guests were especially pleased with the Windsor Ballroom setting . . . Jennard Stanchmore, president, was a study in beige, while Evelyn Abney chose black, the latest in cocktail wear was also selected by members, Norma Harvey, Mary Francis Oliver, Betty Brown, Jessel King, Jeri Peterson, Jean Brown Williamson, Gloria Malone ,Dolores Simms, just to name a few . . . Same night (remember during the Christmas season you make 4 or 5 parties in one evening) . . . the Sir Debuteers had several hundred friends in for holidal buffet supper, cocktails and dancing at the Larchmont. This affair was typical of all Debuteer successes according to Girl Friday who started her Holiday balling with the Debuteers. Phil Rhoten at the helm of activities was a perfect host . . .

The Alpha Betts, noted for the something different role, came up with a smart Luau, authentic in every respect. Jeep Smith's Casa Manana Club was the setting for this bit of holiday whirling. Gifts were distributed to everyone, members and guests included. Betsy Green, a charter member now on leave from the group, was welcomed with open arms as she made one of her rare appearances . . .

It was Secret Pal time at the home of Alma Orshen when the Iota Phi Lambda Christmas party was co-hosted at her home by Ruth Washington. Election of officers preceeded the Egg-Nog serving and Alma, an ardent worker, was elected to succeed Lucile Reynolds as president of Alpha Phi Chapter . . . The Doll Leaguers, at their election recently, cast votes in favor of winsome Sylvia Wortson. She will be installed at the annual Holiday party. Fay Wagner, energetic retiring president, saw her year close with the outstanding successful party for needy children Sunday at Ross Snyder Playground. Lula Bendy chaired this affair . . . New Leaguers will be greeted at the installation affair, five in number.

GOOD CHEER . . .

Ernest Jackson received the Cosmo gavel for president in 1960 during installation phase of the Holiday party on Monday night at Broadway Federal's Entertainment room. Joe Spaulding, successful Santa Monica Mortician, formerly of L.A., did the honors of installing the new cabinet. Bill Taylor received the Cosmo Man of the Year plaque, while vivacious Lorraine Houston (sheathed in gold brocade) was presented a Ray Charles Recording, as hostess of the year . . . It's always a wonderful feeling to greet old friends specially during the holiday season. At the Cosmos, Monday night ,a lot of this took place. For instance, we found Coni and Elmer Roberts, a sight to behold. They have been sticking close to home for some time. Elmer is a former Cosmo . . . Connie's chic in a short short cocktail skirt . . . Ditto Haroldine Brewington. Sharing table with the Larry Browns were the George Whitesides. Across the way sat Evelyn and Frank Abney, Phylippa and Ivan Houston, Marilyn and Elbert Hudson. The sideboard was laden with the traditional Holiday bill of fare, turkey, ham and all the trimmings. The bar was a busy spot and all had a wonderful time, meaning Sy and Felix Williams, Boots and Maurice Jones, Alma and Chester Hill, Preston Franklyn (he's spending Christmas in Detroit), Edward and Betty Henry, and many another member of the old gang. Wallace DeCuir, retiring prexy, bowed out to the applause of the Cosmo Crew for a job well done. The gents didn't have a single fund raiser throughout the entire year. The 12 months were planned strictly for fun . . .

The new Mary Clay School for kiddies will be quite a busy spot from 5 to 8, Dec. 27. Grand opening and also honoring the visiting Dr. and Mrs. Smith of Philadelphia . . . Lilla Jackson's open house takes place Christmas Day . . . Medical Dental Pharmaceutical Association and Auxiliary have the L.A. Breakfast Club lined up for the Yuletide Ball, December 30 . . . When Mattie and Fred Bluett host their New Year's Eve party, Hope and Larry Logan will be up from San Diego : . . The Turnabout Charity club rang down the curtains on a fast moving year with the beautiful party for needy children at Ros Snyder Playground. 200 enjoyed the personal appearances of Tom Hatton, Channel 5's star with Adventures of Popeye and Engineer Bill, Channel 9's star attraction for the cookie crew. Included on the program was the Sentinel's Young L.A. package entertainment with the Smith Sisters and other talented youngsters who sang and danced to the delight of the children. Turnabout members were thrilled with the wide array of toys contributed by their guests at the Candlelight Ball this year. Reason the whole affair was such a success. Margurite Wineberg chaired the Kiddie party with hubby Dewey in the role of Santa . . . Mrs. Juanita Simpson and daughter, Mrs. Vassie Brown (retired school principal) greeted several hundred friends at their holiday open house Sunday. The Poinsettia decor was breathtaking . . . THE YOUNG L.A. STAFF'S Christmas Party was the most, held Saturday at Victoria Hall. Dolores Ivory and all the young scribes are due for orchids, plaudets and bows. So sorry the Victoria couldn't hold all the youngsters who arrived to hear their favorite entertainers. Plans are being made now to make it possible for more to take part next year . . . A. S. Doc Young lined up the program . . . For Evangeline Woodfolk it's Christmas in Farrell, Pennsylvania, with her family . . . We make deadline . . . 'Til Next Week.

tical Association and Auxiliary did their official holiday greeting at their annual Yuletide formal at the Breakfast Club. The 29th was their date . . . The Country Clubbers had friends in for dinner at the Nickabob Tuesday p.m. The high spirits of the holiday season were much in evidence at this event.

Mary Clay's gift to L.A.'s young parents with nursery age youngsters is a plush new school located out West Adams way. Sunday evening the popular Bud and Mary Clay greeted some 500 friends to view the new school and to meet Dr. and Mrs. Jack Smith of Philadelphia, Pa., who are visiting the Clays (Mary's brother and sister in law). The red carpet was out and those answering the invitations were in for a wonderful time. By the way, the Crenshaw School will still be part of the Mary Clay string.

Misses Ethel and Ann Spencer and Dr. Williams Spencer have as their weekend guests their relatives, Mrs. Leonie Butler and 13-year-old grand son Ralph Amerson and son Atty. Douglas Greer of Sacramento, Calif. . . . Visiting the Leon Washingtons and Mrs. Oma Romell, is winsome Bernardine Plummer of Oregon. She'll take in the New Year's round of fun before returning to college . . . The Med-De-Phar social club had its Christmas dinner dance Saturday at the lovely home of Dr. and Mrs. James Rawls . . . The J. O. Garlands in View Park entertained with a family dinner Christmas day in honor of Dr. and Mrs. Charles Boyd and son David of East Chicago, Ind., sister and brother-in-law of Mrs. Garland. David is a senior at Fisk.

Lullaby Guild's Gift to Children's Home Society was a good bit over $3,000, following the success of the recent Ebony Fashion Fair. Bernice Watkins made presentation to the home early this week . . . Holiday bells in bright red sparked the Allie Williams residence on Dec. 26, when Town and Gown Club members hosted the annual holiday cocktail and dinner party. Gifts were exchanged by secret pals, and a shower of cards filled with green back (like Pearl Bailey ordered from Santa), were presented the birthday celebrants in the club by the members. Hostess, Estelle Williams was so honored . . . Many hapy returns of the day. By the way, the Town and Gown girls are responsible for the Wheel Chair project, that finds their money going for the purchase of chairs for crippled persons unable to buy chairs. Climentine Williams, staunch Town and Gown member still lists this as their major project.

LES PETITE MESDAMISELLES

Jingle Bells, sounded in a swinging manner on Sunday night, Dec. 27, when Peppy Prince played for Les Mesdamosilles holiday party at Victoria Hall. The members were dressed exquisitely in holiday garb and ye ole Chronicler took great pleasure in presenting them during the introduction period. Peppy played, "White Christmas" as background music. The orchid is official club flower, so each member topped her cocktail garb with the queen of the flower realm.

Included in the hostess group are: Ollie Mae Johnson, president, who chose white satin; Blanche Hall, vice president, bowed in blush pink; Lena Brewer, Secretary, chose sophisticated black; Vernice Robinson, Treasurer, was lovely in beige chiffon; Christina Sease, fairly floated in white tucked organza. The skirt was full and the bodice close fitting the tiny waist line. Josephine Lloyd, Sgt.-at-Arms, wore Holly berry red, while Willa Taylor, Historian, Reporter won her applause in black. The celebrating continued until the wee small hours of the morning.

Lilla Jackson was displaying an exquisite array of pearls and diamonds when she entertained with open house Christmas day . . Audrey Scott's main gift was one of pearls and diamonds . . . Two big dates awaited by the social set even though the holiday party whirl has been more than enough, is the Rinkydinks Bal Elegante', the eleventh of January at the Beverly Hilton. Coming out for this introductory ball are members of the New York Chapter. A round of parties will precede and follow the ball with visitors being given a bit of southern hospitality. Parker—team up to add one more to the campaign goal of 15,000 new trees in Los Angeles county by Saturday night. Sheila attends the Mary Clay Nursery School, 3911 W. Adams, and Dr. Parker is a resident of the county medical association home for retired physicians, just a few blocks away at 3500 W. Adams. Since each was planning a tree planting ceremony, they decided to help each other.

By the way, the annual Clay-Tillion, where the kiddies bow and go through their social grades, has also stepped up in size. This year it will be staged at the Moulin Rouge, the Sunday before Christmas with the little ladies dressed in black velvet and patent leather . . .

Back to School fashions were spotlighted at the combined musical and revue sponsored by the Bethel AME Junior Choir Sunday. Director Ethel Griggs and president Natalie Whitsett were quite busy lining youngsters up for their respective turns. Fall Fashions (dark colors) are something on a very warm September afternoon. As soon as the show was over, quick changes were made into late summer apparel, in keeping with the thermometer reading . . .

HAIR STYLIST MEET . . .

The coming week-end will bring the CHD's annual work shop and show to the Alexandria Hotel early Sunday morning. Work shops, displays by jobbers, and fashion shows are just a few of the featured activities . . . Another meeting of importance in the beauty realm will be the initial Hair Weev convention that opens here Sept. 24. Learned from the energetic Lessie Stevenson, who will be in charge of out of town guests, that the main Banquet will take place at Park Manor. Many teachers of Hair Weeve and students who have completed the course will be attending the sessions to get new ideas . . .

Highlight of a crowded Sunday was the Tuskegee Alumni Association's presentation of Lionel Hampton in a dance at the Palladium. The acclaim given Lionel on the Steve Allen show a few weeks ago was only a spark of the flame ignited Sunday, when old and young vibrated to the vibraphone of the great jazz artist. Ted Johnson and all the hard working alumni of Tuskegee Institute are responsible for the success of the event . . .

Bob Steward has a fall line to compete with the masters of Europe. Many clothes conscious Angelenos attended the showing on Sunday at the Sheraton West, when Bob, well known designer, was presented by the Omega Psi Phi Fraternity. The beaded creation (a ball length gown) is still the talk of the style conscious. Bob will be one of the featured designers at the CHD show at the Alexandria Sunday . . .

HERE AND THERE . . . The Gay 90's were relived on Friday night when Ann and Leslie Shaw hosted a completely delightful fun party at their Victoria Avenue home. There were bright red garters for the ladies presented as they entered. Mingling through the crowd were chorines dressed in "can can" outfits and there were Barber Shop quartet members, on the scene in black derby hats and vests. When the chorines lined up to dance, Ann was the belle of the ball, backed up by Jojo Kingsley, Gloria Mitchell, La-Vern Jones, Ruth Spencer, Helen Jane Steward and Teda Woods. We might add that Lucille Boswell gave the guests the real roar that carried over to the 20's with her reading. It was titled, "Fabulous, Frank and best of all fat!", and original by Olivette Miller, written just for Lu. Bob Gant went comedian with his fiddle, while Les Shaw, Gerald Stovall could be heard loud and clear singing with the Quartett. The guests comprised a pleasant kaleidescope of friends who were having one last round of fun before getting down to Fall activities. . . .

On Saturday morning, bright and early, a Greyhound Bus arrived in front of Lula and Sonny Robinson's home for the chartered trip to Caliente for the Playtimers Club. This was a week-end that will go down in history for the strictly fun club. The members scratched the annual invitational dancing party in favor of the week-end across the border. Their husbands were guests, with the club picking up the tab. From L.A. to Caliente the Greyhound Bus jumped. Hear that the election of new officers was held at the peak of the trip, with Pauline Stovall receiving the gavel from Lula Robinson, for the new term. In on the week-end trip were, Helen and Lowell Steward, Nita and Berry Tate, Gerry and Marco Peterson, Gloria and Stanley Malone, Ruth and Bert Kenner, Gladys and Hayward Carter, Paulette and Frances Garland, Bernice and Bill Watkins and the rest of the Playtimer crew . . .

Lullabye Guild members were guests of Helen Garland on Friday afternoon and their major discussion for this opening meeting was the annual Ebony Fashion Fair, to be held Dec. 4, at the Palladium. Hear that Frieda DeKnight left for Europe shortly after hospitalization, in order to personally select the exquisite apparel that will be shown. Antoinette Atkinson is general chairman of this year's show . . .

October 23 is a date Turnabout Charity Club members are circling for their annual show at Moulin Rouge. Most of the summer months Marie Bryant has been coaching the girls in a routine that is geared "strictly For Fun." In fact, Gypsy Rose Lee had a strong influence on the theme. It's so different the members felt they had better hit a norm, by giving away a beautiful sable scarf to one of the lucky guests that evening. Tickets are now in circulation and per usual, Turnabouts are expecting the usual SRO crowd . . .

RINKEYDINKS have Count Basie lined up for their Fall affair and the Palladium will be the setting to accomodate the large following of friends. The 25th is the date, so plan to be there . . .

The 12 Big Sisters are off to a grand start, with the official opening of their "Faustina Home" for girls. Roselle Fernandez and the hard working members of the Sisters greeted many friends at the Open House Sunday . . .

L.A. Confidential

By STANLEY G. ROBERTSON

L. A. POLITICAL TICKER TAPE

With the Big Tuesday less than two weeks away, everywhere you go—along the highways, byways, in the clubs, around cafe tables, on busses, at parties—in Los Angeles, all you can hear is talk of the big showdown between Vice Bresident Nixon and Senator Kennedy.

Never in my recollection have Negroes in Los Angeles become so excited about and interested in a national election. It surpasses anything I've seen in the past.

In the 1952 and 1956 campaigns between Eisenhower and Stevenson—even though most observers assert that Stevenson is a particular favorite in this area—there was nowhere near the emotional involvement shown by people here in the candidates as there is today.

Way back in the epic 1948 struggle between Truman and Dewey, people here seemed to look upon the national campaign as something occurring in a faraway land in which they had neither interest nor participation.

Typical of the passions which have been fanned locally as a result of the campaign is the discussion I heard the other evening in a South Normandie Avenue cafe which serves "southern home style food."

Two husky men, their overall type clothing sweat and dirt streaked, engaged in over healthy portions of greens and black eyed 'peas—one of the most intelligent discussions on the differences between Kennedy and Nixon's views on the off shore islands of China you would want to hear.

Said one of the men, obviously a Kennedy supporter, as his friend seemed to be getting the best of the discussion:

"Well, Nixon made a lot about his stand and voting record on civil rights, but he has never made it clear how he can take such a position as he claims he does and reside in an area of Washington in which he had to sign a restrictive covenant in order to purchase his home."

Replied the Nixon man:

"This may be true, but have you ever examined Kennedy's voting record in the Congress and Senate before he had aspirations of becoming president " . . .

Then, there's the local playboy about town who reports that the other evening he called three young ladies and received the same answer each time:

"Sorry, I can't talk now . . . I'm watching the Great Debate" . . .

Those car owners who have "Kennedy" or "Nixon" stickers pasted in prominent positions on their automobiles are getting a big bang out of some of the jokesters about town who are featuring the odd variety of stickers on their vehicles.

Such as the guy on the Westside of town in the '58 Chevy who has a sign reading:

"Abe Lincoln for President."

Or the owner of the '54 red Mercury with the sign:

"I'm for Ray Charles."

Or, the Los Angeles High School student who has a neat little sign pasted in the window of his car which reads:

"Remember! When it's all over, don't blame me. I'm too young to vote." . . .

A five-year-old moppet, a kindergarten student at Mary Clay's Westside school, came home the other day and took off the Nixon button some friend had given her and which she proudly wore on her dress.

When asked by her mother why she was taking the prized possession off, the five-year-old said, holding up up a recent edition of the Saturday Evening Post which has Kennedy's picture on it:

"He's cuter . . . I'm for him!" . . .

Some people have even tried to commercialize on the campaign.

One of those dance schools which offer "free" courses if you can answer a simple question such as who was the first president of the United States, called a friend of mine the other night and asked:

"Sir, if you can tell me the names of the two current presidential candidates, the (name of the studio) will give you $25 in free dance lessons."

Not wanting to be bothered, the wise guy shot back with:

"Al Smith and Herbert Hoover."

"What!" exclaimed the shocked voice.

"Oh, I'm sorry, that was four years ago. I mean Franklin Roosevelt and Hoover."

The girl hung up! . . .

In the more serious aspects of the election, two key party workers—one Democrat, the other Republican—I talked with during the past week both told me that they have noted a larger interest in volunteer party work by Negroes than during other campaigns they could both recall . . .

I might add that this is undoubtedly a result of the fact that both parties are showing more interest in the Negro vote and problems than ever before . . .

A final add: No matter which candidate or party you support or favor, be sure to vote!

JOKESVILLE, USA—

Redd Foxx, the comedians' comedian, comes up with the following story:

Seems a Negro entered a small cafe in the rural South and sat down. The waitress came over to the man and informed him, "We don't serve Negroes here." To which the man replied: "That's okay. I didn't come in here to eat any Negroes" . . .

CONFIDENTIALLY YOURS—

WE WISH YOU A MERRY CHRISTMAS . . . From the looks of invitations, that have arrived at a fascinating and almost incredible degree, there is no end to the variety of offerings. These Angelenos are indefatigable, if they aren't giving a party then they are going to one . . . If it isn't a party, then it's the grand opening of a play like "Raisin in the Sun," Tuesday at the Huntington Hartford . . . or maybe a children's Christmas program, like the wonderful musical at John Adams Junior High, where Louis Johnson directed the girls and boys glee clubs in the Hallelujah Chorus, waving a magic wand over the packed auditorium . . . Speaking of magic, the Snow Fairy was at her best touching the hearts of hundreds of young parents, relatives and friends attending Mary Clay's fifth annual "Clay-Tillion," presenting the little ladies of her school in a Winter Wonderland debut to top all; Vantile Whitfield did the beautiful winter scenes for the stage of the Moulin Rouge where the 1960 Clay-Tillion held sway. The Clays are resting up in Mexico City for the holidays and probably wondering if they will be able to get a place large enough to accommodate the crowd at the sixth Clay-Tillion. There was many a proud parent in the audience, like Ruby and Stanley Robertson (he of the Sentinel staff), daughter Jill was with the tiny little ladies in velvet and patient. The Atkinson family was out in force, little Eddie's baby daughter bowed with the nursery set, she's in her first semester at the Clay school. Mary Francis Oliver, Gwen Taylor Jackson, Minnie Grimes and Sarah Grimes, Virgil Brown, Gladys Beverly, Bernice Arbor, Zerish Eberhardt, Beverly Beavers, Alice Foster, Rheba Butler, and we could go on naming, for there was many a proud mom and dad in the audience. Sue Clay was in for a special bow, since her baby daughter, Rosebud of 1960, Sharion Marie Clay, is the first little lady in the Clay family to date. The whole audience were as proud as punch, as Grandma, Mary Clay, who has been so wonderful to so many youngsters, sang the Rosebud song to her own little grand baby. Mary dedicate the entire program to the parents who cooperate so beautifully with the program of L.A.'s school for young ladies and gentlemen. Mary's other daughter-in-law, Claudette (pretty as the snow fairy in white) just smiles when asked if she plans to add a girl to the family tree. She has two sons and thinks she will let it stand at that . . .

Clara Taylor chose leather and wool for her smart gray ensemble; Laura Payne was striking in black.

Diana Walker was smart in berry red, ditto Connie Maxey. Vi Pinkney's winter ensemble was toast and gold. Also in the early morn group were Anita Clark, Doris Dawkins, Emily Jones, Blanch Merrell, Lois Grissan, Nikki Keets, Lucille Ward, Flo Vaughn, Melissa Stieger. Jessie Mae Brown

Mrs. LaMar Hill, fondly known by her many friends as Puffy, welcomed a host of charming ladies to her Westchester Avenue home, to enjoy cocktails and greet Mrs. Pocahantas Key, visiting her old home town. The honoree, (former Mrs. Pocahantas Whiteman of Crown City) is vacationing for a few weeks in the little old adobe village, and having a wonderful time. (By that we mean one party after another). The hours for Thursday's party were from 3 to 5 o'clock, and believe it or not, we arrived, not too late, but too early for a change and had to make an about face and return at the fashionable time, when the chatter was reaching a fun loving crescendo pitch, and the exquisite hats were so numerous it was hard to select just which one was prettiest . . . Sarah Griffin, was wearing a natural straw chapeau that was an eye catcher . . . Georgia Hardiman had the new Cleopatra, tall, off the face style, in white and red . . . Antoinette Atkinson's was a breath of spring, creation of lilly of the valley and a bit of maiden hair fern. Of course she wore an off white suit to perfect the picture . . . May Harvey was in striking black, and Pearl Taylor complimented her smart knit with an exquisite mink scarf. There were so many friends of long standing in the crowd, many were fellow club members of the honoree when she lived in the southland, including Della Williams, (her daughters Norma Harvey and Marilyn Hudson were there too), Alice Worrell, Bernice Barnum, Ruth Webster, Honore Levy, in a striking study of blue.

Ouida Williams and Helen Garrott arrived early with the visiting Poppy Cannon White, a fellow Fourth Estater now. Ouida entertained her with luncheon, preceeding the cocktail soiree. We chatted a spell with Edith Houston and Ann Coleman, they have plans for a Bon Voyage party honoring Elois Davis set for June 10, just before Elois leaves for Europe. The latter was in top form, awaiting trip to D.C.

Chit-Chatting: Ethel Maddox, Lola Beavers, Teda Woods (looking wonderful in one of those new off the face hats), Paulette Garland, Ethel Bell, Mable Hurd, Edith Jones, and daughters Corine Taylor and Gwen Simmons, Nancy Carrol, Mary Johnson in a striking high fashion emerald green coat, Dorothea Williams, Pauline Bouttee, Bernice Watkins, who the following night put out the welcome mat to the Play-timers, who did just that, following a dinner fit for a queen, and a demonstration of the "Twist," by Puffy Hill's darling daughter, Dorothy and Bernice's son.

We enjoyed exchanging hellos with Lena Tucker, Rosemary Holloman (striking in a bright red knit), Seth Lee, Alice Matthews, Devine Carney, Mattie Pearl Jefferson, Wilabee Johnson, Clo Woodward, Philippa Houston and her charming mom . . . Also Irene Morris, Cornelia Bradford, who had news of Stork Plans announced by the Sherril Lukes . . . Ursula Murrell and her winsome sisters, Portia Byrd and Marcia Jefferion. Ann Shaw, Helen Jane Steward, Gloria Mitchell, and so many more. It was a delightful party, and gave the honoree a chance to say hello to so many of her friends, who by now have taken her on a fast moving whirl of events. In fact her two weeks in L.A. are completely filled with dates. By the way, Mrs. John Hill is a charming hostess, with that secret formula for guaranteed success whenever she entertains.

J AND J DAY

Saturday was Jack and Jill Day, and we d omean all

Saturday was Jack and Jill Day, and we do mean all Perpetual Motion," was at the helm of the program, that started with a Bowling tournament at Woodley Lewis's S. L.A. Alley . . . Youngsters from South L.A. chapter competed. Veda VanBrundt, dynamic worker, was in charge of the South L.A. program. Georgette Watson, Jackie Miles, Davine Carnie, were real workers on the committee. Following the bowling, the day continued with a real genuine Pot Luck Supper at McCarty Memorial social hall. The parents and children turned out en masse to participate, and it was a fun gathering. Calories were forgotten and the plates were plied high with the best culinary art, Jack and Jill moms could put together. Following day, (Mothers Day), Jack and Jillers worshiped in a body, putting a final cap, on a very event packed J and J Day program. Pictorial coverage on this in next week's Sentinel.

YOUNG MODELS—Gloria May, advisor for J and J's Vogue and Esquire Group had several of the teen-agers serving as models at the Iota Phi Lambda Mother's Day breakfast Sunday morning . . . They were looking so pretty, modeling from their personal wardrobes . . . The Compton College coeds, did a magnificent job with the needle, making each of their fashion changes. It was our pleasant duty to serve as Commentator for the first half of the show, held at Pacific Town Club. Audrea Mackey was an excellent chairman, and we might add, the smooth manner of handling the huge crowd of Mom's Day breakfast guests was due to the precision work of the kitchen crew, including husbands of the club members, Eugene Moore, Paul Brown, Al Wilson, and a few others. Senior Citizen Month is now being observed, so Lessie Stevenson played hostess to a group of guests from an Old Folks Home, by taking them to the Iota Breakfast.

We dashed to the Moulin Rouge, shortly after Mom's

Mrs. Hicks, now a resident of Elsinore, is a little far removed for busy guests, who party hop, to make their way out on a Sunday afternoon . . . Cassie Harris is having a wonderful Sunday party, starting with cocktails at 6:00, dinner at 7:30 and dancing. FLASHBACK: Charles Drew formal at Ambassador was quite an event last week . . . On Saturday night, The Drew Wives put out the welcome mat . . . This brings to mind, the Lullaby Guild members who were much in evidence at the Pool Side party held at Helen Garland's abode a Saturday or two ago. Mary Clay's Private School Offers Cultural Program

BY JESSIE MAE BROWN
Sentinel Society Editor

A Little Ladies Cultural Tour through historic sites in the East, is being sponsored by Mary Clay School, for little lasses from seven to ten, on June 21 through June 28.

The children, together with their parents, went through a briefing session and fashion show a few weeks ago in preparation for their TWA flight.

The suit selected for travel is a two-piece seersucker in the patriotic colors of red, white and blue, designed for travel.

The young misses will visit Washington, D.C., where they will see the White House, the Capitol and the Cherry Blossom trees bordering the Potomaic River. They will visit the home of Betsy Ross and see the famous old Liberty Bell in Philadelphia. In New York, the Empire State Building, the World Fair and the Statue of Liberty will be the main attractions.

The ten youngsters who will make the tour are students at the Mary Clay School and the program is part of the cultural activities of the school for young ladies and gentlemen.

Mary Clay, dynamic school head says: "College makes an educated man . . . reading a lerned man . . . and travel a broad man."

This cultural tour, is the first step to bring the travel element into the student program at the school. Tutors and chaperons will join Mrs. Mary Clay on this initial tour, that will probably take root and grow like all other ventures Mary Clay has dreamed of . . .

A nursery school for little children was her first burning desire. Not just a nursery school, but a culture center, created in an atmosphere where they have periods of casual play and opportunities for being very dressed up.

Feeling that little children need to learn poise and grace so that they might take their places in any walk of life, is reason Mary Clay has tried to create in her school, an environment where rich opportunity gives them this chance.

Mary Clay is a graduate of Margaret Morrison College for Women (Carnegie Tech.) She did Graduate work at U.S.C. and was director of the Thirty-Sixth Street Child Care Center fourteen years, before she opened the first Mary Clay Pre-School on Crenshaw Blvd.

This first center was an answer to the prayer of many career mothers or middle income families. In this teaming metropolis where freeways bring suburban workers to the heart of the city in a matter of minutes, racial problems are subtle and mothers had difficulty placing their children in private child care centers operated by Caucasians.

The average mother when applying for admittance found an exaggerated and elaborate preliminary bit of work involving a long waiting list. By the time they got around to her name she has hired help in the home that is far more expensive than her income can afford, or given up her job.

The need for good private child care centers was ripe when Mary Clay opened her first private pre-school in the heart of Los Angeles for all children regardless of color. This wasn't just a school, but a model school, used by University of Southern California and Los Angeles State College students to meet special study requirements.

What makes the Clay school so special is that first of all it wasn't organized for the sole purpose of making money. This school is the fulfillment of a dream born in the mind of Mary Elizabeth Smith Clay in the ivy-colored halls of Carnegie Tech in Pittsburgh years ago, for it was there that the former Mary Smith, daughter of pioneer Pittsburghers Charles and Alice Smith, had a vision of some day having a model nursery school and private elementary level school of her own.

During World War II, Mrs. Clay worked in federal nursery schools by day and attended UCLA at night, always seeking more knowledge on scientific care and training of children. To operate a model private school for tiny tots was her greatest ambition.

In Mrs. Clay's mind the school furnishes an ideal environment for the democratic development of children of all races and creeds. It is a culture center where children see fine plays and hear fine music. They have periods of casual play and opportunities for being very dressed up. The children learn poise and grace so they may take their places in any walk of life.

All children take part in the well-organized program that creates the desired environment at Mary Clay Schools. The Clay-Tillion, fabulous presentation of the youngsters, has gained national attention. During this affair the pre-schoolers debut, in a mock cotillion. 1,2000 friends, relatives of the youngsters and interested persons in the pre-school field pack the Moulin Rouge for the unique presentation.

Youngsters, trained by a leading dance master in proper cotillion bows and turns, take the spotlight. Little ladies, dressed in black velvet jumpers, white gloves, patent leather slippers, if it is done in winter, or fluffy white dresses, should it fall in the spring of the year. Always a tiera of glitter, and a fairyland setting, created especially for the presentation.

THIRD GRADE LEVEL

Finishing schools, schools of refinement, etc. are so very few when it comes to Negro ownership. With the exception of the efforts of the late Dr. Charlotte Hawkins Brown, who headed Palmer Institute in Sedalia, North Caroline, there were few if any schools to which Negroes could point to as special organizations for refinement.

The Mary Clay School, with its second building on West Adams Blvd., caters to kindergarden through third grade. The uniformed little boys and girls are well mannered and are exposed to the very latest and finest education methods. The teaching staff is the finest. Leon Howard, recently joined the staff as consulting psychologist. Part of the days study is the listening post, (Lisaphone). Here follow-up work can be completed, stories heard, or voice recordings to alert the teachers of speech difficulties. Another useful addition to the work equipment are learning machines.

Children start foreign language in kindergarten and continue through the third grade at the Clay School. When little students enter public school in fourth grade, they are excellent readers, and usually are listed among top students.

The wheel of fortune has smiled on Mary Clay. Awards have been numerous, complimenting her on work with children far beyond the call of duty. Mary Clay opened the first Negro-owned, private school (non sectarian) in the city of Los Angeles. Kindergarden and first grades were first in the ultra-modern school. Today children may go through third grade

Any child could be sold on staying at Mary Clay-Pre School or attending her Private school, after just one trip around the grounds, and through the class rooms. Rocket ships and jolly animals are themes used in making the play equipment in the yard as inviting as Disneyland. A great rocket ship in reality is the slide. A long creature with bright smile and many legs is a very fancy jungle gym. A giant turtle has taken many a youngster on a bumpy ride. Bicycles, tricycles, sand piles and all the nursery yard toys that make life so enjoyable for children have a fairyland aura at the Clay School.

Many hours of devotion are poured into this school from every angle. Thousands of dollars have been spent on equipment within the classroom and the play area. The Clay school is a model from many angles, from the teaching methods used in the classroom to the play hours on the grounds.

Mrs. Clay, who stands a little more than five feet, has a wonderful personality and a winning way with students and parents. She has just one regret, that the Clay school can not accommodate more children. Waiting lists at preschool and regular are just a little too long. Mary Clay hopes the day will come when the waiting list will be usurped in a brand-new school, built to house the numbers.

She sincerely hopes the day will come when moderate wage earners and the professional classes in our race will be given more consideration when plans are set for such institutions as pre-schools.

It is this class that is really in need of children. The poor can take advantage of state - operated schools, and the rich can afford private schools with ease. It's the middle class income group that's hardest hit.

THERE IS SOMETHING very wonderful about Mother's Day. It has a way of putting a very special person on a pedestal, and letting her feel a love that is just a little more than the usual measurement . . . filling her with an inner glow that turns ordinary living into a time of sheer delight . . . Iota Phi Lambda Sorority Members have their annual Mother's Day Breakfast in readiness for Sunday at Pacific Town Club. There will be continuous showing at fashions from 10 a.m. until 2. Wini Orr, president and organizer of Grandmeres has been caught in a whirl of parties during the week for visiting Grandmom members here for the party from Sacramento, San Francisco and San Diego . . .

WIGS are still being applauded for excellent drive 'Books For Freedom.' Tons of books were collected at Charity Ball on Friday night. address, called "Being," easily placed him as the man of the hour in just about an phase of today's Civil Rights struggle. He took his time and in a very profound dramatic presentation, told each listener that she should be proud of BEING a Negro and should demand that media of mass communication depict Negroes in their rightful places, in the everyday stream of living.

Orchids went to Leaguers, Angelique Bratton, who retired her position with the government after 30 years; Pauline Slater, for her recent honor of Most Outstanding Retired Teacher; and to Juanita Miller, for her new top position in the field of social work.

There were so many interesting women enjoying the League Breakfast, for instance, Estelle Sherwood, charter member of the League, out greeting friends for the first time in months. She is on the mend from long illness . . . Isadore Brown who had to leave the Breakfast early in order to keep a very special date in San Diego. Reason, her brother, Rev. Charles Hampton was celebrating his 30th Anniversary in the ministry in the Boarder Town. Her guest was Betty Clarke, who chatted freely about purchase of a new home on Sycamore. The Horace Clarks will be about the last to move from the old Sugar Hill area (Hobart Blvd.). Many an Angeleno can recall wonderful parties they use to host in the big house. Understand a rest home will be established there after Betty and Horace move in July. There was a bit of nostalgia as Betty recalled the days when the Norman Houstons, William Baileys, Louise Beavers, Ethel Waters, Hattie McDaniel, were residents of old Sugar Hill . . . Back to the breakfast . . . Leaguers placed a special spot light on young artists who addressed the group over the past year. Leonard Taylor and Kay Johnson, took their bows, Melvin Edwards, Sculpture, was unable to attend.

Famed musician Dexter Gordon was topic of discussion at our table. His charming mother, Mrs. Gordon was in the group, and plans visiting Dexter in Copenhagen this summer. Zehprine Brown, Melonie Blocker, Josephine Spearman, Louise Beal, Josephine Birch, were among those present. Across the way sat Ruth Webster, Della Williams, Bernice Barnum, Pearl Smith. Then there were Antoinette Atkinson, daughter Joy, Ann Coleman, Iva Washington, Carona Bowman, Mary Clay, Fay Duffy, ad infinitum.

Sunday was a busy, busy day. Following the League Breakfast . . . It was a hurried spin across freeway to the downtown Statler Hilton, where charming Arthisha Jordan was speaker for the Los Angeles club of Negro Business and Professional Women. Pauline Yarbrough, retiring president, was surprised when a special award was presented her, applauding four years service as president of the local group. Many awards were given to very deserving women leaders of the community. Very charming mistress of ceremonies, Betty Cox, kept the program moving at a good fast pace.

THIS BUSY WEEK-END found Linnie Pryce hostessing a "swinging" Bon Voyage party for Ethel Maddox, who by this time is Europe bound with her three youngsters, Joyce, Joan, Al Jr., and good friend, Miss Jan Hill, who arrived from Hawaii in time to get her vaccinations. This is Jan's first trip abroad. It's the second for the Maddox girls.

Linnie's party was a grand send off . . . in fact just about every guest there felt like making reservations for some distant spot before it ended. Most of Ethel's club sisters were there from the C.C.s and Girl Friends. Joining the round of toasting were, Tida Woods, her sis Marjorie Pugh, Thelma Houston, Mamie Lewis, Elois Davis, who arrived from New York just in time for her son's graduation from elementary school; Gloria Mitchell, Nancy Carroll, Wini Toney and Zrelda Seeley were in on the fun. Ditto, Edith Houston, Lola Beavers, Laura Fowler, Mable Miles, Toney Atkinson, Marie Claiborne, Stacy Williams, and I could go on naming, for the charmers were much in evidence. Ethel, an Angel City Best Dressed Lady who wears the crown with ease, plans to leisurely vacation with her children the entire summer, doing a bit of shopping in the European salons. They will return to L.A. in September, in time for school bells . . . Ethel is president of Our Lady of Africa Guild, and regretted leaving before their big luncheon date Saturday, June 20 at Beverly Hills Hotel.

There have been so many affairs to attend lately . . . one of the most informative was Friday night's reception honoring visiting Dr. James Robinson, founder and now full-time director of Operation Crossroads Africa. His real mission in L.A. this time was to bring the baccalaureate address to Occidental College graduates, and to receive an honorary degree from the college. It was through the efforts of Stacy and Bill Williams, that the group from our community had an opportunity to personally hear the illustrious Presbyterian minister tell of Operation Crossroads, with many facts on Africa. Fifi and Thomas Boger, Marie and Earl Claiborne, the Hamilton Clouds and L. L. Holloman joined in hosting Friday Night's reception for Dr. Robinson.

Same night, Geri Peterson entertained Playtimers in their closing round of fun for the club year, at her smart restaurant, "The Set." Geri's culinary art is at its best when she services her friends at "The Set."

SOME OF THIS AND SOME OF THAT . . . as go the lyrics in one of Joe Williams' swinging tunes. It seems to be a world of real good living, until you pick up the paper or listen to newscasters who bring you the serious side of life. Guess the one redeeming feature of most activities now-a-days is the fact that the underlying drive is to gain funds to help carry on the fight for freedom, or to commend citizens who are doing a noteworthy job. Women of Today were a sterling example of this, when they entertained with a huge luncheon at International Hotel Saturday at high noon, honoring all elected representatives in city government . . . The gentlemen came en masse, including Richmond's newly elected Negro Mayor, George Carroll and his charming wife . . .

Cast of "The Amen Corner" gave a surprise party for producer-director Frank Silvera on his birthday Friday night. The midnight revelers got together after the last show. Frank was truly surprised and had to swallow quickly to avoid shedding a few tears. The theatre folk demonstrated their versatility by showering Frank with a variety of unique gifts. The show stopper was a white sheet cake covered with singing bees. It carried the inscription: "Just bee, baby," a symbol of the technique Frank uses in his "theatre of being" workshop. Amen Corner is still batting one thousand (which is more than we can say for the Dodgers) at Coronet Theatre on La Cienega Blvd. . . .

Miss Lois Caldwell, first place winner in Top Hatter's Cotton Queen contest wears her crown with dignity. It was quite a contest on Saturday night at L.A. Breakfast Club, Ann Simms, and Bertile Pillars were runners up . . .

Sunday afternoon, many found their way to L.A. Breakfast club during late afternoon to join Doll Leaguers in their annual fund raising Carnival. The huge throng guaranteed the Leaguers a financial tag to carry on work with less fortunate youngsters of the community . . .

* * * *

HERE & THERE . . . Libby Clark and Herman Hill are celebrating the success of their merger, Clark and Hill Associates, by entertaining with a twilight Yacht party on Saturday. Guests will gather at the Ferry Building in San Pedro around four, and it will be buffet and beverage on board . . . Young staff of Elegant magazine put their annual show on to benefit Church of the Advent. Westside Jewish Community Center was Sunday setting for showing "Vogue for Judgement Day." The styles were heavenly on stage and off. Special note was all out endorsement of huge organdy hair bows, worn in as many ways as one could imagine . . . atop long full even cut bangs, behind short sweeping "Buster Brown" bobs, and below high-rising puffs, chignons and braided pieces. Jean Durand did a humorous job in the dramatic production as he portrayed the devil with Julius Johnson at his most pious as St. Peter. Sentinel Religion Editor, Betty Pleasant, Adlene May, Elaine Simpson (newlywed); Shiela Simpson, Pat Lawson, Margret Hudley were in the crowd. Rector of Church of the Advent, Father Bowler commended Elegant and the Vocals for the afternoon's unique presentation . . .

Earl Grant is back in his old home town, settling down (for two weeks) in his new home in the hills. His decor is strictly white and gold, truly a show place . . . Summer calendar of social events this past week could have included the circus . . . catching Sarah Vaughn singing Gershwin at the Hollywood Bowl, or listening to the symphony conducted by Henry Lewis at the Hollywood Bowl . . . For the Cosmo members and wives, it was a long trail awinding caravan style Sunday morning for Elsinore and the lake side home of the Elbert Hudsons who played host to the club's annual summer outing . . . For others it was the big Olympic preview, teams representing the United States and Russia, the world's greatest in track Saturday and Sunday at the Coliseum . . .

Myrtle Hughes is playing a stepper's role this week, moving into Leimert Park home, and packing her bags for a quick jaunt East to AKA national Boule . . . Bernice Barnum, back from Nassau, is keeping an eye on her little grand kiddies, while her daughter Geraldine Griffin visits Antnanise (Puffy) Hill in Hawaii . . . Harriet Flowers Williams, Delta's new graduate chapter president, is already starting the ball rolling for 1965 national meeting here in L.A. . . .

Certainly enjoyed buffet and showing of film taken during the Mary Clay Cultural Tour. Parents and the youngsters were invited by Mrs. Clay last Thursday evening. Films were taken and shown by Cliff Hall. Mary says next year it will be Europe, no less . . . Mary Ann Knox joined Mary in giving high lights of the tour . . .

Questionette members are giving a good part of their summer in work toward the success of their annual Debutante Ball scheduled for the winter social season . . . Seems rather strange to refer to winter season when summer is just reaching the peak. By the way, Marion Wilson was picnic hostess over week-end at Santa Monica and it was loads of fun, especially since we kept the sand away from the vittles for a change . . . Evelyn Turner's high noon party for Mable Davis was a real swinger and a perfect send off for the school marm who by now is enjoying the Caribbean Islands . . .

Since Mayor Carroll has been at convention in Florida, his winsome wife has been enjoying her favorite pastime (swimming) at Clarissa and Milton Bowser's home. Perfect hosts, the Bowsers splash party between sessions last Saturday was ideal for the visiting Mayor and his first lady. They belong to Richmond, however, Angelenos are adopting them. . . . truly a charming couple, very sincere in their civic activities . . .

From this pillar we say congratulations to the Elliott Carpenters on their 50th anniversary . . . Ye Ole Chronicler makes deadline as she takes off for a much needed bit of vacation . . .

world of music .From the choir of Union Baptist Church in Philadelphia to Carnegie Hall and other major concert stages and even from the steps of the Lincoln Memorial, her songs have gone forth to delight the ear and touch the heart of the nation. Gifted with a phenomenal voice, fine musical intelligence, great personal presence, and firm spiritual strength, she became a powerful symbol for our era and helped to speed the emergence of a social transformation long overdue. For her unique achievements as an artist and as a person, we salute her today and proudly welcome her to honorary membership in the University of California." Applause and cheering made it impossible to audibly hear the remaining part of Mrs. Chandler's presentation remarks. This was truly a moving moment of achievement. Reverend Garner, a long time friend of Miss Anderson, stated "this is an achievement, a crowning experience in Marian's fantastic career . . . and very definitely rewarding to us and the other thousands who realize that America's submerged tenth is continually moving forward and progressing on all fronts . . . This is an occasion that will go down in the annuals of America's History."

Minutes before the commencement, we had the opportunity to chat briefly with Miss Anderson, who was in the city just long enough to receive her honor, then was off to New York on the five o'clock plane. She is enjoying her recent retirement, but is keeping quite busy going to different cities receiving honors for her long years and contributions she has given the field of music. She looks forward to the time when she will be able to return to L.A. and visit with old friends and acquaintances. She sent special regards to the local Alpha Kappa Alpha chapters, who were so kind to her during the early days of her concert tours here on the Coast. She holds honorary membership in Alpha Kappa Alpha . . .

There were so many proud parents in the audience as they witnessed the presentation of their graduating seniors in the group. Young Henry McPherson received his Bachelors Degree, as his dad, Dr. Henry McPherson, and his aunts, Mrs. Consuelo Henton and Miss Birdielee Bright, beamed with pride. Louise Merriweather received her Masters Degree in Journalism, and her cousin was up from San Diego for the commencement.

Miss Joan Whiteside was in the large graduating class of L.A. State College, Saturday morning. A powder blue Mustang convertible was her graduation gift from parents, the George Whitesides. Joan will be teaching in the fall...

It was CULMINATION time at Mary Clay School last Thursday evening, and members of the senior class (first graders), did the complete program in Spanish and English. Parents were fascinated with the ease the youngsters went through their skit in Spanish. A Buffet supper followed with parents discussing the wonderful experience their youngsters had at the Mary Clay School.

Energetic Mary Clay, director of the school, is involved in learning to speak Japanese, for in July she will be enroute to Japan with a USC travel group. Mary's main mission will be to help set up a model nursery in one of the big cities of Japan.

VACATION TIME

June 21, first day of summer, will find all of us vacation minded. Earline Wilkerson, first Anti Basileus of Zeta Phi Beta Sorority and husband Dave Wilkerson Jr., of Kappa Alpha Psi and Wilshire Land Investment Co., will be off to New York and the Zeta Boule', via Houston, for the Astro Dance and New Orleans. Following the Boule' they will visit from Washington, D.C., to the Grand Canyon, Arizona, getting back to town in time to join the Deltas national round of activities. The Orlando Flowers leave for Canada the day school is out to visit daughter Pat and her family. Their return date to L.A. is also revolving around Delta National. Mrs. Flowers, mother of Harriett Williams, local Delta Prexy, is quite active in the Delta Mothers, Sponsors Club. Along with convention planning local Deltas are putting their energies into the program, "Head Start" that they are doing for the Poverty Program, through the children's school at Victory Baptist Church . . .

Edgar Bishop, Polemarch of Kappa, is expecting 450 brothers and families to join in picnic fun, Sunday, June 20, Father's Day, at Santa Anita Park in Arcadia. Kappa Karavan Kommittee chairman is Dave Wilkerson . . .

The Gerald Stovalls officially opened the doors of their beautiful Longwood Avenue home on Friday when Pauline entertained the Playtimers, with their final meeting before vacation time. In the artistic setting of white, golds and orange, most of us got the feeling Pauline could hang her shingle as interior decorator. The busy school marm did the complete job alone . . . Gloria Malone was elected president of Playtimers and will go into action at the September meeting. Among Pauline's extra guests were, Faye WORLD FAMOUS Marian Anderson, received the honorary degree Doctor of Humane Letters during 46th Commencement Exercises at UCLA, on Friday morning. Reservations may be made daily at the school or by calling 839-8120, says Collins, who is a swimming instructor at Dorsey High during theregular school session.

Several private schools and the Crenshaw YMCA are using the well-appointed facilities at the Collins Swim School for their youngsters.

The Mary Clay School is making plans for its students to learn the art of swimming at Collins too.

Individual instructions in swimming are given at the Collins Swim School. The classes are limited, so that the learning process is easier, and faster.

The pool is opened for recreational swimming to the general public every Saturday from 3 to 6 p.m.

Jaycees Fete Wives At Playboy Club

Members of the Southside LA Jaycees took their wives to the Playboy Club on Hollywood's Sunset Strip recently for a combined Wives Recognition Observance and the celebration of the National Organizations' 50th Anniversary. Donald Morgan, a CPA, Internal VP of the Local Chapter and Chairman of the evenings affair, commenting on the occassion said" If it had not been the understanding and patient wives of the earlier members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce we would not be able today to devote the necessary time to render the community the type of projects engaged in by many Jaycees. Today our wives are equally as understanding and act as secretaries, messengers, hostesses, cooks and sometimes "widows" when Jaycee Projects take their husbands into service."

Approximately 30 wives enjoyed their husbands for an evening uninterrupted by telephone calls, Future-Ball planning, Junior Miss problems, membership quota tabulations or scrapbook work shops. Realizing the affair may well have been the calm before the storm, the Jaycees and their mates set out on a very busy schedule: November was Community Development Month, with the Mayors' Proclamation and four weeks of activity. MOURNED: Funeral services for Mrs. Mary Smith Clay, founder of the well-known Mary Clay School on West Adams Blvd., were conducted here Monday. The popular former Pittsburgher was highly respected in pre-school training circles. She leaves two sons, Carl and Donald, and a brother Dr. Jack Smith of Philadelphia plus eight grandchildren.

Mary Clay was a fine woman, a very genteel person, who believed in working. When Headstart came into existence, Mary Clay left her private school and assisted in setting up the Headstart program at Henderson center of Second Baptist Church. She worked there several years, until her health would not permit the schedule. She contributed aid in nursery school work to those interested in setting up schools. Her's was a practice school for one of the local colleges, and considered a model nursery school.

A native of Pittsburgh, Mary Clay was active in the Pit-Los Club, an organization of former Pittsburgh residents, now living in Los Angeles. She continued to be active in the club as long as her health permitted. She had quite a bout with the grim reaper, cancer, and won the fight for many years, with a determination to continue to live until the end. By that, she would say, she meant seeing the brighter side of life and being thankful for all the wonderful blessings that had been hers, from the success of her schools, to the vast amount of traveling she was able to do, even after finding out about the cancer.

Many a youngster, now in college, and some who are graduates and engaged in professions were students of the early Mary Clay School. They have bright memories of Mrs. Clay and her late husband, who they fondly called, "Daddy Bud." Many a parent can look back over the years and evaluate the offerings of Mary Clay, and are thankful that she was part of the Los Angeles "black" community when it was almost impossible for middle class working parents to find nursery schools in which to place their children.

The Mary Clay School, located on W. Adams, continues to operate in the manner in which Mary Clay set up her program. It's been a number of years since she put in full time work schedules at the school, but her basic foundation, and principles still exist there. Her legacy to the children (the very young ladies and gentlemen) still stands, and that is a good beginning foundation in education for all youngsters. Funeral services were held for Mary Clay Monday morning, 9 a.m., just when the school bells were ringing. Mary Clay was a Sentinel Woman of the Year, was recipient of the College Women's Award, and was cited by other organizations as an outstanding educator.

The Social Chronicler is usually devoted to social happenings. Once in a while we find it necessary to fill the inches with remembrances of Angelenos who have passed. Followers of the Chronicler any length of time are certainly familiar with the Cosmo Club, and the names of various members involved in the light and sometimes serious work of the club. One of the long time members, Felix Williams, passed and funeral services were held on Saturday morning at Joe Spaulding La Brea Mortuary. Wallace DeCuir, president of the Cosmos, and a member of the L.A. Fire Dept. that Felix Williams also belonged to before going into private business, read the obituary, that was rather brief, but such a glowing and warm salute, to the memory of a friend, who loved life, his family, friends, people in general, a great guy who made you feel just a little better when you were in his presence. Pallbearers were: Fritz Banks, cousin; LeRoy Beaver, Tommy Billups, Edward Henry, John Smith, Earl Watson, Cosmos were honorary Pall Bearers. Great numbers of friends of the family filled the chapel and stood in the entrance, while Felix Williams was eulogized. It's rather hard to accept the passing of friends or those who are close, but this we must do. I am sure that his wife, Symanthia, the children, Kathy, Connie and Felix III; his mother, Mrs. Mary Williams, and other relatives are comforted in knowing that Felix had lived his life in such a way that he was an inspiration to his peers.

Mary Clay School Builds Poise And Confidence

The Mary Clay School Spring Program became an evening to remember when children entertained over 200 parents, family members and guests in the auditorium of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, located next door to the Mary Clay School, May 30.

Carrying their school banner with pride and singing "Marching Along Together," followed by the "Mary Clay School Song," the young entertainers demonstrated poise and confidence as directors of the chorus, Mrs. Charmaine Deering and Mrs. Julian Wallace accompanied the singers in a beautiful rendition of the Negro national anthem "Lift Every Voice."

The astute children at Mary Clay School presented two plays which were both considered fine exercises in speech development and public projection. The play "Beautiful Things" was an excellent portrayal of family life in the community.

Songs from Walt Disney's production, Lady and the Tramp," were also sung. They included "Lady," "He's A Tramp," "La-La-La," "The Siamese Cat Song" and "Bella Notte." The opening and closing song "Beautiful Things" was taken from 20th Century production "Doctor Doolittle." Music for the affair was provided by Paul Hamilton.

The second play "Are You My Mother?" was a story written by Dr. Seuss, presented in both Spanish and English, and highlighted the evening.

Spanish is taught as a vocabulary builder for an early childhood level at Mary Clay School. Conversational Spanish and dramatic classes are both taught by Mrs. June Jernigan.

The Mary Clay School's Spring Program is an annual event to help students build poise and self-confidence at an early age and also enlightens and entertains parents and friends with live dramatic productions. The school is an educational institution where children grow mentally and socially. Children are accepted from two and one-half years to age six.

GREEN CABS ARE KEPT IN PERFECT CONDITION BY HOST OF RACE EMPLOYEES

No, Honey and Oil Won't Mix, Girls

WABENO, WIS., July 28.—Gregory Brouillard, a local motorist, stopped his car at a wayside filling station and a woman attendant graciously waited on him, after he had asked for a quart of oil. Proceeding, the car soon developed motor trouble and was towed to the city, where it was discovered the pistons were stuck so tightly that sledgehammer blows were required to move them. The cylinders must be rebored. The woman had poured a quart of honey into the motor.

expense in Negro camps.

In centers where the race had not been represented on local or State Reconstruction Committees instructions were given to appoint a Negro Advisory Committee.

The appointment of Negro farm demonstration agents and women workers in home economics by the United States Department of Agriculture to assist in solving problems faced by refugees on the return to their homes.

The United States Public Health Service and the Rockefeller Foundation are co-operating with the Red Cross in establishing county health units to keep down contagious diseases and to give medical aid until the crisis has passed.

A colored Advisory Rehabilitation Commission has been named to cover the entire flooded area as reconstruction pregresses, to inspect relief work and offer suggestions to the Red Cross. At a conference held a few days ago in the Red Cross Building, Washington, Secretary Hoover outlined to the commission rehabilitation plans.

With the return to their homes of many flood sufferers, the mass feeding which has been conducted in camps will be soon discontinued. A house to house canvass will be carried on to ascertain who is in need.

Food and seed will be provided, also farming implements to replace those lost. In cases where houses have been rendered inhabitable, a stock cabin will be furnished. They will be identical in every respect and delivered in a packet to white and black alike. The land owner will be required to erect them. Saw mills are cutting out cabins in large numbers.

The small land owner will be given three weeks food as a starter, also cabin and furniture if former home was destroyed by the flood. He can borrow money on his land from the agricultural finance corporations at a low rate of interest, securing sufficient financial assistance to enable him to carry over to crop time.

The tenant farmer who furnishes his own seed, food, feed for animals and works on a three-fourths basis, paying the land owner one-fourth, will be rehabilitated in full.

The share-cropper whom the plantation owner furnishes everything and takes 50 per cent of the crop, will not be aided by the Red Cross unless the owner proves he is unable to give aid. Only in instances when, after investigation, the land owner is found to be financially impoverished, will the agricultural finance corporations advance him money for the tenant.

Every precaution is to be taken to keep the plantation owner from actively participating in relief work.

The members of the Colored Advisory Rehabilitation Commission are Dr. R. R. Moton, principal of Tuskegee Institute, chairman; Bishop R. E. Jones of the Methodist Episcopal Church, vice chairman; A. L. Holsey, secretary; Prof. J. S. Clark, president of Southern University; R. R. Taylor, Claude A. Barnett and Thomas Campbell of the United States Department of Agriculture.

"Bud" Clay Has Responsible Position With Local Taxi Company

the brakes set just right, the upholstery so clean, the exterior paint unblemished, the windows so well polished, the engine purring without a knock and enough gas in the tank to carry you to your destination?

Well, there is an all-impelling force or power behind the scenes a veritable host of colored men who specialize in leather-cleaning, oiling, who keep Green Cabs in A-No. 1 condition, which is nothing else than greasing, welding, repairing, rewiring, washing, painting and refinishing so efficiently that even the white motor hood, topping the green, appears milky and clean in the historic City of Smoke.

"Yes, our colored employes are capable, efficient, reliable and dependable," said a representative of the Green Cab Company who was interviewed by a Courier staff reporter. "We rely on them to keep Green Cabs ready and in condition to serve the public at all times and they do so admirably," the company's official told us.

"Bud" Clay is supervisor of the corps of between 55 and 60 colored employes. His is a responsible position, which consists of putting the final O. K. on the cabs which have been put in perfect condition before they leave the garage on Ellsworth avenue. They don't leave Green Cab headquarters unless "Bud" says they are all right, and when he does, the public gets the use of an auto in the "pink" of condition to serve them during the entire day. Furthermore, Mr. Clay checks in on the meters and, in fact, sees that each minute detail has been properly taken care of.

Before the cab is ready for the street it goes through a long and careful process of inspection, rechecking and observation. In this entire system of conditioning, the colored employes play the leading role. A car comes in off the road—it is run in and received by men who check it over to see there is no mechanical defect. Then the windows are observed, to see that none are broken, after which it is run up on the washrack and washed, polished and the windows cleaned—all by specially delegated men. Later the leather is washed by special processes, after which it is run off the washing rack onto the oiling and greasing rack for oil and grease, and then it is finally "gassed." Each man has a special work to do, and he must do it well. After that, the driver takes the car and he comes up for final inspection. If he finds anything wrong he reports to Clay, and it must be O. K.'d by him before it goes out. Finally, the last stamp of approval by Mr. Clay is put on it as the car is ready to leave the garage for the day's work.

George Bowles, a dispatcher, conducts one of the busiest boxes at the corner of Wylie avenue and Fullerton street. He is popular and efficient in his work.

And the employes, oo, say that they find their work in the employ of the Green Cab Company pleasant and profitable.

I don't remember having told you about Mary Smith Tinker's marriage to Bud Clay in California, June 30. Remember we talked a lot about their engagement. So happy were we to know that two old Pittsburghers fell in love after so many experiences. I understand that the wedding was very lovely and the guests were mostly Pittsburghers. Nan Rucker Lee was matron of honor and Mrs. Clay, Bud's mother, also stood with the party. I do trust that they will be very happy.

Everyone Doing Fine

Handsome HERMAN PRICE is still working for Uncle Sam and doing O. K. carrying mail while BUD CLAY is on the job at the swank Riviera Country Club. ALMA WILLIAMS works for the City while hubby PAUL R. WILLIAMS has a big dental laboratory.

They're all looking forward to the visit of a lady they all love—The Courier's First Lady, Mrs. Robert L. Vann, for our opening July 17.

MARIE MEREDEITH still thinks this town is tops. GEORGE WHITE is still here and thinks L. A. is swell even though HEN KENNEDY deserted it some time ago . . . DOROTHY (Garrison) HARPER is a capable secretary at the Automobile Club, while other Pittsburghers Mrs. Mayme Moxley Neal and Alice Wesley are still missing good old Smoketown.

BILL WATKINS has one of the finest hotels in the country in the WATKINS, and WALTER NORWOOD of Detroit one of the swellest apartment buildings on the West Side.

Still we miss the good old home town like the dickens, and wish we could just thumb our way back for Frog Week.

Jes' CHES.

P. S. We loaned a guy from home a few bucks the other day to get back to Pittsburgh and will do the same for you if you decide to come out.

Glitter-Glitter . . .

JWJ and I slid out of town last week, with just a few hours of preparation . . . hit the road for Philly and Morris Beach, N. J. . . . and came up with one of the most wonderful vacation week-ends we've ever had. Complete relaxation, no socializing . . . doing just what we wanted to do (we lived on the beach and in the ocean) and ending up beautifully tanned and rested. Overnighted in Philly with the Dr. J. Shepard Smiths and found his lovely sister, Mary Clay, of Los Angeles, visiting . . . and all in a whirl over the town's mad social program built up about herself. Happiest mother in town, Mrs. Alice Smith, having both son and daughter together for the first time in several years. Mary, looking like a dream (such a figger!) had much to say of good-looking hubby Bud Clay . . . and sons Carl and Donald. Carl was graduated from high school in June and is headed for college.

'Claytillion' Is Dream Come True

LOS ANGELES—The dream of a former Pittsburgher vividly came true here, Sunday, when Mrs. Mary Clay, formerly of East Liberty, presented a fabulous "Claytillion" featuring children of her day schools at Hollywood's famed Moulin Rouge.

Presenting her handsomely attired "Little Lords and Ladies," the children reflected a beautiful picture panorama of exquisite grooming and fine training of her students.

Before an overflow crowd, the children gracefully waltzed and curtsied, and sang in a manner which filled their parents with enthusiastic pride and applause.

Mrs. Clay herself presented a beautiful reading called "Mothers Are A Many-Splendored Thing."

The "Grand Claytillion" was dedicated to Mary's husband, "Daddy Bud" Clay, the "pin-up" father of the students.

MARY AND BUD CLAY of Los Angeles flew to Pittsburgh t'other day, and faced a long, long line of festivities in their honor. But . . . and what a but! Mary arrived, pretty well mussed up by an accident which happened on the plane. A sudden air pocket set her flying! Hospital, Xrays, etc., pretty well ruined all the plans of interested hostesses. One was Marjorie Harris, whose brunch went on the day after Christmas without the honoree, although Bud showed to take her place. The intimate affair included those who had been close to Mary when she lived here . . . and was not (as some thought) a Christmas party. Out-of-towners included in this small affair were Fay Rucker and Florence Duke, both here with their better halves for the holidays. Florence has slimmed down some 10 pounds and looks dreamy.

Funeral services were held Monday at the Church of Christian Fellowship with the Rev. James Hargett conducting the rites and three ministers of different denominations participating in the memorial services.

Wilborn Clay was born in Pittsburg, Pa. He was educated in the local schools and came to California in 1929.

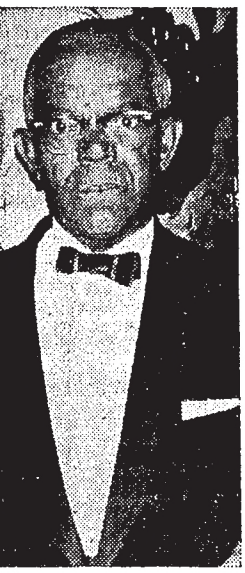

During the war he was a radar technician at the Bethlehem Ship Yards. In 1943 he married and with his wife Mary, the Mary Clay School on W. Adams Blvd. was founded. The rapid growth of the school was overwhelming and at the age of 65 he retired to help with the little children and became grandfather in the lives of many of the children.

He is survived by his widow Mary; two sons, Carl and Donald Clay, and by eight grandchildren.

Interment was in Rosedale Cemetery with the Angelus Funeral Home in charge of all arrangements.

Police Recruiting Begging for Men

A revamped recruiting and training program for Los Angeles police officers, aimed primarily at curtailing a threatened manpower shortage and improving community relations, was outlined this week by its principal designer, deputy chief Robert Houghton.

The new plan was approved by the Police Commission and the program will begin after the present police academy class graduates Oct. 20.

In recruiting, the commander of police administrative services said, "streamlined" procedures will reduce the number of potential officers we've lost because of time lag and inconvenience in the old process.

More convenient hours for application tests and the administration of the tests at six division headquarters will cut the time from application to entry into the Police Academy from the former five months to 10 weeks, Houghton said.

Tests will now be given at night and on Saturdays in locations closer to applicants' home, the deputy chief explained. Formerly the testing was administered only on weekdays and only at downtown locations.

Community leaders in the local division areas will be selected to interview candidates, Houghton said, observing this step in the recruiting process should have a beneficial effect in community relations, especially in minority areas.

The key change in the actual training of officers will be a "multiphase" program of instruction, outlined to the commissioners by Houghton at Wednesday's commission meeting.

Instead of the previous 12 successive weeks in the police academy, cadets will now train for 20 weeks, 12 in the academy alternated with two four-week training period on practical field assignment.

Houghton said this change would allow the academy to handle three staggered classes at one time, increasing the facility's capacity from 170 trainees to 210.

Ireland's railroads are now completely dieselized.

Masked Men Rob Avalon Branch Bank

A South Los Angeles bank was robbed of $4,264 last Thursday by three stocking masked bandits who held 27 customers and employees at bay.

Police said the trio entered through the front door of the Security First National Bank at 4377 S. Avalon Blvd. about a half-hour before closing time and one announced:

"Hold it."

The customers and employees froze at the order, given by one of two men armed with a sawed-off shotgun and long-barreled revolver.

The third man, who carried a sack, vaulted over a counter and began cleaning out tellers' cages officers reported.

But his companions apparently grew impatient and shouted to him to "hurry up," police added.

Varied Experience

McLinn spent two years with the Civilian Conservation Corps from 1933 to 1935. He worked as a surveyor while with the CCC and served in both the Lompoc, Calif. and Sequoia National Park areas. He also worked as a surveyor with the C. W. Cooke Surveying Co., after leaving the Civilian Conservation Corps.

McLinn was appointed to the Los Angeles City Fire Dept. on Nov. 12, 1936. While most of his career has been spent in the south and south-east areas of the city, he was assigned to the Wilmington-San Pedro area from 1957 to 1962. From 1949 to 1955 he was assigned to a highly specialized unit which responded to all areas of the city.

McLinn was promoted to Fire Department Engineer on Jan. 1, 1961, while serving in the Los Angeles Harbor area. He was appointed to captain July 19, 1962.

Upon his promotion to captain, he was assigned to command the fire station at 1525 E. 103rd St. and served in that command until his present assignment as

35 Underprivileged

Thirty-five underprivileged Los Angeles youngsters will earn money to stay in school next fall by tutoring drop-outs this summer.

This is just one anticipated result of the Neighborhood Youth Corps (NYC) Summer Tutorial Demonstration, an experimental Department of Labor anti-poverty project now underway here and in nine other locations throughout the country.

On the sorrowful side, Wilburn "Bud" Clay, Los Angeles, whose wife is the former Mary Smith . . . both of this town . . . died Saturday morning. He has been ailing for some time, and just slipped away into a more peaceful land. Arriving in time to be a stalwart of support for her cousin was Mrs. Joyce Scales, daughter of our town's Mrs. Edna Williams. Joyce, a vetenarian, and husband Eldridge, have been living in Omaha, but as of now Eldridge is in Atlanta, Ga., in a new position, doing research for all the schools in that progressive city. Eldridge, Jr. is in the University of Nebraska.

As far as we know Bud Clay leaves only his widow, three sons, Carl, Will and Donald Clay, eight grandchildren.
