Comments for Public Posting: I think ULA tax exempt measure should only be considered from a property valuation perspective rather than a flat tax exemption for all property owners. I think that the exemption process should be made in a way to put low-income families needs first because these disasters weigh more heavily on families who already were struggling. Also think we should seek to protect community property valuation from market antics created by predatory real estate developers who want to take advantage of policy aimed at helping families. If possible, I don't think a ULA tax exemption is necessary because it would set a precedent for future disasters. Instead coupons should be given out to families who are in need of tax exemptions.
